WHITMAN UNCOVERS BIG DUMMY LOAN

$230,900 of Carnegie Trust Funds Given on Notes of Wm. Ferguson, a Law Clerk.

PLANS THREE INDICTMENTS

Bank Directors to be Accused of Forgery in Concealing Loans—Inquiry Into Stock List of a Cummins Co.

The discovery of a dummy loan of $230,900 on the books of the Carnegie Trust Company came yesterday almost simultaneously with the decision by District Attorney Whitman to appear before the Grand Jury on Monday and ask for the indictment of three Directors of the bankrupt institution on charges of forgery. These three were members of the Executive Committee and figured prominently in transactions which are said to have brought about the failure of the company and the tying up of deposits amounting to nearly $8,000,000.

The dummy loan, upon which much stress is being placed by the District Attorney in preparing his case for presentation to the Grand Jury, appears on the books of the Carnegie Trust Company as having been made to William Ferguson in the Summer of 1910 at a time when the so-called Cummins syndicate, headed by William J. Cummins, formerly of Tennessee, was in supreme control of the affairs of the institution. William Ferguson is managing clerk in the law office of Crocker, Lewis & Wickes on the twentieth floor of 5 Nassau Street. At the time the loan was made he was managing clerk of the law firm of Keener & Lewis, which had offices in the United States Realty Building, at 115 Broadway. The Carnegie Trust Company was located on the ground floor of the same building. The Lewis whose name figures in each law firm is Liston L. Lewis, counsel for the Carnegie Trust Company and a Director in that institution. William Ferguson appears on the books as the maker of the note. The paper on which the Carnegie Trust Company advanced the $230,900 was indorsed by Joseph G. Robin, the financier who is now awaiting sentence for misappropriating $27,000 from the Washington Savings Bank.

Tracing the Ferguson Loan.

The loan to Ferguson, although appearing as having been included in one note bearing his name as maker, in December of 1900, was originally advanced in several installments, each on his personal note, indorsed by Robin and secured by collateral in the so-called Robin enterprises. But from the latest entry in the Carnegie books, and in the inventory of assets compiled from the Carnegie books by the State Banking Department, and filed with the County Clerk last week, the several notes seem to have been renewed in the form of a single demand note on Dec. 29, 1910, just two days after the failure of the Northern Bank, one of the Robin institutions. A significant fact is that the stock in the Northern Bank is included in the collateral advanced by Robin as security for the dummy loan to Ferguson. Just where the money went has not been explained, unless, indeed, Mr. Robin has included some information concerning it in his alleged confession to Mr. Whitman following his plea of guilty before Justice Seabury after a jury had been drawn and the case against him was about to proceed.

The first of the Ferguson notes which appears in the inventory of assets is for $50,000 under date of June 28, 1910, and after the indorsement of Joseph G. Robin appear the following list of securities: Forty thousand first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of the South Shore Traction Company, 100 shares of the Northern Bank, and 300 shares of the Fidelity Development Company, preferred stock. Both the South Shore Traction Company and the Fidelity Development Company are Robin concerns, and he was also deeply interested in the Northern Bank.

The second note, also of the demand type and indorsed by Robin, is for $25,000 under date of July 1, 1910, and the following securities are listed: Twenty thousand South Shore Traction Company 5 per cent. bonds, 50 shares of the Northern Bank, and 200 shares of the Fidelity Development Company, preferred stock.

The third note drawn by Ferguson, indorsed by Robin, and payable on demand, is for $155,900, and bears the date of Aug. 10, 1910. The listed securities for that note follow: One hundred and thirty thousand in South Shore Traction Company first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, 400 shares South Shore stock, and 4,000 shares Fidelity Development Company preferred stock.

Finding some significance between the date of the failure of the Northern Bank, on Dec. 27, and the date on which Ferguson's notes were renewed, Dec. 29, those who have been investigating the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company are trying to learn whether upon the failure of the Northern Bank a hurried meeting of the Carnegie Executive Committee was called, the question of the Northern Bank stock in the security for the Ferguson notes discussed, and the decision made to combine the Ferguson loans by one note and bunch the collateral, allowing the Northern Bank stock to remain among the securities.

Mr. Ferguson was at the office of Crocker, Lewis & Wickes when a TIMES reporter called there yesterday. When the office boy informed the managing clerk that a reporter was outside word came back that "Mr. Ferguson is in conference with Mr. Lucas, another employe, and will be tied up all afternoon."

Mr. Lewis, the reporter was informed, was in conference with John B. Stanchfield, another Carnegie Trust Company Director, at Mr. Stanchfield's office, and could not be seen.

Mr. Lewis and ex-Judge William A. Keener comprised the old law firm of Keener & Lewis at 115 Broadway. At the time Lewis was not only counsel for the Carnegie Trust Company at a salary of $10,000 a year, but was a Director in the company as well. It was said yesterday that Lewis and Judge Keener quarreled over the loan on which Ferguson's name appeared as the maker and Robin's as the indorser.

New Line of Inquiry.

Another line which has just opened up and is being followed with diligence has to do with the stock list of the Platt Iron Company, one of the largest of the William J. Cummins concerns, whose stock is not only in the Carnegie Trust Company but in several other large banking institutions of the city as collateral for loans to the Cummins syndicate.

Information has reached the District Attorney that among the stockholders in the Platt Iron Works are several dummies. Mr. Whitman is anxious to learn if this is true, and if it is who those dummies are representing.

Mr. Whitman is also continuing his investigation of the relation of a city official to the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company.

Although the Carnegie Trust Directors, whose indictment will be asked for are virtually charged by the District Attorney with being responsible for the wrecking of the Carnegie Trust Company, the technical charge of forgery will be based upon a provision of the law which makes the concealment of loans from the Board of Directors of a banking institution forgery. The concealment of loans and other transactions from the State Banking Depart-

McADOO SEEKING FUNDS?

London Hears He Is Negotiating There for $25,000,000 for Subways.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 10.—William G. McAdoo, who arrived on the Lusitania, is said to be here with the object of obtaining financial backing from a powerful group of English and French bankers for the construction of new subways in New York.

It is said here further that before leaving New York Mr. McAdoo received assurances that his scheme for building subways will receive favorable consideration by the authorities. The sum he is raising is placed at $25,000,000. After staying in London for a short time Mr. McAdoo left for Paris, expecting to return here in a few days. While here he remained in seclusion, asking that his name be left off the hotel register and no one be told that he was in town.

There has been nothing here to indicate that a McAdoo plan for a new subway is assured of favorable consideration from the authorities; in fact, conditions have seemed to point the other way. No action was taken on his bid to build the Triborough Subway.

That one of the objects of Mr. McAdoo's trip abroad is to seek there the financial backing for a Triborough Subway which he found difficulty in obtaining in Wall Street has been rumored here since his departure, although he himself declared on the eve of sailing that his sole idea in going away at this time was to take a rest.

"I am sick of New York at this time," he said, "and particularly sick of one W. G. McAdoo."

Crowds Disappointed and $500,000 Price Asked Regarded as Exorbitant.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 10.—Lord Lansdowne's Rembrandt, "The Mill," was on view for the first time yesterday on the occasion of the opening of the new wing of the National Gallery. The general impression created among the thousands who viewed the work was that the praise lavished upon it during the last fortnight was rather exaggerated.

The picture is in an extremely dirty condition, and a well-known art expert said: "There is at least $150,000 worth of decayed varnish on it," implying that a good deal of the fascination of the landscape may vanish in the necessary process of cleaning.

The price of $500,000, which is asked, is daily arousing more and more indignation in art circles, and it is a foregone conclusion that it will be impossible to collect the money to prevent the picture from crossing the Atlantic.

SUBPOENAS IN ARNOLD CASE.

District Attorney to Investigate Many Alleged Clues.

District Attorney Whitman had subpoenas issued yesterday for persons who have at one time or another claimed to have seen Dorothy Arnold, who has been missing eighty-eight days. All these persons will be called upon to testify before the Grand Jury.

Mr. Whitman not only wants to learn if there is any truth in the numerous reports sent to the Arnold lawyers about the missing heiress having been seen, but he also wants to put a stop to the many false stories told by persons who hope to make a little money by getting into the Arnold case.

One of the persons subpoenaed is Detective Duey of Philadelphia, who it was said had found Dorothy Arnold hiding in that city. It was this report which made the missing girl's brother, John W. Arnold, go to Philadelphia, where it was reported he saw his sister and talked with her. Another for whom a subpoena is said to have been issued is James McKeon, a theatrical manager. It is said he told his friends that he had seen the missing girl, but later explained that he had done so only in a joking manner. Another person to be summoned is a woman who says that she saw a girl closely resembling the missing heiress in a Fifth Avenue restaurant.

A summons has also been issued for a man who declared he say Dorothy Arnold on Dec. 12, the day she left home. According to the story he told John S. Keith, the Arnold lawyer, the girl was kidnapped in an automobile on Fifth Avenue. When he first appeared, it is said, he demanded money for this information, and, upon getting it, told his story. Later Mr. Keith made an appointment with him to visit the District Attorney and again relate his story. This the man agreed to do, but when the time came he failed to appear, and when Mr. Keith called for him at his home it was said he had gone to Canada.

The family, it is said, still believes the girl is dead, in spite of the many conflicting statements to the contrary.

WOMAN DIES OF FRIGHT.

Too Suddenly Awakened—Mother Injured and Third Faints at Fire Scare.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 10.—Frantic efforts to get the key to a fire alarm box at an early morning fire in Quincy resulted in the death of one woman, fatal injuries to another, and a third fainted.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning passers by saw smoke bursting from a window at 231 Vernon Street, Quincy. Several men ran to an alarm box nearby, but found it locked and the key gone. Three men went to three different houses in search of it.

Running up the steps of the house of Frederick W. Pierson, three doors up the street, one man pulled the doorbell violently. Mrs. Olive F. Clark, Mr. Pierson's mother, was awakened so suddenly that she was stricken of apoplexy and died within five minutes.

A second man ran to the house of Carl W. Leaf, directly across from the burning store. Mrs. Leaf, on her way to answer the bell, tripped and fell down stairs. She fractured her right leg and received internal injuries that will probably cause her death.

The third messenger pulled the bell at the home of Mrs. Anna Frolund, two doors from the fire. Mrs. Frolund yesterday had two little children taken to Quincy Hospital seriously ill. Thinking the alarm meant some unwelcome message from her children, she fainted away and for an hour it was thought she was beyond aid.

The key was finally found at the Pierson home and an alarm sent in. The firemen made short work of the blaze, which did a damage of $25.

FLYNN ELUDES CHASE BY GAMBLERS; RAIDS

Deputy Commissioner and Magistrate McAdoo Have Been Shadowed When Ready to Attack.

THREE PLACES SMASHED IN

One from Fire Escape and Another from Roof—Two Named as Proprietors Caught—New Armament Found.

Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Flynn admitted yesterday that for ten days he, together with Chief Magistrate McAdoo, Lieut. Frank Rathgeber, and Lieut. Collins, the two last named his chief raid leaders, had been followed on foot and in taxicabs by agents of the gambling fraternity in an effort to obtain advance information as to the location of places to be raided and the issuance of warrants. Three raids were made yesterday, despite this surveillance, although Commissioner Flynn managed to attend the raid at 52 Broad Street, only after he had led his pursuers a chase of miles through the city streets and eluded them finally in Times Square by violating the traffic regulations which they were compelled to observe.

Commissioner Flynn, who became aware of the surveillance almost as soon as it was inaugurated, cautioned his lieutenants that they were being watched, and with this knowledge the raids of yesterday were planned. Besides the rooms at 52 Broad Street, raids were made at 103 West Fourteenth Street, and at 92 Sixth Avenue.

According to the Commissioner the gang which, he alleges, was operating a combined poolroom and gambling house in the Broad Street place, is the same one which operated at 48 Broad Street up to two weeks ago, when the Commissioner drove them out. It was this raid, therefore, that the Commissioner wished to attend.

He left his office in Police Headquarters shortly after 4 o'clock and descended to the courtyard, where his automobile, in charge of Policeman Leech, was waiting. Across the street loitered a throng of men, among them the ones selected to follow the Commissioner whenever he left the building. Near by was a taxicab in waiting.

The Commissioner stood gossiping a few minutes with Leech, and then in a voice which, he knew, would carry across the street, remarked with a yawn:

"Well, let's call it a day. I guess it's home for us."

The Commissioner climbed into the tonneau and Leech started slowly uptown. Within a block or so the Commissioner saw that the taxicab was following close behind. Leech, by the Commissioner's orders, turned into Broadway and started north. At all the main cross thoroughfares traffic was held up while teams and pedestrians crossed Broadway, but the Commissioner made no attempt to exert his right to violate these regulations. He had Leech observe each one of them and continue northward to Times Square.

The Commissioner, with his pursuers close behind, passed northward through the square until he was well above Forty-third Street. Then he had his machine turned southward and set off down Broadway at top speed. At Forty-third Street a traffic policeman threw up his arm, but Leech gave him the necessary signal, while the Commissioner sped swiftly past the Times Building, in Broadway, turned east into Forty-second Street, and set off across town at high speed. His pursuers tried to follow his lead. The Forty-third Street traffic policeman headed them off, turned them into Seventh Avenue, and by the time they reached Forty-second Street and Broadway again the Commissioner was lost to sight.

Commissioner Flynn reached Broad Street just as Acting Capt. Bourke, "Battle Axe Eddie" as he is called in the department, and several men gathered in front of the old-fashioned three-story building at 52. Bourke and several of his men ran upstairs to the third-floor room they sought.

They returned soon to report that an ice-box door barred their way and that they could not break it down. Bourke, with Detectives Carlson and Dolan, went to the first floor and passing through a broker's office ascended the fire escape which runs up the front of the building, and smashed in a window which gave into the room on the top floor.

"Don't try to run, gentlemen," exclaimed Bourke. "This place is pinched."

According to Bourke there were 125 men in the room and so suddenly did he break in that several were still engaged in a stuss game. One of Commissioner Flynn's men was inside and he pointed out several men for whom warrants were held. Among them were John McGuire, who said he lived at 110 Wall Street. According to the police he was the proprietor of the place and the first proprietor caught so far in Flynn's raids.

While this raid was under way Lieut. Rathgeber and a squad of raiders descended on the place at 103 West Fourteenth Street, on the second floor, which is also the top floor of the building. Rathgeber, as head of the Bureau of Supplies and Repairs, has occasion frequently to go to the old Police Headquarters at 300 Mulberry Street, where many supplies are stored. He took advantage of this yesterday to elude the men who were trailing him.

He was followed to the building, but he passed directly through it and out the rear door, whence he hastened to Third Avenue and took a trolley car, meeting his raiders at Fourteenth Street and Sixth Avenue.

They found the place so thoroughly protected that they abandoned hope of effecting an entrance through the hall, and instead climbed to the roof, through which they smashed a hole. Rathgeber and his men dropped through and say that they alighted almost on top of a stuss table. In the place were seventy-five excited men, who made a rush for the rear windows.

These gave out onto a one-story extension over a tailor shop, in which was a skylight. The first two men crawled across this, and, opening a window in the rear of a flat which fronted on Sixth Avenue, they ran through the place and made their way to the street, although the woman of the house, who had been ill in bed, sprang up, and, running to the front window, shouted for the police.

The third man who attempted the trip across the skylight smashed through and caught his foot. He was so large that no one could get by him, even the detectives being prevented from following the first two men. The crowd was herded in but all except five men for whom warrants where held were allowed to go. A bag with $187, part of the bank roll of the place, according to the police, was found on this extension roof.

All three raids were made almost simultaneously, Lieut. Collins with his squad having smashed their way through an ice-box door on the second floor of a three-story building at 96 Sixth Avenue just north of the Jefferson Market Court. The place was empty, but the sound of footsteps could be heard ascending to the third floor.

This floor was shut off from the rest of the house by a second ice box door which obstructed the stairs. The detectives smashed this down and ran up to find themselves in the curtain and shade factory of the Cottrell Shade Company. According to Collins there were two genuine workers in the place and five other men who had on aprons and were cutting canvas into ragged pieces.

The five were extraordinarily well dressed for curtain-makers, and Collins grabbed the hand of one.

"You're a fine-looking workman," he declared. "You're pinched."

The rest of the five were arrested also. Among them was Tom Callaghan of 304 West Tenth Street, said by the police to be the proprietor.

$100,000 EASTER FINERY HELD UP

Trunks of 40 Returning Milliners and Dressmakers Carefully Revalued by Appraisers.

DECLARATIONS TOO LOW

Thousands Saved to Government by New Method—Two Women Who Said They Got Bargains Abroad Penalized.

In the last ten days the trunks of some forty returning milliners and dressmakers, containing goods which Surveyor Henry conservatively valued at $100,000, have been sent from the steamship piers to the Appraisers' Stores. The homeward rush of those in the trade bringing the latest styles for the Easter season is now on, and the Collector is determined that there will be no opportunity to cheat the Government by undervaluation. He has ordered that all trunks containing gowns not for personal use shall be sent to the Appraisers' Stores, where the Appraisers can examine each article with care to determine its true value.

The order has caused much complaint among those who expected that the customs men would either accept without question the valuation given in the declarations made on shipboard or appraise the goods on the piers so that they could be at once put into the trade.

Easter finery may be delayed in being put on sale, and the officials admit that in some cases the delay may mean loss, but everything possible is being done to hurry the Appraisers. It was said at the Custom House yesterday that the careful examinations would probably mean a saving of thousands of dollars to the Government. Many of those bringing in the goods, it was predicted, would be surprised by the Government valuation.

Two young women who arrived here a few days ago on the French liner Lorraine can testify to the thoroughness of the customs men. Miss Ella M. Croker, a dressmaker, brought in a number of Parisian gowns which, in her declaration, she valued at $300. The trunks were sent to the Appraisers' Stores and the Appraisers made the value $570.

On the same steamship came Miss E. T. White, who brought with her about a dozen model silk gowns. These she declared were worth $383. The Appraisers made it $622. After hearing the case the Legal Division of the Custom House declared that the women should not only be made to pay the duty, but should be penalized for their undervaluation.

Both women appealed to the Secretary of the Treasury. Through their lawyers they set up the defense that they had been perfectly honest in giving the prices of their foreign purchases. They declared that they had picked the gowns up at a bargain, and while their value might be more than the price paid, they should only be made to pay the duty on the cost to them. The Secretary decided against them.

In consequence it is probable that all profit on their importations is gone. Miss Croker, in addition to the duty paid on an estimated value of $300, had to pay an additional duty and penalties amounting to $545. Miss White had to pay, besides the duty upon the declared value of $383, the further sum of $530 in duty and penalties.

Customs men on the piers say now that there is very little attempt to evade the payment of duty by arriving passengers, and in nearly every case the passenger's declaration can be taken as a true estimate of values.

PLATINUM $43 AN OUNCE.

Price Now Is the Highest Ever—Far Costlier Than Gold.

Platinum, which is far more costly than gold, has been advancing rapidly in price in the last few weeks. Yesterday it was quoted in Maiden Lane at $43 an ounce for hard platinum and $41 an ounce for the soft metal. These are the highest prices ever reached, and indicate an advance of about $10 an ounce in the last six months.

The present upward movement in platinum was nearly equaled several years ago. In 1905 pure platinum was selling at $18.50 with only a languid demand. Early in 1906 the sales began to increase, and prices steadily advanced until in December of that year pure platinum was selling at $38 an ounce, and hard platinum touched $40. That was the highest level it reached. A decline started in February of 1907 and continued until August of 1908, when the price had again declined to less than $20 an ounce. The present upward movement started soon afterward, but was not brisk until within the past six months.

The production of platinum in this country is small, for all that is obtained comes as a by-product in working the gold placers of California and Oregon.

The chief source of supply is the Ural Mountains, in Russia, but some is also obtained from Colombia, South America, and from Canada.

TOWN SITE PROMOTER GUILTY

Jury Finds Seattle Man, Worth $7,000,000, Committed a Felony.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 10.—Clarence D. Hillman, a wealthy townsite promoter, to-day was found guilty in the Federal Court of using the mails to defraud. The jury was out twenty-four hours. It acquitted him on the indictments charging a misdemeanor, but convicted him on thirteen counts of an indictment charging a felony.

The maximum penalty for each of the thirteen counts is five years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

Counsel for Hillman gave notice of a motion for a new trial. Judge Donworth increased Hillman's bond from $30,000 to $100,000, and remanded him to the custody of the Marshal until bail should be furnished.

Hillman, whose fortune is estimated at $7,000,000, was indicted last August. He was convicted in 1906 on a similar charge, but obtained a new trial by order of the United States Supreme Court. He was not retried in that case.

$10,000 JEWEL THEFT FROM O. E. STEVENS

Burglars Looted the Engineer's Apartment Without a Servant Being Awakened.

MAY BE "CHLOROFORM GANG"

Alarm for Stolen Wedding Gifts and Family Heirlooms Sent to Every City in the Country.

Gems worth nearly $10,000, stolen from the home of Oscar E. Stevens, 129 East Seventeenth Street, are being sought throughout the United States by the police and private detectives. Extra precautions are also being taken by the police of the East Twenty-second Street Station as a result of this robbery, because two years ago the district was the scene of operations of the notorious "chloroform burglars," who drugged their victims, and thought that the burglars who robbed the Stevens home, getting in their loot several wedding gifts of the young couple as well as heirlooms which cannot be replaced, may have been members of the old gang.

Mr. Stevens is an engineer with the Western Electric Company. He is a son of Mrs. Berkeley Mostyn of 55 East Seventy-sixth Street.

Only two maids and two-year-old Caroline, the only child of young Mr. and Mrs. Stevens and the namesake of her mother, who was Miss Caroline Morgan, daughter of Col. R. H. Morgan of New Bedford, Mass., were in the Stevens home on Tuesday night when the burglary was committed. The Stevens home is in a duplex apartment on the top floor of the old-fashioned dwelling in Seventeenth Street. Its additional rooms are in a superimposed story, which extends over the rear of the house and is occupied as a laundry and as living quarters for two maids.

Mary Molloy, the cook, slept on Tuesday night in her own room in this upper story, shut off from the lower part of the house by a heavy door, leading from the kitchen into a private hall giving on the stairs by which the upper story is reached. This door is equipped with a spring lock, so that once in their own apartments the maids practically are in another flat, so far as access to the Stevens home goes. The burglars did not ascend to the upper floor, apparently concluding that discovery could not come from there.

Margaret Shevlin, waitress and nurse, who usually sleeps on the upper floor also, remained with her small charge on Tuesday night, in the absence of the child's parents. Neither the child nor the maid exhibited any signs of having been drugged when they awoke on Wednesday morning, but the East Twenty-second Street police, who were notified immediately of the robbery, considered it significant that Mary Molloy had been compelled to hammer on the kitchen door and shout to Margaret for many minutes before either the maid or the child awoke.

Then the nurse ran to the kitchen door to find that a heavy bolt which is never employed except when every one leaves the apartment at the same time, had been shot into place so that Mary, the cook, was unable to open the door with the key. Evidently the burglars had shot this bolt. On the kitchen floor lay Mrs. Stevens's jewel case. In it were an old-fashioned brooch, a pearl necklace, and several other trifles. These articles had disappeared:

A ring set with a large emerald and a diamond on each side of it; worth $3,000.

A diamond necklace of thirty-five stones, each of half carat; worth $3,000.

A ring set with a three-carat diamond and three smaller diamonds; worth $800.

A diamond pendant with scrolls of platinum; worth $500.

A two-carat diamond ring; worth $300.

A Tiffany gold watch and chain; worth $250.

A sapphire and ruby ring; worth $250.

A necklace of three strings of pearls, with turquoise set at frequent intervals; worth $300.

A pendant of pink sapphires and tourmalines; worth $150.

A sapphire ring with a diamond on each side; worth $125.

In addition there was missing a gold watch and chain fifty years old and priceless because of its associations.

Early on Tuesday Mr. Stevens had gone to Boston to attend the funeral of Judge Lovell, an old friend, and in the evening Mrs. Stevens had taken dinner with Mrs. Philip Hiss of 48 West Eleventh Street, attended the theatre afterward, and later telephoned home that she would spend the night with her friends.

It was 7:30 o'clock when the maids discovered the robbery. Fearing to alarm Mrs. Stevens, they telephoned to the home of Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, aunt of young Mr. Stevens, at 70 West Forty-ninth Street, where the latter's brother-in-law, G. G. Schroeder of Dongan Hills, S. I., was visiting. Mr. Schroeder hastened at once to the Stevens home, and from there notified Capt. Foy of the East Twenty-second Street Station, who, with Detective Flannery, hurried to the house.

They were making an examination of the house, the disorder in which showed that burglars had ransacked it at their leisure, when Mrs. Stevens telephoned from Mrs. Hiss's home.

"Is everything all right, Mary?" she asked, and the girl, with the knowledge of the robbery, could not dissimulate. As she tried to frame an answer, Mrs. Stevens, terrified at her silence, demanded to know if anything were the matter with little Caroline, and then without waiting for a reply, hung up the receiver and a few moments later reached her own home in a state of anxiety and excitement.

Her feelings were scarcely allayed by the discovery of the robbery. The diamond and emerald ring, she said, had been a wedding present from an uncle of her husband and the pendant and scrolls of platinum were his own gift to her. The diamond necklace was a wedding present from her own family.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Stevens, who returned home as soon as possible and directed a search for the jewels. Descriptions of the gems were telegraphed to every city and town in the United States, and particular care was taken that every pawnshop received a minute description of the jewels with instructions to watch for them and immediately notify the police.

The Stevens home, while in what is still a good residential district, is surrounded by a section of different character. It is not far from Fourteenth Street and Third Avenue, nor from the rendezvous of many characters of the underworld. The police believe that professional burglars might have seen Mrs. Stevens entering or leaving a carriage in front of her home and have noted the jewels she wore. Her home is in an old-fashioned building without an elevator, and is only five stories high.

Adjoining it is a four-story building, from the roof of which a ladder leads to the roof of the Stevens home. There is also a fire escape in the rear. None of the doors showed the marks of a jimmy, and the police believe the thieves either entered by the cellar and then ascended the fire escape or came from the adjoining house, through which they climbed to the roof and descended from the Stevens room by the ladder. A kitchen window was found open.

The presence of the jewel case and the abandoned jewelry on the kitchen floor has puzzled the police. Either the thieves must have abandoned it as of little value or they were interrupted in their work by the descent of Mary, the cook, from her quarters above.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Chicago's death rate in 1910 was the highest since 1907, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Health W. A. Evans issued to-day. The report which gives the rate as 15.2 per cent. scores the city council for refusing to spend enough money to take advantage of the latest scientific discoveries for disease preventation. Chicago is now seventh in the list of cities fighting disease.

More suicides and accidental deaths occurred in the last ten years than ever before in Chicago's history.

NEWPORT HOME BURNS.

J. J. Coogan Has a $40,000 Blaze at His Summer Place.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 10.—White Hall, the Summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Coogan on Catherine Street, was practically ruined by fire this morning, together with valuable pieces of art, including many oil paintings.

The interior of the Colonial-designed house was soon a mass of flames and smoke, preventing firemen from entering. They were driven back several times. They played upon the flames with powerful streams of water for several hours until the fire was under control. The cause of the blaze is attributed to an overheated furnace. The damage is estimated at from $40,000 to $50,000 at least, covered by $80,000 insurance.

CHANLER JURY DISAGREE.

Case Tried in Mineola, Where Mrs. Brennan Sued on a Contract.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., March 10.—After being out for five hours to-day a jury in the Supreme Court, before Justice Jaycox, reported that they could not agree in the case of Margaret Brennan vs. William Astor Chanler. The cause of action occurred in Mexico, Margaret Brennan, suing as assignee of her husband, William J. Brennan, whom, she contended, had entered into an agreement with Chanler to obtain contracts for work in Mexico, one being for a sewer and street widening in Tampico. Another contract was for a pier in Vera Cruz.

Brennan said that he had long been a resident of Mexico; that Chanler promised to give him $20,000 in two payments for getting the contracts. He said he received only the first $10,000.

Chanler set up in his defense that there had only been one contract.

LIKES ABBOTT LAMPOON.

Lowell Says Harvard Cartoon Is a Good Joke—Won't Suppress Edition.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 10.—President Lowell of Harvard will not suppress the present or subsequent editions of The Harvard Lampoon.

So he told the editors of the publication to-day. Furthermore, the President assured his callers that he thought the publication of the cartoon of Dr. Lyman Abbott and Miss Eva Tanguay, depicted respectively as Mercury and Venus, a good joke, and said he believed the venerable New York editor would so regard it.

The Lampoon will publish a second edition next week. President Lowell jestingly told the editors: "Hurry and get it off the press before I suppress the first edition."

MAYOR TO CHILD ACTRESS.

Tells Juliet Shelby, to Whom He Gave Permit, He's Glad She's Happy.

Little Juliet Shelby, the child actress whose eloquence persuaded Mayor Gaynor to overrule a decision of the Gerry Society and issue a permit for her to appear with Dustin Farnum in "The Littlest Rebel," received a letter from the Mayor yesterday of which she is very proud. She was so glad to receive the permission to play that she wrote to his Honor expressing her thanks and sending a pass to the Colonial Theatre, in which she was appearing. Yesterday she got the following reply:

> March 9, 1911.
>
> My Dear Little Friend:
>
> I should be most glad to go and see you play, but you know I have so many things to do that I cannot go everywhere. I am glad that you are as happy as you say. Everybody ought to be happy. It does no good to be any other way. When anything discouraging or annoying happens, just say to yourself: "Well, it is all right. The next time something good will happen," and then you will feel bully. Sincerely yours,
>

Boy Whom a Subway Special Policeman Arrested Was Deaf and Dumb.

Special Officer Charles Ridel of the Interborough Company led a seven-year-old boy into the East Twenty-second Street Station last night. The six-foot "special" arraigned the less-than-three-foot youngster before Lieut. Sharkey on the charge of soliciting alms at the foot of the stairway of the elevated station at First Avenue and Fourteenth Street.

In response to the Lieutenant's demand for details the officer said that the boy was a "panhandler," that he solicited money, and tried to take nickels from the hands of passengers. When the Lieutenant attempted to question the lad he discovered he was deaf and dumb.

Patrolman Sirello was instructed to go out with the little fellow. The boy did not know the sign language, and the Lieutenant hoped that the boy would lead the policeman to his home; in that way they would be able to learn his identity. The child led the policeman to 166 East Thirteenth Street. There he found that his diminutive prisoner was Salvatore Serio; that the lad's father was an invalid, and that the mother supported her child, her husband, and herself by sewing. She earned 40 cents a day, and the family had one room.

Mrs. Serio returned to the station with the boy. There she pledged his appearance in the Children's Court to-day and he was placed in her custody. Lieut. Sharkey started a contribution. All the policemen gave something, and the money was handed to the mother as she left the station. She gave tearful thanks.

TAFT AND KNOX REPORTED SPLIT ON MEXICO PLAN

Secretary of State and His Assistant Said to Disapprove Big Army Movement.

MEXICO WANTS NO INVASION

Ambassador and Minister Sharply Declare That Foreign Interference Will Not Be Tolerated.

MORE TROOPS MAY GATHER

REBELS PUSHING CAMPAIGN

Agua Prieta and Casas Grandes May Fall—Yaquis Join Wide Insurrecto Uprising in Yucatan.

This dispatch was received from President Diaz by THE NEW YORK TIMES last night:

Mexico City, March 10, 1911.
Times, New York—Enterado mi salud es completa.
PORFIRIO DIAZ

Here is a translation of the dispatch: Times, New York—Yours received, my health is perfect.

Remarkable reports came from the State Department in Washington yesterday bearing on the action of President Taft in mobilizing an army near the Mexican border.

Secretary Knox and Acting Secretary Wilson were said to be out of sympathy with Mr. Taft in this matter, and to wish to avoid responsibility. Mr. Taft gained much of his information from reports made by secret agents of the Departments of War and Justice, and is said to have largely ignored the State Department in the whole transaction.

Ambassador de la Barra in Washington and Minister Limantour in New York issued sharp statements in reply to intimations that our troops might cross into Mexico to stop disorder. They agreed that no Government in that country would consent to such action, and the people would resent it.

A statement inspired by the German Government declared that it would not interfere even if the United States should decide to annex Mexico.

More Troops May be Sent.

That more troops may go to the frontier was stated by high army officials. Certain organizations of regulars have been warned to be in readiness to help form a second division, and inquiries have been addressed to National Guard officials as to the forces that could be furnished if the necessity arose.

Troops and naval forces are now gathering at the various places designated in Texas and California. National Guard officers have responded enthusiastically to the invitation to go to the camps.

The Government intends to take strong action to stop aid from reaching the rebels from the United States, and action is likely against some of the juntas in this country.

Reports of rebel activity in Mexico come from many sources. The Madero forces have captured part of Casas Grandes after a stubborn fight. Gen. Blanco and other commanders are gathering before Agua Prieta, a border town of importance, and are likely to capture it. In Yucatan there has been a rising of the hard-fighting Yaqui Indians, and the outbreak there seems to be extensive. At least two towns have been captured, one of which, has been renamed Madero. The Socialist forces in the West will march against Ensenada.

MEXICAN DIPLOMATS ANXIOUS.

Government Would Not Permit Invasion—More Troops May Be Sent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—President Taft's Charlotteville dispatch has been treated here to-day in diplomatic circles as a disavowal that does not disavow. No well-informed diplomat pretends to believe it or place any confidence in it.

The Mexican Embassy is even more disturbed than it has been heretofore. The dispatch which on Tuesday was sent to the Mexican Foreign Minister through the American Chargé d'Affaires has been many times to-day compared with the Charlotteville dispatch, and the Mexican Ambassador has not been able to quell his anxiety at the situation. It is certain beyond any equivocation that the Mexican Government would not welcome the coming of the United States forces to put down the insurrection and restore order throughout the country. Ambassador de la Barra here and Minister Limantour in New York went to the extent of saying so in plain language to-day.

It was noticeable to-day that the absence of President Taft from Washington served to induce a quiet to which some of the departments had not been accustomed of late. To-night, for the first time this week, the officers of the General Staff of the army were not required to be at the War Department until a late hour. Huntington Wilson, the Acting Secretary of State, came to the department to-day for the first time since the order was given by the President to move the troops. He has been slightly indisposed since Tuesday and has had as little to do with the Mexican embroglio as he could possibly have.

It is believed in the State Department that Mr. Knox is now in Florida for somewhat similar reasons as those that Mr. Wilson is said to hold. Neither the Secretary nor his Assistant are regarded by leading officials in the State Department as being in sympathy with the course that has been taken.

Secret Reports to President.

For one thing, there is a feeling that the President has acted after resorting to an unusual means of getting information outside of the State Department. Reports have been sent of late from various parts of Mexico from secret agents of the Department of Justice and from those of the Treasury Department, all of which, together with reports from army officers in the organizations sent to the Texas boundary in January, have gone directly to the President.

State Department officials are authority for the statement that Secretary Knox and Mr. Wilson resent the situation in which they are placed, and do not like the President's action in dealing directly with the War Department in a political question where the ordinary course would have been to act through the State Department. The absence of any understanding between this country and Mexico before the order to move the troops, it is asserted now at the State Department, will make the future dealings with Mexico exceedingly difficult.

Ambassador Says No Invasion.

Ambassador de la Barra's statement today evidently bore on the dispatches from the President's train last evening, which intimated strongly the possibility of the American army crossing the frontier. The statement reads:

> The conditions in Mexico are normal, with the exception of a small portion of the State of Chihuahua, where a little body of seditious men are carrying on a guerrilla warfare that I hope to be finished in the near future. The Mexican Government is fully strong enough to protect properties and lives of its countrymen and those from foreign countries, and to maintain peace.
>
> The best elements of Mexican citizenship are in favor of maintaining peace and order, and that explains why the seditious movement has been reduced to the guerrilla warfare in the northern section of Chihuahua. Reports published about the growth of the seditious movement have been untrue and exaggerated.
>
> The Constitution of Mexico forbids the Government officials, whoever they be, to permit foreign troops entering Mexican territory without the consent of the Senate. My Government, patriotic and strong, has never and never will entertain such an idea or thought.

In view of the known friendliness this Government has always manifested toward the Diaz régime there is a tendency in certain quarters to believe Señor de la Barra's statement is aimed to quiet clamor at home that might be aroused if it were suspected that the Diaz Government were seeking foreign intervention. It is pointed out that President Taft, who is almost overscrupulous in his dealings with foreign nations, wired President Diaz that there was no occasion for "concern" on the part of our friendly nations to the south in the manoeuvres planning for the Texan frontier.

May Move Against Juntas.

Meanwhile this Government is preparing to go to extraordinary lengths in enforcing the neutrality laws along the Mexican frontier. Already enough soldiers have been ordered there to make a cordon of about sixteen men to the mile the whole length of the frontier.

It can now be stated that the Administration does not feel that it is limited to military means in its efforts to give President Diaz an opportunity to put down the insurrection. On high authority it is said that the Administration feels that financing a revolution, or organizing it, or aiding it, from American territory is as much a violation of our neutrality laws as is crossing the frontier with arms in hand. No one here would be surprised to hear shortly of strong measure taken against the Mexican juntas in Los Angeles and elsewhere.

The attitude of the United States is absolutely plain on this point. This country is not a signatory to the Washington Conventions aimed at the putting down of filibustering attacks from one country into another, but it was party to the conventions in an advisory capacity, and it is constantly appealed to when the conventions are violated. The United States feels now that those conventions would become farcical unless our own Government, besides discouraging offenses in other countries, sees to it that our own ports are not used for fitting out expeditions against an existing Government in another country. The same thing is true of expeditions crossing the Rio Grande, and it looks now as though those expeditions will come to an end.

Other Troops Held in Readiness.

The possibility of having a second army division on the Mexican border, which was outlined in these dispatches last night, was to-day openly admitted by army officers. They said that no more troops had been ordered to the front yet, and none would be sent in the near future, but certain organizations had been told to be in readiness to move at short notice, and the number so placed in readiness with the independent brigade of cavalry and the 6,000 troops now forming a cordon on the international boundary would form the second division.

It was stated that even a third division might be sent down, the latter from the National Guard. To-day telegrams were sent to Adjutants General of the States asking what available strength their National Guard organizations could send, and how much time would be required to move them. The plan is to order the National Guard thirty days before they would be needed. All this is conditioned on the turn of events in the next month, and none of the troops mentioned may be needed any time. Gen. Wood still expects to go down to the Mexican line the latter part of April or the middle of May and to remain a month. If the second and third divisions should be put in the field he would not improbably take command of the army corps.

Major Gen. William H. Carter, commander of the division which is concentrating at San Antonio, is expected to arrive at the Texas post to-morrow. Reports to the War Department indicate that by that time nearly all of the troops which will form the division will have reported. Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, is the furthest removed from the places of rendezvous, and it is thought that its garrison will reach San Antonio by Sunday and certainly not later than Monday.

Orders which had been issued for the Thirteenth Infantry to sail for the Philippines on April 4 and for the Seventh Infantry, now in the Philippines, to embark for this country on May 15, have been canceled, because the former regiment has been ordered from Fort Leavenworth to San Antonio. It was said at the War Department to-day that this is the only cancellation of orders affecting the transfer of troops which is contemplated, and that there is no intention of ordering back to this country any portion of the army now in the Philippines or elsewhere outside the country.

Gen. Robert K. Evans, in charge of the militia division of the War Department, to-day received a number of telegrams from the Adjutants General of the States and Territories indicating that the invitation extended to the militia officers of the country is being enthusiastically received. The replies encourage the belief that every State and Territory in the Union and the District of Columbia will want to be adequately represented in the operations along the frontier.

There are 8,000 militia officers and it is expected that more that can be accommodated will except the invitation. In that case they will be divided pro rata among the States and Territories and the District of Columbia. As soon as all the Adjutant General of the country have been heard from, the War Department will take up with the commanding Generals in the field the question of the number of militia officers whose desire to enter active service can be granted.

Major Von Herwarth, the Military Attaché of the German Embassy here, left Washington to-night with Brig. Gen. Garlington, Inspector General of the United States Army, for San Antonio.

The navy is carrying out its part in the operations just as though the sudden and extensive preparations of war vessels for active duty was a part of the humdrum of every-day life. Three ships of the Fifth Division of the Atlantic fleet are now en route to Guantanamo, Cuba. The armored cruiser Washington, the remaining unit of the division, which is undergoing repairs at the Portsmouth, N. H., Navy Yard, will be ready for duty on March 15, when she will be sent to join her division.

The scout cruiser Chester and the gunboat Tacoma are to sail along the Mexican Coast, stopping at two or three ports. The Navy Department does not call the movement a patrol—in fact, says the vessels are to move under no orders of such character, and that they are merely carrying out their part of the manoeuvres. The Tacoma sailed yesterday from Puerto Cortez, Honduras. She is to proceed to Galveston, stopping at one or more Mexican ports on the way. The Chester is to arrive at Tampico to-morrow. From there she will sail south, touching at Vera Cruz and Tuxpan.

TAFT PLAN STIRS LIMANTOUR.

Talk of Intervention Offensive to Mexico, Declares Finance Minister.

Señor José Yves Limantour, Mexican Minister of Finance for many years, and regarded by many as the most powerful man of his republic excepting only President Diaz himself, in a carefully prepared statement given to the press yesterday at the Hotel Plaza, where he is stopping, served notice that both he and his country regard the popular talk about American intervention in Mexico's affairs as offensive to them and without warrant.

He let it be understood that he felt humiliated at such talk, and expressly stated that he could not even conceive of such a condition of affairs as to justify this or any other country in interfering with the internal government of Mexico. He wanted it explicitly understood that his country was able and stood ready to protect both the property of Mexicans and that of foreigners there, and that any suggestion or offer of help from the outside would be considered an affront.

"Mexico," he said with emphasis, "can never allow any other Government to interfere in the management of its affairs."

Here is his statement in full:

"While undoubtedly the ideas regarding this matter which President Taft is reported to have expressed yesterday while en route to the South will have a further reassuring effect, I consider it quite untrue, as reported, that representations have been made by responsible persons to President Taft or to other high officials at Washington of a general uprising in Mexico in the near future, or that President Diaz's health is in a precarious condition.

"The latest authoritative news from Mexico shows improvement in the general situation and that President Diaz is attending to his duties as usual.

Regrets Intervention Talk.

"I regret exceedingly that so much has been said in the newspapers regarding the possibility of intervention in Mexico by the United States Government. I cannot conceive of a situation in my country which would warrant such action. My Government will protect not only the interests of our own people but those of foreigners as well. Under no circumstances could my Government consider the matter of intervention for a moment, because Mexico can never allow any other Government to interfere in the management of its affairs.

"All talk of intervention by any of the foreign Governments is extremely offensive to Mexico. We simply wish to be treated as a self-respecting Government, as any other established Government is treated. Although there have been disturbances for some time in certain European countries similar to those which have been going on in Northwestern Mexico for several months, there has not been the slightest intimation of intervention on the part of any one of the stronger Governments of Europe, although the foreign interests in those European countries in which the disturbances have occurred are large.

"It is generally known that the insurrectionists of Mexico have smuggled arms and supplies across the Texas border. Obviously the stationing of a large force of United States troops in that section will lessen and probably stop the smuggling altogether. The presence of the troops should also have a decidedly salutary effect on the insurrectionists in Northwestern Mexico. More than this, I cannot believe that the United States Government contemplates in the mobilization of troops."

Gets News in Cipher.

Señor Limantour received another long cipher telegram from the State Department of his country yesterday, the message being addressed to him in care of the General Consulate at 82 Broadway. It was there transcribed by Señor Romero, the Consul General, and his son, and by the former was taken with all haste to Señor Limantour. While the text of this message was not given out, it was stated at the Consulate that it represented affairs generally in Mexico in a state of peace and freedom from disturbance of any kind except the Madero insurrection. As to this the message said that it was not only not spreading, but that the Government's efforts to suppress it had been renewed and strengthened, with every promise of early success. President Diaz, it was stated, was reported as in unimpaired health.

In addition to this Vice Consul Manuel A. Esteva said a friend of his had just come in to report receiving a telegram from a correspondent in Mexico City who said that he saw President Diaz at the aviation meet on Wednesday. That was the day after President Taft issued the orders for the movement of troops south, and in Vice Consul Esteva's judgment this eliminated President Diaz's health from all consideration in seeking a reason for President Taft's course.

Among Señor Limantour's callers yesterday was W. B. Joyce, President of the National Surety Company, 115 Broadway, who wanted to learn if the risks of his country in Mexico were in danger. Mr. Joyce's company is said to have practically a monopoly in bonding the Postmasters, Paymasters, and other Government employes of Mexico. He particularly wanted to know if there was any danger of Government employes decamping to the revolutionists and taking the Government money with them.

As he was leaving the hotel Mr. Joyce said:

"I am entirely satisfied that President Diaz is in a satisfactory condition, both mentally and physically. He is at the present time working at his desk night and day. Señor Limantour assured me there is no warrant for the sensational articles that have appeared. I am also entirely satisfied that the Government officials in Mexico fully able to cope with conditions existing."

Financiers Call Again.

President A. C. Charlot of the El Triunfa Consolidated Mining Company, 115 Broadway, which has mining interests in Mexico, was also a caller on Señor Limantour. Soon after 6 o'clock, at which hour Señor Limantour returned from the first outing he had since he reached the city on last Tuesday night, he had another visit from James Speyer of Speyer & Co., bankers, and Walter T. Rosen of Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co.

The Bankers remained only a short time, but appeared to be in a cheerful frame of mind when they departed. Neither would say anything about the nature of the conference, nor would they discuss the Mexican situation.

Another caller was Walbridge S. Taft, son of Henry W. Taft and nephew of President Taft. He remained some time with the Mexican Minister, and when he came out he said that his visit was to carry his father's regrets to Señor Limantour that he could not call upon him because he was in Atlantic City for a few days. Henry W. Taft is counsel for the Mexican National Railway.

Bradley Webster Palmer, a lawyer of 25 Broad Street and Boston, who is a Director of the National Railway Company of Mexico and represents several American interests in that country, also called on Señor Limantour. Later he said:

"Mr. Limantour spoke of the land tax that is causing a great deal of dissatisfaction in the agricultural districts, which he says will be modified shortly. That is the law which allows uncultivated land to go free while the cultivated lands are taxed."

Madero's Brother Not Worried.

Outwardly, at least, Gustavo Madero, brother of Francisco A. Madero, leader of the Mexican revolutionary movement, who recently said that the insurrectos would be shot like cows if they didn't win, did not seem to be in the smallest degree disturbed yesterday by the inspired report that the United States was joining hands with Diaz in puncturing his brother's dream of empire.

"As a matter of fact," said he, "the insurrectos will be in Mexico City on May 5."

When some one asked whether he meant they would be there as guests of President Diaz, he replied:

"No, Sir, but to raise a new flag on the Mexican Capitol."

"The United States," he went on, "is within its rights, of course, in taking measures to stop the smuggling of arms from this country into Mexico and moving its troops as it pleases, but for it to indicate that it wants to end the revolt is one step beyond its proper sphere, and is in effect support of the Diaz Government against the will of probably 95 per cent. of the Mexican people. The United States has no right to give aid in crushing the revolutionary movement.

"The Mexican people will never accept any ruler forced upon them by a foreign power. As a matter of fact, I hardly believe that President Taft intends any such action."

Madero reiterated his high opinion of Señor Limantour, who, he said, was an honest man, standing almost alone as such among a great majority of the office holders of Mexico.

REBELS ARE ACTIVE AT MANY PLACES

Madero Forces Capture Part of Casas Grandes and Blanco Menaces Agua Prieta.

YAQUIS FIGHT IN YUCATAN

Help to Kill Planters and Repulse Soldiers—Town Is Captured and Renamed Madero.

EL PASO, Texas, March 10.—Reports are being received here from many quarters of activity of Mexican rebels and of measures taken by the United States Army patrol to prevent any assistance reaching the Mexican insurrectos. Chief interest centres in the stubborn fighting at Casas Grandes and in the gathering of a large force near Agua Prieta, an important railroad station across the border from Douglas, Arizona.

Although the reports yesterday had the rebel forces at Casas Grandes decisively defeated and driven back to the mountains, there was a change in their tone to-day. It appears that Col. Garcia, who is commanding the rebels, has returned to the attack, and he is said to have captured part of the town, with the federals stubbornly fighting to drive him out. The federal forces are commanded by one of the best officers in the Mexican Army, Col. Cuellar. He was formerly one of President Diaz's personal aids, but was sent to the front to help restore the effectiveness of the army when Orozco had gained his decisive victories over the Diaz troops west of Chihuahua City. The fighting has been desperate and the losses on both sides are reported as heavy. Among the dead are believed to be fifteen Americans who served under Capt. Carrington with the machine gun detachment of the Madero forces. Thirty-five Americans of this detachment were captured in yesterday's engagement.

Large bodies of insurrectos are said to be gathering in the vicinity of Agua Prieta. Gen. Blanco is believed to be the chief of the commanders, but several other leaders have come up. There is great fear in the town, as there are only fifty defenders for it, half of whom are citizen volunteers. There are no machine guns, and the little garrison probably will be overwhelmed. The American border patrol, Troop M of the Third Cavalry, last night prevented reinforcements for the rebels from crossing the border. When Capt. Johnson learned of the approach of the insurrecto bands he established a thorough watch. Mexican refugees in Douglas also were informed of the movement across the frontier, and many of them, loaded with arms and ammunition, went toward Mexico. The cavalry rounded up about 150 of them and put them under arrest. They are being held here on charges of attempted violation of the neutrality laws. Word has come from the authorities of Agua Prieta that any one attempting to cross the river will be shot.

News reached here this morning of a fight at the San Augustine Ranch, in Mexico, directly opposite Fabens and twenty-eight miles east of El Paso, between a band of 68 insurrectos, about half of whom were Americans, and 135 Federals, under Lieut. Col. Pueblita, sent out from Juarez yesterday. Twenty of the insurrectos came across the river and were captured and disarmed by Capt. Lindsey, U. S. A. Ten were armed with Mauser rifles. Three horses and a quantity of ammunition were taken. The insurrecto officers quit their men early in the fight. The insurrectos were part of a band that has been concentrating around Juarez, with a view to assaulting that town, it is said.

Col. Rabago has reported to the authorities at Juarez that he will soon have the railroad line to Chihuahua City reopened. He has had a hard march from this city, but has rebuilt burned bridges and restored the telegraph lines.

MERIDA, Yucatan, Mex., March 10.—In a hand-to-hand battle between a small detachment of Government troops and a body of rebels, who had captured the hacienda Catmis, near Quintana, Roo Antonio and Enrique Cicerol, planters, were killed.

The rebels, through arrangements with the laborers, who are Yaqui Indians, seized the hacienda Wednesday, notwithstanding the defense put up by a few of the loyal servants. A messenger carried the news of the raid to a small body of troops under command of Major Cristobal Carrillo, who immediately hastened to the attack. Armed with machetes and other tools, as well as firearms, the insurrectos rushed to the encounter. Their overwhelming numbers forced the retreat of the troops, but not before a number were slain.

Madero is the name the insurrectos have given the town of Peto, which they captured a few days ago.

Yesterday a detachment of Federal troops sent from Vera Cruz was landed at Progreso and proceeded to the relief of Temax.

MEXICALI, Mexico, March 10.—By order of the Mexican junta at Los Angeles the insurrecto army in Mexicali to-night prepared to leave to meet the Government troops on their own ground. The capture of Ensenada is the ultimate object of Gens. Leyva and Berthold.

The insurgents number 145, five of whom are Americans. Twenty-five armed Indians joined the rebels to-day. Gen. Berthold said he would have 400 men before reaching Ensenada. He will march by way of Tecarte and Tia Juana. Ricardo Flores Magon, leader of the Los Angeles junta, is said to be coming to Mexicali to join the advancing army.

Jose Cordoza and forty-five followers who deserted the rebel army several days ago have been firing on the rebel outposts southeast of Mexicali recently.

"AMERICA ON WARPATH."

German Naval Writer Sneers at Our Methods with Revolutions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 10.—The anti-American German press keeps on harping about the Machiavellian character of the United States diplomatic military and naval operations in that part of Latin North America. Count von Reventlow, the famous naval writer, publishes a bitter and sarcastic article in to-night's Deutsch Tages-Zeitung entitled "The United States on the Warpath."

He asserts that the events of the last seventy-two hours are another exhibition of the "Familiar methods of the United States, by which revolutions are permitted to start and situations thus created exploited for the gratification of American wishes, which, under normal conditions, would not be regarded as exactly legitimate, and therefore, incapable of realization."

The Count goes on in a similar strain to the extent of two columns, winding up his diatribe with the following observation:

"The enthusiasm with which, we are told, America is filled over the prospect of getting into action in Mexico will possibly soon be followed by heroic deeds on the part of American soldiers such as the world has never seen before. In the public glorification of endless victories the Americans, as we all know, are past masters."

COLOGNE, March 11.—The Cologne Gazette to-day prints an inspired dispatch from Berlin dealing with the American Government's concentration of troops along the Mexican frontier and warships in the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific Ocean.

"No news has reached Berlin," the dispatch says, "indicating that the persons or property of German citizens are endangered in Mexico; hence the German Government has had no occasion to discuss what measures for their protection are necessary.

"If trouble breaks out in the Mexican ports and it is seen that the Mexican authorities are unable to protect German citizens, Germany would exercise a clear right, which has ever been unreservedly recognized by the United States, to send warships thither. But this would be far different from mixing in the internal affairs of Mexico.

"Even if the present troubles in Mexico lead to a complete revolution, and even if the United States is invited to annex that country, or to undertake its annexation without the consent of the Mexican authorities, Germany certainly would not be a Don Quixote and whip out the rapier.

"How the American States agree or disagree is their own affair. No danger threatens the Monroe Doctrine from our quarter. It makes no difference to us whether it sleeps in the archives or is taken out and dusted."

The above dispatch to The Cologne Gazette was called forth as an answer to insinuations of the English press that Germany was watching for an opportunity to interfere in Mexico.

MONROE DOCTRINE THE CAUSE.

London Spectator Says So—Hopes We Will Act Sharply in Mexico.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 10.—Reviewing the situation in which the United States and Mexico now find themselves, the Spectator has a leading editorial this week, and a special explanatory article running to two and a half columns. The paper declares that the Monroe Doctrine is in reality the only cause which has set the armed forces of the United States in motion.

The views of the situation expressed are decidely favorable to the United States, and the article concludes:

"Every well-wisher of America and every supporter of the Monroe Doctrine, like ourselves, will hope that the American action, whatever it may be, will be short, sharp and decisive, and that order may be very quickly restored in Mexico. Happily, the Americans have in Gen. Leonard Wood a soldier and statesman of great capacity, as well as of high character and long experience."

ARMY BUYS AEROPLANES.

Curtiss and Wright Machines to be Used on the Border.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 10.—The Government to-day completed arrangements with Glenn H. Curtiss for two of the three biplanes which he now has at San Diego. These will be used along the boundary for patrol duty. Lieuts. Ellyson and J. C. Walker, who have been students of aviation under Curtiss for the last month, will operate them.

The information was brought from San Diego to-day by Lieut. Walker, who was wildly enthusiastic.

"We expect to be able to patrol two hundred miles of the border," he said. "At San Antonio Philip Parmalee, I understand, is to operate one of two Wright machines and there should be considerable work to do at both camps, that will be of value in determining just what good aeroplanes will do in warfare."

CAR OF ARMY HORSES BURNED.

Troop Train Ablaze on the Way to the Texas Manoeuvres.

DENISON, Texas, March 10.—One car of horses was destroyed last night as a result of a fire which started in a stock car of a troop train on the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad near Durant, Okla., and not on the St. Louis & Southwestern Railroad, as at first reported.

The train was the first section of an army special en route from Fort Leavenworth to San Antonio. After the burned car was detached the train resumed its journey.

CANNON NO VOLUNTEER YET.

Thinks, However, of Challenging Champ Clark to Take the Field.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon was at the Navy Department to-day. He discussed the military mobilization with several officials upon whom he made calls and speculated with them upon possibilities of the Mexican situation. He had just paid a visit to Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop when he was asked if he was following the example of Gen. J. Warren Keifer of Ohio, who had said he was ready to take the field again though 74 years old and a veteran of both the civil and the Spanish wars.

"Well," said Mr. Cannon, "Keifer is a fighter. I am not so sure that I would not leave the volunteering to him. But I had thought of issuing a challenge to Champ Clark to take the field. Champ, though, might feel that he was handicapped, as there is more of him to shoot at than there is of me."

AMERICAN SAW REBEL BAND.

They Got Supplies at His Mine—Hope to Overthrow Corral.

Experiences in the revolutionary district were told yesterday by George D. Davidson, an American mining engineer from El Riato Mine in the district of Durango, who came out via Eagle Pass and is at the Hotel Astor. His camp was held up by 200 insurrectos, who took corn, medical supplies, horses, and guns and then went away to join Flores Magon, their leader in that district. Mr. Davidson said that they were fine, stalwart men, recruited from the ranchero class, half Mexican and half Indian. They were confident of success in their plans to replace Vice President Ramon Corral by either Magon or Madero, and to limit the tenure of office for the President, after the death of Diaz, to one term only. The rebels expressed great affection and respect for Diaz, who they said was the father of the Republic.

"Two days after the battle of Nazas, on Feb. 27," said Mr. Davidson yesterday, "we sighted a body of mounted troops at 5:30 in the evening, coming across the plain from the hills in the direction of Nazas. I got out my field glasses and saw they were not Government troops. Our instructions received from the United States Consular agent were not to give any arms or supplies of any kind to the rebels, but to let them take the articles, which made their act a theft.

"When their leader rode up he said his name was Eutemio Contreros. He demanded arms, horses, drugs, fodder, supplies, and money for his force of 200 men, who appeared to be all well clothed and mounted on wiry Mexican horses. I told him we were not allowed to furnish supplies and had no arms, horses or money to give away. There was about 4,000 worth of gold in the company's safe which had just been taken from the retort but I omitted to mention it and the rebel leader did not find it. He appeared more anxious to get drugs and corn than anything else.

"Contreros then ordered the store to be opened, and was obeyed. They found a sack and a half of corn and dragged it out into the open, where the leaders divided it among the men. Although the insurrectos were apparently half famished they gave the corn to the horses. Two of the men were in bad shape. One had been shot through the foreand, and another had received a bullet in the left breast and arm

Mr. Davidson said that on his way out of Mexico on the railroad he saw four bridges that had been partly burned by the rebels and had to be shored up to permit the trains to run slowly over them.

FAVORS TO JAPAN DENIED BY MEXICO

Ambassador de la Barra Authorized by Minister Creel to Give Assurances to Americans.

TALK WITH TAFT REPORTED

He Said Our Government Would Maintain Sovereignties—Diaz Not Ill, but Busy with Affairs.

MEXICO CITY, March 10.—That Mexico has granted to Japan no concession for the maintenance of a naval station and no privileges on the Tehuantepec Railway are statements which Enrique C. Creel, Minister of Foreign Affairs, this afternoon authorized Francisco L. de la Barra, Mexican Ambassador at Washington, to make.

The increasing rumor in the United States that Mexico had entered into an agreement with Japan whereby the latter was to be permitted to use certain ports along the coast of Lower California and to have special privileges for the transportation of supplies over the Isthmian Railroad, caused Señor de la Barra to send to the Foreign Office to-day a request that he be permitted to make a definite statement regarding the charges.

Mr. Creel has also asked Mr. de la Barra to extend to President Taft his thanks for the latter's friendly attitude and for the explanation he sent to President Diaz relative to the mobilization of American troops. He says:

> Mexico could not expect anything else from a country which has shown herself to be such a friend during so many years, and that so efficiently has aided in her economic development. The words of the President will no doubt tranquilize Mexican opinion.

In another message of the Ambassador to Minister Creel regarding a conference he held with President Taft yesterday, he says:

> President Taft warmly eulogized President Diaz, and added that the American Government will try to aid, within the proper limits, the cause of peace and order in Mexico; that it cannot be indifferent, as much on account of Mexico's being a neighbor, as because of American capital invested in Mexico. He ended by saying that the United States is determined to fulfill its international duties, among which is the maintenance of the sovereignty of other countries, and especially in dealing with Mexico, with whom it has such friendly relations.

A note of conservatism characterizes the presentation of the news emanating from President Taft's special train last night. With one exception the papers of the capital have indulged in no hasty criticisms of this phase of the situation, which they insist is not yet entirely clarified by the semi-official statement that the troops are placed along the border to prevent more filibustering, and "to be in a position to invade Mexico in case of the death of President Diaz or of general fighting."

El Tiempo, a paper popularly supposed to represent the views of the Catholic clergy, sneers at the idea of intervention, but warns the Mexican Government that a wise programme must be carried out if intervention is to be avoided. It advises the Government to make such changes in the personnel of public officials as are necessary to allay popular disapproval and to do it at once and without fear of offending any one, regardless of his political standing.

"Intervention would not mean what it did in Cuba, Honduras, or Nicaragua, a military diversion easily realized," says El Tiempo, "and without any lamentable result. It would mean a genuine war with Mexico, though our frontier might be occupied, our ports blockaded, our commerce destroyed, and our communication with the remainder of the world cut off."

El Tiempo suggests that international war might follow intervention, and sarcastically ventures the opinion that the Americans would find it "bad for business," the English words being used.

Railroad officials and other Americans representing large business interests in Mexico express themselves as well pleased with the action of the United States in sending an army to the border, seeing in this nothing but friendliness toward the Mexican Government. Few foreigners in Mexico, whose interests are here, sympathize with the rebels, and they heartily welcome the suggestion that the American Government intends to aid in their repression. In their offices and clubs the Americans are congratulating each other on the attitude taken by the United States and declare their confidence in the Mexican Government to deal with the situation, now that the chief source of supplies and men is cut off from the insurrectos.

Mexicans, officials and citizens, appear to have accepted the view that the mobilization of troops along the border presages no invasion of their country. President Taft's official assurance that there was no menace in the Government's step, together with the disclosure last night of its real object—the stopping of filibustering, has, apparently, been accepted without reserve and with a feeling of satisfaction.

Officials declined to enter into a discussion of the latest phase of the situation. Confidence was expressed anew, however, in the ability of the Government to suppress the rebellion in due time with American aid to the rebels cut off. It was pointed out that with the army that is already in the field and the force that is in reserve, there is little likelihood of affairs taking a turn which would give excuse for interference from outside.

The health of President Diaz, which appears to have been made a factor in the situation in some quarters, seemingly has not been impaired in the slightest degree by the business of the last few months. Instead of being the sick man that he has been painted, he is said not to have been in better health in a long time.

As evidence of the fact that the Executive is in ordinarily good health, to say the least, he is at his offices in the National Palace at 9 o'clock every morning, giving his personal attention to the affairs of the nation. Frequently his duties keep him engaged until after 10 o'clock at night at his Winter residence in the city. It has been but a few days since he traveled out to the field where an aviation meet was in progress, and sat for hours watching the flights with evident interest. This is what Gen. Diaz did to-day:

8:30 A. M.—Went to National Palace, where he was in conference with his Ministers, one after another, as is his custom, until 1:30 P. M.

3:30 P. M.—After having dined, was again at his offices in the National Palace, where he received a number of persons, including Admiral La Jarte of the French Navy, who called to make his adieu.

6 P. M.—Drove to Chapultepec Park in his automobile and took two or three turns about the grounds on foot.

7:30 P. M.—Returned to his town residence, where he continued to receive others having business with him.

9 P. M.—Dined.

The startling reports concerning the health of Gen. Diaz are regarded by officials as the work of stock speculators who hope to profit by the effect on the market.

DENIAL FROM JAPAN ALSO.

Has Not Sought a Naval Base Near Our Coast from Mexico.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—"Japan has never made the slightest effort to obtain from Mexico any concession for a coaling station for naval uses at Magdalena Bay or All Saints' Bay, or, indeed, at any point on the Pacific Coast of Mexico."

This to-day was the emphatic declaration of Baron Uchida, Japanese Ambassador to Washington, when his attention was called to published statements that through secret treaties or other arrangements with President Diaz's Government Japan either had acquired or was about to acquire a coaling station or naval base on this side of the Pacific.

Alluding to the fact that a new line of Japanese steamers was to ply between some Mexican ports on the north and Peru on the south, the Ambassador stated that if this company had made any arrangements for taking on coal for its vessels in Mexican territory, which naturally would be necessary, of course such an arrangement was on a purely business basis and was such as is entered into by all commercial lines of maritime nations. With such arrangements, he said, the Japanese Government had nothing to do, nor had any attempt been made to extend Japanese sovereignty to any Mexican port where the commercial line steamers took on their coal.

GUARDSMEN QUICK TO OFFER SERVICES

Lists Already Sent In of Officers Who Want to Join Army in Texas.

TROOPS ARRIVE AT CAMPS

Supplies for Months for 10,000 Men Are Ordered at San Antonio—The Chester at Galveston.

ALBANY, March 10.—New York State militiamen probably will not be called upon to man fortifications during the absence of regular troops at the Texas manoeuvres. Gov. Dix was so advised today from Washington by Major Gen. Wood, chief of staff, in this telegram:

> The Secretary of War directs me to acknowledge receipt of your courteous telegram, this date, tendering the use of New York troops to safeguard barracks, forts, or reservations in case of emergency, and to thank you sincerely for this courteous offer. It is not believed that the concentration of troops at San Antonio for the purpose of field training will render this necessary.

Responses are being received by Adjt. Gen. Verbeck to-day from commanding officers of National Guard regiments in reply to the War Department's invitation to attend the manoeuvres.

TRENTON, N. J., March 10.—Many officers of the National Guard of this State will soon leave for Texas for the army manoeuvres. Capt. William E. Pedrick of this city will be one of those to go. Others detailed are:

First Regiment—Major Arthur H. Mackie, Newark; Major Roland D. Crocker, East Orange, and Capt. William A. Powell, Newark.

Third Regiment—Major Winfield S. Price and Lieut. William T. Read, Camden.

Fourth Regiment—Capt. John O. Van Slyke and Lieut. Lewis E. Jackson, Jersey City.

Fifth Regiment—Lieut. Col. Albert A. Van Walraven, Clifton, and Major William W. Stalter and Capt. Richard R. Chiswell, Paterson.

TENTS RISE AT SAN ANTONIO.

Gen. Duncan Has Water Flowing When Seventeenth Infantry Arrives.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 10.—Col. John L. Clem, Quartermaster General of the Department of Texas, to-day received orders from Washington to procure provisions for four months for 10,000 men. Twenty-thousand troops are expected to mobilize on the border, but it is thought that half that number will be detailed elsewhere than San Antonio. The order for these provisions is generally taken as proof that the mobilization does not have drill and field practice for its ultimate object.

Officers here believe the troops are to see real service before long. The heavy supplies of food and the absence of blank ammunition are the basis of their belief.

GEN. MILLS AT GALVESTON.

First Regiment of Coast Artillery Forces Also Arrives.

Special to The New York Times.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 10.—Brig-Gen. A. L. Mills, commanding the Department of the Gulf, arrived here to-day from Atlanta to take command of the brigade to be composed of three provisional regiments of infantry from Gulf Coast fortifications. He announced two members of his staff, Capt. Clarence O. Sherrill of Mobile, Chief of Engineers, and Col. George T. Bartlett of Atlanta, Chief of Staff. He established temporary headquarters in the new concrete post hospital building, but stated that he would have headquarters in the field as soon as the equipment arrived.

The first regiment of twelve companies is in camp, and it is expected the second and third provisional regiments will be here not later than Sunday morning. Col. C. J. Bailey, assistant to the Chief of Artillery at Washington, arrived to-day to take charge of the First Regiment.

The cruiser Salem is anchored off the mouth of the harbor five miles, and received orders to-day by cipher. A rumor has it that the Salem will sail shortly and join other war vessels at Tampico, Mexico.

ARREST HERE ENDS 30,000-MILE CHASE

Mexican Attache's Search for Revolutionists Results in a Murderer's Capture.

KILLED HIS RIVAL IN LOVE

Detective Who Pursued Him Was for a Year a Few Hours Behind—Caught by Secret Service Men.

The activity of L. Resas, a junior attaché of the Mexican Consulate in this city, in seeking to discover how many Madero revolutionists and sympathizers were here and what they were doing to help along the revolt, led yesterday to the arrest of a man who said he was Alfonso Dienehart, a Mexican of education and wealth, for the murder of a rival in love. The arrest ended a chase of 30,000 miles by private detectives.

Dienehart, or as he is described in the warrant, Roberto Urzua, alias Jorge Seims, alias Deinhart, was caught yesterday afternoon at Ninth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street by Special Agents Jentzer and Dyer of the Department of Justice. He had been trailed by the young Mexican Secretary. He is charged with having stabbed to death three years ago Rafael Ruesga in Guadalajara, Jalisco, Mexico.

According to the detectives Urzua was in love with a young woman named Dolores, one of the most beautiful women in Guadalajara. Ruesga also wooed Dolores and won his suit. A license was procured and the following day the religious ceremony was to be performed. Ruesga and Dolores were standing near her home talking of their wedding arrangements when Urzua came along on a bicycle and without dismounting, they said, plunged a stiletto into Ruesga's heart and fled.

A detective traced Urzua to Buenos Aires, and then ensued a chase in which the detective said he was constantly for a year within a few days or hours of his man. But he always arrived just in time to find that Urzua had fled.

From Buenos Aires Urzua went to Montevideo, Uruguay, with the detective hot on the trail. Urzua doubled back to Buenos Aires, then went to Valparaiso, Chile, where he took ship to Lima, Peru.

The detective lost trace of him there, but in Callao, Peru, he picked up the trail again, and was only three days behind when Urzua took the steamer to the Isthmus. He went to Havana, thence to New York. Returning to Havana, he went to Yucatan, back to Havana, and then again to this city, where the detective traced him to a house in West Twenty-fifth Street, only to find that Urzua had left for Chicago five days before. The detective found Urzua's hotel just as the man left, and two hours after Urzua had started for this city the detective took train.

It was three weeks ago that Resas began investigating the activity of the Mexican revolutionists in this city, and he was on the track of several when he saw Dienehart, a few days ago. Believing him to be Urzua, whom he had known in Mexico, Resas appealed to the Federal authorities here, and Jentzer and Dyer were sent out to find him.

The man was arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields by Manuel A. Esteva, the Mexican Vice Consul, and at Señor Esteva's request he was held without bail for examination in extradition proceedings. Resas positively identified Dienehart in court as the man wanted for Ruesga's murder.

AGAINST FREE PULP EXPORTS.

Quebec House Cheers Gouin's Speech Opposing Reciprocity.

QUEBEC, March 10.—Amid a burst of applause from both sides of the house, Sir Lomer Gouin told the Legislature this afternoon that Quebec had no intention of departing from the policy adopted last April, which requires that all pulp wood cut on the Crown lands shall be at least partially manufactured before being exported. "The question," said Sir Lomer, "is shall we accept the offer from Washington and go back on our order-in-council of last April and let our pulp go into the market of the United States to be made into paper there? Personally, I have not heard any argument to make us change our minds. Some want the question referred to the people, but I say that unless we get better arguments we shall keep to our decision of April, 1910."

Sir Lomer agreed with Mr. Bourassa that everything should be done to foster the manufacturing of paper in the province. Quebec had 117,000,000 acres of forests, while the private lands producing pulp only amounted to 5,000,000 acres. The future of the paper-making industry of this continent lay in the Province of Quebec.

AFRICA JOINED AMERICA?

Fossils of Similar Saurians Said by Germans to Show It.

BERLIN, March 10.—The Saurian fossil discoveries in German East Africa appear to be more important, as well as more extensive, than was at first supposed, Prof. Branca, Director of the Museum of Paleontology at Berlin, concluding from the similarity of the bones found in Africa and America that those countries were connected in remote geological times.

Some of the bones, which have already reached Berlin and have been set up in the museum at the side of the skeleton cast of the huge dipledocus presented to the Kaiser by Andrew Carnegie, show that the dinosaurus of Africa were much larger than those of North America, but of such striking similarity as to indicate that they belong to the same species. Prof. Janesch, the scientist who headed the expedition to recover the fossils a year ago, now reports that deposits exist in two other places. An appeal has been issued to the German public for money to obtain the fossils for the Berlin Museum, as otherwise they may fall into the hands of foreign scientists

ENDS LIFE IN HIS OFFICE.

Inventor Wade of St. Louis, Whom Sad Moving Pictures Depressed, Kills Self.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 10.—James R. Wade, inventor, politician, and President of the National Vacuum Steam Heating Company, was found dead with a bullet hole in his left temple and a revolver at his side in his office here to-night. His brother, Festus J. Wade, President of the Mercantile Trust Company, who claimed the body, said James had killed himself, but he knew of no motive for the act.

A woman caretaker in the building, who found the body, says when she earlier went into the office Wade was at his desk. He asked her to wait until morning to clean the office. She says that recently Wade told her that he frequently went to moving picture shows, and that sad pictures had a strange attraction for him, but often so worked upon his sensibilities that he had to leave the theatre. Apparently he was in his office all night, writing farewell messages to relatives and business associates. It is said the letters revealed that he had lately met with financial reverses.

New York Military Academy Dinner.

The second annual dinner of the New York Military Academy of Cornwall, held last night at the Hotel Astor, was attended by more than 100 officers, alumni, and cadets of the institution. The dinner was in honor of the completion of plans for the rebuilding of the academy buildings, which were destroyed by fire last year.

Duke of Connaught's Aid Here.

Capt. T. H. Rivers Bulkeley, V. S. C., and Aid-de-Camp to the Duke of Connaught; the Hon. R. Fellowes, a son of Lord Ramsey, and John Gilliat, who arrived here yesterday on the Mauretania, are on their way to Canada to arrange for the inauguration of the Duke of Connaught as Governor General.

MISHAPS IN THE GALE.

Falling Sign Hits a Man—Boy Blown Into the East River.

The forty-mile northwesterly wind which whirled through the city streets yesterday swept off many hats, blew down scores of signs, and caused injuries more or less severe to a dozen citizens.

It wrenched off the moving-picture show advertising sign at 1,556 Third Avenue. The sign fell on the head of John Havlick, a 51-year-old Bohemian who was standing immediately beneath it. The falling sign laid Havlick's head open, sprained both his ankles, and broke three of his fingers. He was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital in an unconscious condition and may die.

The wind also blew off the hat of Joseph Orello, a laborer of 542 East Eighty-ninth Street, as he was descending the uptown stairway of the Third Avenue Elevated station at Eighty-fourth Street. In an effort to catch the hat Orello fell to the bottom of the stairway. He was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital with a bad scalp wound and possible concussion of the brain.

Five-year-old Alexander Fearance of 417 East Fifty-eighth Street was blown off the stringpiece at the foot of East Fifty-eighth Street into the East River. One of Alexander's small companions ran to the life saving station near by and told John Hill, one of the life savers. Hill rowed to where the boy was floundering and fished him out. Alexander went home after being examined by Dr. Ivins from Flower Hospital.

The Rev. John J. Frey, a clergyman, who lives at 30 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, lost his balance while trying to catch his hat. He was walking up Sixth Avenue, near Thirty-fourth Street, and when he fell struck his face squarely on the curb. His face and scalp were badly cut and he went home after being treated by Dr. Cowan of the New York Hospital.

MOTHER GETS NEW TRIAL.

Her Suit for Damages Because of Autopsy on Son's Body Must Be Retried.

A verdict of a Supreme Court jury denying damages to Mrs. Mary Hassard against Coroner's Physician Timothy D. Lehane was set aside yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, which ordered a new trial. Mrs. Hassard sued for $20,000 because he dissected the body of her son, Frank Hassard, and removed the heart and spleen.

Hassard was a driver, who died as the result of a fall from a hearse in East 106th Street, April 2, 1907. He died in Harlem Hospital. Dr. Lehane explained that he removed the spleen, because of its peculiar formation and preserved it in alcohol as an interesting specimen. Deputy Controller Julius Harburger, then a coroner, had charge of the investigation of Hassard's death. He denied having given Dr. Lehane permission to make an autopsy.

More Dismissals Likely in Cleveland.

C. C. Wall, Chairman of the Committee of Special Agents, whose investigation of the Custom House in Cleveland led to the dismissal of Collector Charles F. Leach of that city, returned here yesterday. Mr. Wall said that he and Burton Parker of Detroit, and C. B. Dowd of Boston had been eight weeks in Cleveland. He refused to discuss the nature of their work, a report of which was sent to the Secretary of the Treasury and is now in the hands of President Taft. It is said, however, that the removal of Collector Leach, whose term would have expired on March 31, is only the beginning of an upheaval in Cleveland.

HOUSEKEEPER GETS LEGACY FROM DOCTOR

Mrs. Margaret Rowley Chief Beneficiary Under the Will of Dr. Currie of Englewood.

HIS WIFE IN AN ASYLUM

Housekeeper to Have a Home in Currie House—Provision Made for Her Daughter's Education.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, March 10.—The will of Dr. Daniel A. Currie of Englewood was probated here to-day by Surrogate E. L. D. Hester. His housekeeper, Mrs. Margaret A. Rowley, is the chief beneficiary. Dr. Currie died suddenly on Tuesday, Feb. 28, though he had been an invalid for nearly three years. Mrs. Rowley assumed charge of Dr. Currie's home when his wife was removed to the State Hospital at Trenton six years ago. Mrs. Currie is still an inmate in that institution.

Mrs. Rowley receives a bequest of $3,000 outright, is to make the Currie residence her home, and is to receive $50 a month for her services. She is also named as one of the executors and gets a share of the residuary. It is estimated that the estate is worth $100,000.

The executors are instructed to pay for the education of Mrs. Rowley's daughter, Dorothy M., at Smith College. The personal effects of Dr. Currie, who was Surgeon Major of the Fifth New Jersey Regiment for several years, are to be divided among his several nephews. Among the effects are his medals, swords, uniforms, and pistols. Dr. Walter Phillipps, the associate of the testator, is to receive one horse, one buggy, blankets, robes, and harness; the balance to go to the nephews.

Dr. Currie makes ample provision for his aged sister, Miss Eliza Jane Currie, and the executors are asked to do everything possible for his wife and to have her removed to her home whenever the asylum authorities say she is cured.

St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Englewood receives $3,000 from the estate, and the interest of $1,000 is to be used in clothing and caring for Dr. Currie's faithful coachman, William Buchanan. The estate is to pay his funeral expenses and erect a monument.

Dr. Currie had practiced in Englewood nearly thirty years. He was the first Mayor of Englewood and was a member of the City Council at the time of his death.

Dr. Currie sets forth in his will that the bequests to Mrs. Rowley are "in recognition of her faithful services rendered me and my household."

First Hanging in West Va. in 12 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., March 10.—Jesse Cook was hanged in the State Penitentiary this afternoon by one of three unknown men, who in an adjourning chamber pressed three electric buttons, one which sprung the trap. Last Christmas night Cook shot and killed Frank F. Bennett near the Lick Coal Mine in McDowell County. Cook was the first white man to be hanged in twelve years in this State, and the youngest who ever paid the death penalty.

WHITMAN UNCOVERS BIG DUMMY LOAN

ment is also construed as a technical charge of forgery.

In his investigation of the Carnegie Trust Company's affairs, Mr. Whitman is being assisted by Joseph A. Broderick, one of the most expert examiners of the State Banking Department, and it is through Mr. Broderick that the District Attorney has been able to establish the connection between several important transactions between the Carnegie and large borrowers which will figure in the case to be presented to the Grand Jury. It is also Mr. Broderick who has furnished Mr. Whitman information concerning the large Cummins syndicate loans negotiated with banks other than the Carnegie. These loans amount to about $2,500,000. The total amount of city deposits received by these same banks during the time the Cummins loans were being made is nearly $4,000,000, according to the information that has been placed in the hands of the District Attorney during the last few days.

Mr. Whitman said yesterday that he anticipated no further efforts to divert his prosecution of the Carnegie Trust investigation and that he was fully satisfied that Gov. Dix would not instruct the Attorney General to take any hand in the criminal end of the case. Although Mr. Whitman declined to be quoted on the subject, his friends said yesterday that the District Attorney considers that the Governor unwittingly allowed himself to be misled in writing his letter to Mr. Whitman requesing the District Attorney to confer with the Attorney General in the Carnegie Trust matter.

Robin Again Examined.

Joseph G. Robin was taken from the Tombs yesterday morning and questioned further by District Attorney Whitman and his assistant, Mr. Clark. When the examination was over Mr. Whitman said that the time for talking had ended and that the time to act had arrived, that the case against three of the Carnegie Direcors had been fully prepared and that were it not for the holiday intervening he would present the case at once to the Grand Jury. Several bank Presidents are expected to be called as witnesses before the Grand Jury. Other witnesses will be the men who have been working up the case against the Carnegie Trust Company officials, Mr. Whitman's own investigators, and those connected with the State Banking Department. It is not likely that City Chamberlain Hyde will be called as a witness.

Mr. Hyde was at his office yesterday for several hours. When several reporters called in the afternoon the City Chamberlain was asked to furnish the dates on which city funds were deposited with eighteen banks which have been mentioned in connection with having loaned money to the Cummins crowd. Mr. Hyde said he would have no objection to furnishing the dates and amounts of city funds deposited in each of the banks and instructed the reporters to step across the hall and ask his chief clerk, Harry Walsh, to furnish the information. The reporters went at once to Mr. Walsh.

"I will have to get my orders direct from Mr. Hyde before I give you that," said Mr. Walsh.

He disappeared into Mr. Hyde's office, was gone a moment, then returned and said: "I'm sorry; Mr. Hyde and his secretary have both gone." Mr. Walsh then refused to furnish the information.

As the reporters were leaving the building Charles P. Norcross, the writer, appeared. He disappeared into Mr. Hyde's office and was seen no more. The City Chamberlain appears as indorser for Mr. Norcross's notes to the extent of $18,000 in the Carnegie Trust Company.

Hyde Report Not Filed.

The City Chamberlain was asked yesterday if he had obeyed the order of the Justices of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court and filed with them a report showing what securities the money turned over by the court have been invested in. Mr. Hyde said that the reporters would have to go to the Appellate Division for any information concerning that, as he would not discuss it in any way.

This order by the Appellate Division was embodied in the form of a rule passed by the Justices on Jan. 11 last at the time Mr. Hyde was away in the South on his houseboat, Stop-a-While. It is known as Rule 17, and is as follows:

"The Chamberlain of the City of New York, within thirty days after it shall have been received by him, shall invest all money paid into the court and by it deposited with him, in bonds of the United States, bonds of the State of New York, or bonds or stock of the City of New York, and cause the same to be duly registered in his name as such Chamberlain; and hereafter, no money so paid into the court shall be invested in securities other than those heretofore specified. And the Chamberlain is hereby required to file in the office of the Clerk of the Appellate Division of the Court of the First Department, on or before the first day of February, each year, a report showing the securities in which money that has been paid into court has been invested and the date at which the investment was made."

Chief Justice Ingraham was asked late in the afternoon if the City Chamberlain had complied with the court's order. He said that no such report had been filed. But the Chief Justice declined to discuss the case. Under the court's ruling, the City Chamberlain was supposed to have filed his report Feb. 1. It was learned that some correspondence regarding the belated report has passed between the City Chamberlain and the Appellate Division, but no such letters are on file at the court and the Justices themselves declined to discuss the case.

"Window Dressing" Inquiry.

One of the new lines of inquiry which has been opened up during the last few days by information which has reached the hands of District Attorney Whitman is as to whether or not a system known in banking circles as "window dressing" was pursued in any of the institutions which Robin and his friends were interested. The Banking Department is now endeavoring to learn whether any such juggling of securities took place. It was explained yesterday that the Carnegie Trust Company was examined by the Banking Department in August last and was visited again by Banking Examiners a few days before it closed. The Northern Bank, which closed on Dec. 27, was examined in May of 1910, and again a few days before it was ordered closed by the Banking Department.

It was during the time between the August and the January examination of the Carnegie Trust Company that most of the large Cummins loans were made. These began in September and ran along until a day or so before the final visit of the State Bank Examiner. It was learned yesterday that the only men in the Banking Department who know in advance when a bank or trust company is to be examined is the Banking Superintendent himself and his Chief Examiner. The other examiners are kept in ignorance until the morning a bank is to be examined. But in the reports to the Banking Department it is different. And if there was any "window dressing" in any of the failed institutions it was probably in these reports.

The phrase "window dressing" means the sudden shifting of a lot of securities from one institution to another, so as to figure in the report to the Banking Superintendent.

Mr. Whitman expects to leave for Lakewood, N. J., this morning and remain there until Monday. He said last night he needed a rest and would take it there.

It was learned yesterday that the Assets Realization Company of 25 Broad Street is considering a proposal to take over the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company on a percentage basis from the stockholders, agreeing to pay depositors in full. Experts in the employ of the Assets Realization Company have for several days been investigating the slow assets of the Carnegie Trust. This investigation has not yet been completed. It will depend in a large measure upon the experts' report as to whether the company will decide to undertake the task of liquidating the Carnegie.

Before such a deal could be made, the permission of the State Banking Superintendent would have to be obtained, and the Assets Realization Company would have to furnish satisfactory bond to secure payment to all Carnegie depositors before the assets of the company would be turned over by the State Banking Department. It is believed that about $5,000,000 in cash would be required to secure the payment in full of all depositors.

Engineers' Advice to Business Men Who Would Install Power Plants.

Nearly one thousand members of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers discussed the "Cost of Power Generation" last night at a joint meeting of the two organizations in the United Engineering Societies' Building, in West Thirty-ninth Street.

The engineers took turns in warning corporation heads and business folk generally not to plunge into the installation of power plants without figuring out carefully before hand what they were doing.

John C. Parker of Rochester read a paper pointing out that the first cost of installing the plant is only one of many factors in the expense. Real estate, housing, supervision, tax assessment, fire and accident insurance, depreciation and obsolescence, building space, amortization, marginal interest, and fair profit ratio are other factors, according to Mr. Parker. Mr. Parker cited a case in which, after the plant had been installed, the marginal interest, amortization, taxes, insurance, and fair profit ratio factors amounted to 28 per cent. of the original investment in the plant.

Aldis E. Hibner confirmed Mr. Parker's statements about the advisability of doing considerable figuring in connection with a reputable electrical engineer before installing power plants. Other speakers were N. T. Wilcox, P. R. Moses, D. B. Rushmore, R. P. Bolton, and Arthur Williams, Prof. Douglas Jackson presided.

It was announced at the meeting that a large contingent of the mining, electrical, civil, mechanical, and metallurgical engineers of this State would go to Albany next Tuesday to oppose a bill which had been introduced into the Assembly "to make civil engineering a profession by legislative enactment." What the engineers say they object to in the bill is that men who were civil engineers before the enactment of the bill will not be recognized as being members of the profession afterward without conforming to the new conditions.

NEW PEER ARRIVES.

Sir Edward Tennant Has Not Yet Chosen His Title.

Sir Edward Tennant, the well-known English art collector, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Mauretania. Sir Edward was elevated to the peerage the day before he sailed. He will be known as Lord Glenconner or Lord Tennant, just which he has not yet decided. Before he sailed he was also made Lord High Commissioner of the Church of Scotland, and will represent King George at the annual conference of the Church to be held at Holyrood Palace in Edinburgh.

Sir Edward is on his way to Vancouver on a business trip. He will return to England about April 15. He married a daughter of Percy Wyndham, the artist. He spoke enthusiastically of the success of his attempt to popularize art among the poor in London.

BIBLE FIGURES IN DIVORCE.

Minister Read Unsuitable Verses to Child, Wife Claims.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 10.—The Bible was quoted by the attorney for Mrs. Cora L. Korb in a brief filed in her suit for divorce from the Rev. Arno B. Korb, a Methodist pastor, and for the custody of their four-year-old son, Theodore. The attorney insists that verses read by the minister to his little son are not such as can be understood by a child, and were read for the purpose of harassing a bereaved family. One verse, Mrs. Korb says, referred to her mother, who died in January. The quotation was "The ungodly shall perish."

It was also urged that Korb made a servant of his wife by compelling her to shine his shoes 100 times a year and to perform other menial duties. Mrs. Korb says her husband forced her to witness his twisting of chicken's necks, his method of killing them for the family meal.

TOWN IN DARKNESS.

$125,000 Fire at Electric Plant Also Stops Racine's Trolley Service.

RACINE, Wis., March 10.—Fire starting in the switchboard of the Racine Electric Light & Railway Company to-night destroyed the plant with a loss of $123,000.

The city was deprived of light and the trolley lines were put out of operation. Emergency power will probably be obtained to-morrow from Milwaukee.

Five or Six Hundred Thousand people come into our stores now—but there are several hundred thousand OTHERS we WANT to come in, who will be also permanent customers when they try our cigars and compare our values generally.

To the Man Who Has Never Been In a UNITED CIGAR STORE

If you knew positively where you could get most for your money in anything you wanted to buy that's where you would go, isn't it?

Take cigars, cigarettes, tobaccos, pipes, etc., as one of your necessities—the only way to discover whether you are on the right track is to measure the value of the money you spend by what you receive over the counters of different merchants—in stores which by reason of their importance justify such a comparison of values.

Just because it's a man's habit to buy here or buy there it shouldn't be a fixed habit unless the habit is fixed by the best returns for what he spends.

Certainly he should not be blinded by habit, or by prejudice, either.

All that is asked on behalf of United Cigar Stores is that they come in under this rule.

Therefore no smoker should stay out of a United Cigar Store simply because he has never been in one.

It isn't fair to yourself to do that—it isn't fair to us.

We can't show you what we are doing for hundreds of other smokers—of thousands of them every day if you don't give us a chance.

New faces in our stores show that people are being continually moved by this impulse.

Increased business month after month proves it.

If we didn't make and hold new customers this increase would be a very uncertain quantity.

And we must give more for the money or we wouldn't get new business in increasing volume.

If you are the man who is passing our doors every day you are only putting off for a day, or a month, what you will do sometime.

You're bound to come in sooner or later.

In human nature nothing tugs so hard as self-interest.

Why delay a day longer?

Pay us a call and decide the question for yourself.

Just now in our Greater New York stores we are returning in Free Goods—cigars, cigarettes or tobacco—half of whatever you spend for pipes. We do this to advertise our stores. We want every one to try our cigars. We depend on our cigars to make steady, permanent customers.

SEEKS HER RELEASE FROM BLOOMINGDALE

Mrs. Balch, 73, Declares She Is Sane and Accuses Daughter Who Had Her Committed.

HEARING ON WRIT TO-DAY

Cousin of Woman Comes to Her Assistance—$250,000 Estate Involved—Legality of Commitment Attacked.

A letter written from Bloomingdale Asylum by Mrs. Georgia C. Balch brought her cousin, Harlan P. Sweet, hurrying east from his home in Los Angeles, and a writ of habeas corpus which he has obtained looking to her release, is returnable before Supreme Court Justice Mills of Westchester County this morning at 10 o'clock.

"I cannot stand this much longer," Mrs. Balch wrote, following an earlier letter which she had smuggled out in the clothing of a departing inmate. "Oh! Harlan, fly to me in my dire distress. You can get me out of this. When I am free I will go with you to California. There among the flowers I will seek to forget all the awful past."

Next to her daughter, Grace C. Balch, Mr. Sweet is Mrs. Balch's nearest kin. It was on the daughter's petition that she was committed to Bloomingdale last June. Mrs. Balch, now 73 years old, is the widow of Collins Balch, who died last September, leaving an estate of $250,000, and Grace Balch, a woman of 45, is her only daughter.

Mr. Sweet, in his affidavit, gives it as his belief that Mrs. Balch is the "victim of an outrageous conspiracy entered into by parties who desire to secure control of the property of her husband and herself," and the papers in the case are made bulky by the number of depositions which are offered to show, not only that Mrs. Balch is sane, but that Grace Balch had long regarded her mother vindictively and often threatened to confine her. Collins Balch, the depositions say, had always shielded his wife from these repeated proposals, but he was suffering in his last illness at the time Mrs. Balch was taken from her home in East Fifty-third Street to Bloomingdale.

She has made repeated efforts to obtain her release, writing long letters to lawyers and finally bringing about the appointment of William A. McQuaid as special guardian. He so represented her when her sanity was passed upon by a Sheriff's jury, upon the motion of the executors of Mr. Balch's estate, which they wished to settle. The jury declared her sane by a vote of 12 to 3, but the Commissioners agreed with the three, and Justice Davis set aside the verdict and ordered a jury trial in the Supreme Court. This will be held on Thursday, but meanwhile, from the outside has come this determined effort to obtain her release, and Mr. Sweet, working under the advice of Carl Fowler of 55 Liberty Street, has had five physicians examine her carefully. The examination was made into her mental and physical condition on March 3, and the five agree in declaring her sane and competent. Their depositions accompany the papers. They are Dr. John E. Wilson, former State Commissioner of Lunacy Peterson, Dr. Edward D. Fisher, Dr. William F. Jacobs, and Dr. Frederick Kellogg Hollister of 521 Madison Avenue.

Daughter Accused in Depositions.

Dr. Hollister tells more than the rest, for he was the family physician for years, and it was not until Mrs. Balch was in Bloomingdale that he learned of the steps which had deprived her of liberty. He says that she was in better health in June, 1910, and when he saw her last week than she had been for ten years. He is one of those who lay special emphasis upon Grace Balch's attitude toward her mother, of whom, he says, she often spoke in "a most vindictive and disrespectful way."

He says that Mr. Balch always opposed with great vigor any suggestion on the part of his daughter that Mrs. Balch be sent to an asylum, and he testifies to the deep surprise with which he heard the claim of Henry L. Sillcocks that instructions had been left by Mr. Balch directing his firm of Fletcher, Sillcocks & Leahy to "resist to the uttermost" any attempts to take Mrs. Balch out of the asylum.

Henry C. Shannon of 1 West Thirtieth Street, who has known the Balch family for years, enlarges upon the relations which he had seen between Grace Balch and her mother.

"Grace Balch," he says, "was accustomed to speak of her mother as 'the old woman,' 'the old hag,' 'the old devil,' 'the crazy devil,' and wonder she did not die."

And he quotes Mr. Balch on one occasion as having asked: "Have you not known Grace long enough to know that she is a notorious liar?"

"Grace Balch has been increasingly erratic in her actions and habits of life and has developed," Mr. Shannon says, "a perfectly apparent and unreasonable hostility to her mother, whom she has sought in every way to discredit."

Mr. Shannon quotes Grace as saying, "I am now my mother's jailer."

The Mother's Letters.

All this testimony has been gathered together by Mr. Sweet as the ammunition for his first attack, in an effort to show that Mrs. Balch's accusations of hostility on the part of her daughter, which, coming from within the walls of an asylum and directed against the petitioner who had asked for the commitment, might easily be sent down as delusions, were not delusions at all. Yet it is tenderly that Mrs. Balch speaks of her daughter in the letters she wrote to Harlan Sweet in Los Angeles. These letters are written in a firm hand.

"She always said if anything happened to her father she would pop me into an asylum for the insane," the first letter said. "She actually did it by false swearing. I was in perfect health, physically and mentally, when I was hustled out of my comfortable house and confined among noisy lunatics."

This letter bears the date of Nov. 2, but is postmarked Nov. 18. In a later letter she explained that she had smuggled it out by the good offices of a woman who was leaving the place.

"You speak of my resting," she wrote later, under the date of Jan. 11. "If you only knew of my surroundings you would fly to my aid instead of telling me to rest. How can one rest? Just imagine a small bedroom, opening into a common hall, which has many little rooms opening into it, and every room containing a patient. Such horrid noises as some of them make! Don't tell me to rest. It is hell.

"While my dear husband, my dear darling, lay in the hospital so weak and wan, and while I was suffering agony on account of his awful condition, just think, Grace, my daughter, whom I still love so much, saw her chance to make her old threat good that she would pop me into an insane asylum if ever anything happened to her father; and she, my poor epileptic daughter, whom I love as I do my life, swore that I was insane."

As Mr. Sweet, who is a heavy man of 60, tramped up and down the offices of Mr. Fowler yesterday, while various details of the case were being arranged, he sighed now and then and shook his head.

"It was that letter brought me on," he said; "it tears at a fellow's heartstrings."

Mr. Fowler, too, is deeply interested in Mrs. Balch's case.

"It is the most outrageous thing of its kind I have ever run across," he said yesterday, with a certain grimness.

Mr. Fowler is somewhat exercised over several experiences she has had. She has complained bitterly of her letters being held up, and he said yesterday that Dr. Pringle of Bloomingdale would testify that some of the letters had been sent down to Grace Balch, whereas, Mr. Fowler says, the law, while it permits the supervision of the outgoing mail, directs that those which are objectionable for one reason or another must be sent to the State Commissioner.

Commitment to be Attacked.

He also contends that the commitment was illegal in that the blanks used were drawn under the laws of 1896, which were repealed sixteen months before. He will raise this technicality, he said yesterday, because he believes that he has the merits of the case back of it. Mr. Fowler said he suspected that a large proportion of the inmates of asylums are illegally held because of this very point.

The proceedings in the New York County courts were instituted by the executors of the Balch estate in the interests of settling the affairs. Under Mr. Balch's will, which was made subsequent to his wife's confinement, she gets an annuity of $2,500, while the income of the balance goes to Grace Balch, the principal to be divided among his heirs at her death.

The Daughter Silent.

Miss Balch, who lives at 37 East Fifty-third Street, left word there last night that she had nothing to say of the case for the present. At the time of her petition in June, she recited as grounds, her mother's "violence, her rambling talk." She said that it had been her mother's habit to carry lighted tapers about the house so that there was danger of her setting fire to it, as she had done, her daughter said, on three occasions. Miss Balch also spoke of her mother's antagonism toward her, which was of such a nature that she thought she could not safely live in the house with her.

In the physicians' certificate it is set forth that Mrs. Balch spoke in a "mysterious manner of her husband," and note is made of her extreme fondness for making innumerable clippings which led her to aspire to three rooms set aside for the exclusive purpose of holding millions of them. Mr. Sweet explains that she is literary.

$25,000 GIFT TO FIREMEN.

Banker Neustadt's Widow Provides Fund for Sick and Injured.

Fire Commissioner Waldo made known last evening that Mrs. Agnes Neustadt, widow of the banker, had established a memorial fund of $25,000 for the benefit of the department.

Mrs. Neustadt, who now makes her home at the Hotel St. Regis, and her husband were alway interested in the department, and Robert H. Mainzer of Hallgarten & Co., her nephew, through whom the fund is given, is known as an enthusiast in all matters pertaining to the firemen.

The gift is to be known as the Sigmund Neustadt Memorial Fund, and Mrs. Neustadt wishes that the rank and file benefit by it fully as much, if not more, than the higher officers. Sigmund Neustadt died two years ago. His widow, in expressing her appreciation of her nephew's interest in the department, also made known her faith in the present administration of the department, and its efficiency.

The $25,000 constitutes the largest single contribution ever made to the force. It is intended, so Fire Commissioner Waldo said, to use the income for the benefit of firemen injured in the performance of duty. When necessary, sick firemen will be sent to health resorts.

The fund will be controlled by a board of four trustees—Robert H. Mainzer, Dr. H. M. Archer, honorary medical officer of the department; Joseph J. Reilly, editor of The Chief, and Mrs. Neustadt's son, who is now in college. The Fire Commissioner and the Fire Chief are to be ex officio members of the board.

SAILORS' HOME NEEDS $75,000

Seeks Funds to Remodel the Lodging House in West Street.

If friends of the Sailors' Home succeed in raising $75,000, to be added to $25,000 already subscribed by Mrs. Russell Sage, the lodging house maintained for sailors at 507 West Street will be renovated and altered by the addition of two stories.

Committees in charge of the Rev. G. McPherson Hunter, the home Secretary, started out yesterday to solicit funds, and reported at night that they had been fairly successful.

"These new stories," said Mr. McPherson, "will give the institution 100 more rooms, where sailors may be made welcome and comfortable while at this port. Last year we accommodated 50,000 seamen temporarily in port, and all paid nominal sums except a few; for we never have turned a single Jack Tar away because he chanced to be without funds. We have shower baths for them, reading room, writing room, a savings bank, where $60,000 was taken care of last year, and we have conducted free concerts every Monday evening, the talent often coming from the seamen themsIves."

The Sailors' Home was opened on its present site in 1908. The Seaman's Friend Society, which opened it, was organized in 1828, and for many years has had offices at 76 Wall Street.

SUFFRAGE SANDWICH GONE.

She Was a Peppery Little Thing, but Mrs. Belmont's Followers Mourn Her.

Lost, strayed, or stolen, a little Suffragette Sandwich Lady from the Belmont Fourteenth Assembly District Club and lunchrooms, 140 East Thirty-fourth Street. Wears the words "Votes for Women" on one half of the "sandwich," and "We Can Make Things Hot for You," on the other. She is the little silver red-pepper shaker presented to the Belmont lunchrooms by Mrs. Beverly Robinson a few weeks ago.

The little sandwich suffragette was such an attractive little person, besides being of real hallmarked silver, that she spent a good deal of her time in the pocket of Superintendent Donnelly or of the chef. She found so many admirers that they were afraid to leave her alone in these days of kidnapping. But their worst fears have been realized. The little lady has disappeared, and now they appeal to the conscience of the kidnapper and ask to have her returned, as she was a mascot.

ENDS CASE AGAINST MUNROE.

Closing Testimony Relates to Stock Jobber's Promotion of Bootblack Trust

The Government closed its case yesterday against George H. Munroe, the wireless stock jobber, who is accused of using the United States mail to defraud. The day's testimony related, however, not to the sales of Marconi Wireless stock which Munroe made in 1907 to persons who have testified that they never got their shares, but to his connection with the United Shoe Shining Company, a concern which he promoted last Summer. The United Shoe Shining Company, the Government contends, never got any further than incorporation and the printing of nice stock certificates by Munroe.

H. V. Johnson, a canvasser for the United Shoe Shining Company, testified yesterday that he knew Munroe in that corporation under the name of Hill. Several purchasers of stock also identified Munroe as the "Mr. Hill" who told them the vast possibilities of a "Bootblack Trust," with a chain of shoe-shining and manicure parlors, but none ever got financial results.

Fire in Carnegie Laboratory.

A defective radiator pipe under the floor in the front hall caused a slight fire in the Carnegie Laboratory Building, 340 East Twenty-sixth Street, yesterday afternoon. The blaze was extinguished easily, and the damage was very slight.

DEMOCRATS AFTER UTILITIES BOARDS

Grady's Bill Would Wipe Them Out and Form Two New Ones of Fewer Members.

TOO EXPENSIVE, HE SAYS

Favors Cutting Salaries from $15,000 to $10,000 and Limiting What They Can Spend.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—The wiping out of the two Public Service Commissions and the creation of two similar departments to be under Democratic control are provided for in a bill introduced to-day by Senator Thomas F. Grady. While he says the measure is in the interest of economy and efficiency its opponents declare that it is merely another grab for patronage. Rumors that such a bill would be pushed by the Democrats in the Legislature this year have been in circulation for several weeks, but owing to the statement of Gov. Dix that he would not disturb the commissions the reports were not regarded seriously.

The Public Service Commissions were the result of most important legislation enacted in the first year of the Administration of Gov. Hughes. Gov. Hughes selected the members of the commissions without any political consideration and ignored the Republican State organization in his choice of Commissioners.

The commissions took the place of the State Railroad Commission, the expenses of which were borne by the railroad companies; the State Commission of Gas and Electricity, created in the Administration of Gov. Higgins; the State Inspector of Gas Meters, the Bureau of Grade Crossings, and the Rapid Transit Commission. The chief purposes of the new commissions were to stand between the Public Service Corporation and the public in the matter of complaints as to rates and service, to guard the interests of stockholders in scrutinizing issues of stocks and bonds, and to institute a close inspection of the service for which the corporations received franchises.

Since Gov. Dix took office he has insisted that the commissions are too expensive. Senator Grady has taken up this criticism and has provided in his bill for a reduction in the number of members of each commission from five to three for a reduction of the salary of each Commissioner from $15,000 to $10,000 a year. Furthermore the Grady bill limits the annual expense of the New York City commission to $650,000 and the annual expense of the up-State commission to $160,000. The bill provides that one member of each commission shall be a Republican.

In a statement issued to-day Senator Grady says the expense of the up-State Board last year was $300,000 and of the New York City commission $1,200,000. He adds that the number of Commissioners is reduced in his bill because of the charge that the present Commissioner's individually have little to do. The figures on the reports of the State Controller show that the up-State Commission in 1910 spent $292,333 for expenses and maintenance and the First District or New York City commission spent $1,228,000. The State pays only $90,000 of the expense of the New York commission, the city paying the remainder.

Gov Dix recently appointed John N. Carlisle a Special Commissioner to investigate the finances and affairs of the New York commission. Mr. Carlisle has not yet presented a report.

MASON TALKS WITH MURPHY.

Governor's Secretary Also Sees the Mayor—Bryan at City Hall.

John A. Mason, Secretary to Governor Dix, was in town a few hours yesterday, during which he saw both Charles F. Murphy and Mayor Gaynor. All were reticent about the purpose of the visit. The Mayor declined to talk about it at all beyond admitting that the Senatorship deadlock was mentioned. Mr. Mason also said that they had talked of it but not in detail. Mr. Murphy would not discuss the matter.

"Did you bring a message to the Mayor from the Governor?" Mr. Mason was asked.

"No," he replied, "but the Governor knew I was to see the Mayor before they had their talk last night."

"Did you discuss the Whitman-Carmody episode?"

"It was not mentioned."

Mr. Mason returned to Albany on an early afternoon train.

William Jennings Bryan also called on the Mayor yesterday to pay his respects. Mr. Bryan was asked to express an opinion on the deadlock, but declined.

"Do you believe in majority rule in matters of this kind?" he was asked.

"Do you want me to make an exception in this State?" he replied.

CROKER'S ADVICE TO SHEEHAN

Should Withdraw, He Says, for the Good of the Party.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 10.—Richard Croker, former chief of Tammany Hall, interrupted his work of setting out banana plants this afternoon long enough to declare that William F. Sheehan should withdraw from the Senatorial contest in New York.

"Mr. Sheehan is amply able to fill the post," declared Mr. Croker, "but he should withdraw from the situation for the good of the party."

Mr. Croker reiterated the statement that persistence in the attempt to force Sheehan's election threatens to wreck the Democratic Party in New York State.

Mr. Croker will leave here about March 19 for New York, whence he will sail for Ireland.

Only 21 Votes Cast at Week-End Balloting—On Again Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—Only twenty-one votes were cast when the forty-fifth joint ballot in the election of a United States Senator was taken at noon to-day. William F. Sheehan received only 3 votes, Martin W. Littleton got 9, Morgan J. O'Brien, Martin H. Glynn, William Sulzer, John J. Hopper, and John N. Carlisle, received one vote each. A majority of the lawmakers have been paired until next Tuesday.

Gov. Dix, who had a brief conference with Mayor Gaynor in New York last night, when the Senatorship was discussed, did not return to the Capitol at all to-day. He went through from New York to his camp at McKeever, where he expects to remain until Monday. His secretary, John A. Mason, is in New York.

STRONGER BAN ON BETTING.

Publishing of Racing Odds Made Illegal by Assemblyman Gray's Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—Assemblyman Gray of St. Lawrence County to-day introduced a bill to prohibit the publishing of race betting odds. The measure was introduced last year as a part of the legislation designed to make the Agnew-Hart anti-gambling legislation more effective, but it was defeated.

Mr. Gray's bill adds a new section to the Penal Law prohibiting advertisements facilitating pool selling, bookmaking, and gambling. The measure was urged by several reform and civic bodies last year and the plan was approved by Gov. Hughes.

To Stop Fraud in Transfer Tax Stamps

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—Gov. Dix has signed the bill of Assemblyman Oliver which is designed to prevent frauds in the sale of transfer tax stamps. The new law prohibits the sale of stamps except by regularly designated agencies of the State Controller's Department.

OPPOSE HOUNDING OF DEER.

Dr. Hornaday Leads the Fight Against Change in Game Laws.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 10.—Nearly 200 representative sportsmen from all parts of the State went on record to-day against a resumption of the hounding of deer in this State. The question came up at a conference called at the Capitol by Thomas Mott Osborne, State Forest, Fish, and Game Commissioner, to consider proposed changes in the game law.

Isaiah Perkins of Mason Lick, Hamilton County, and Judge Boire of Plattsburg made the chief arguments in favor of hounding. They were opposed by Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the New York zoological park; Andrew D. Meloy, President of the State Association of Sportsmen's Clubs; Marshall McLean of New York, and others. The guides present made a strong plea for a return to hounding, but at the close of the discussion they were overwhelmingly voted down.

Many of the sportsmen were in favor of extending the open season for deer from Oct. 31 to Nov. 15. Others favored the licensing of owners of bird dogs, which under the existing law are excluded from the counties of the Adirondack preserve.

Dr. Hornaday spoke in favor of Senator Bayne's bill, which, if enacted, would prevent the sale of game in this State. Such a law, he said, was necessary if the State hoped to keep any game in its forests. He said that at the present rate of slaughter there would be no game birds in New York ten years from now. The sportsmen at the conference recorded themselves in favor of the Bayne bill.

BALLOT REFORM BILL IN.

Candidates Grouped in Alphabetical Order—Favored by Dix.

ALBANY, March 10.—Senator Saxe of New York and Assemblyman Shortt of Richmond County to-day introduced a Massachusetts Ballot bill. It provides for a new form of official election ballot on which the names of candidates would be grouped in alphabetical order under the title of each office. The name of the party making the nomination and the party emblem would appear in each instance on the same line with the name of the candidate.

Such a ballot was recommended by Gov. Hughes as the kind of reform which would put parties, candidates, and voters, respectively, on an equal footing. Gov. Dix in his annual message made a similar recommendation.

METHODISTS PLAN CHANGES.

Superintendents' Places to be Filled at the Coming Conferences.

Methodists are concerned regarding the important places to be filled at the conferences which meet on March 29. The New York Conference meets in Calvary Church, Harlem, Bishop Smith presiding; the Brooklyn, or New York East, Conference, at New Rochelle, Bishop Nuelsen presiding, and the Newark Conference at Central Church, Newark, Bishop Warren presiding.

The terms of two District Superintendents in the New York and one in the New York East Conference expire. These are the Rev. Philip M. Watters, the Rev. Arthur Jamieson, and the Rev. Dr. J. S. Chadwick. For the Superintendency in New York the names of the Rev. Dr. G. P. Eckman of St. Paul's Church in West End Avenue and of the Rev. Dr. Allan MacRossie of St. James's, Harlem, have been mentioned.

In Brooklyn the name of the Rev. Dr. T. S. Henderson of Hanson Place Church has been heard for the Superintendency, and so has that of the Rev. Everett Richardson of Bristol, Conn. In Brooklyn there is a difficulty confronting the Presiding Bishop in the number of men belonging to the conference and requiring to be placed, who have been absent for some time. These include the Rev. D. W. Howell, who has been with the Chautauqua Institution for several years. He has resigned and will ask appointment. The Rev. Dr. J. W. Johnston, for years pastor of old John Street Church, has been abroad nearly a year, and now returns. He may be made Superintendent.

There will be few, if any, pastorate changes, it is said, in the prominent New York and Brooklyn churches this year.

BOATMAN SAVES THREE LIVES

Father and Children Sinking When Booth Jumps in the Harlem River.

William Booth, a boathouse keeper at 132d Street and Harlem River saved two children and their father from drowning in the Harlem River yesterday afternoon.

Vera Kemp, eleven years old and her brother Willie, a child of four years, were playing near the boat house on a float in the river. At Park Avenue and 132d Street in their home, sat their father, William, watching them at play. Suddenly he saw Willie slip from the float and the girl jump in to save him.

The father, hatless and coatless, ran to the float and jumped in and did his best to keep the children above water, but he could swim but little himself and was exhausted when Booth jumped in after them. Detective Hart arrived a moment later. Booth first placed the boy on the float; next he passed up the girl and seized Kemp as he was about to go under. With the aid of the detective he was gotten ashore. None of the Kemps was any the worse for their plunge.

THE FIRST STEP

In any building proposition is the selection of a building contractor—the right contractor.

And the greater the enterprise the more important that first step becomes.

And we respectfully submit that if you select us you will make a step in the right direction—a step of incalculable value to the success of your enterprise.

HUGE WAVE'S BLOW STOPS MAURETANIA

Sea That Invaded Navigating Bridge Aroused Fear of a Collision Below Decks.

ATLANTIC LANE VERY ROUGH

Koenig Albert Also Had a Tempestuous Voyage—Savannah Liner Found Rough Weather Going Up Coast.

The Cunard liner Mauretania, from Liverpool, and the North German Lloyd liner König Albert, from the Mediterranean, arrived yesterday, both late and both carrying the scars of their encounter with terrific weather on the Atlantic lane.

The Mauretania was twelve hours late. Most of the way across she was bucking high head seas and westerly gales. The time of her passage was 4 days 22 hours and 35 minutes, made at an average speed of 24.36 knots. Real rough weather began on Monday, and when the sun went down the vessel was ploughing into a tremendous head sea, that broke time and again on her deck. The log gives her run from noon Monday until noon the next day as 513 knots, the worst day's run of the voyage.

About midnight Monday, when the ship was staggering along under the repeated shock of a constantly pounding sea, she buried her nose into one big sea, and before she could rise another monster struck her. The wave broke squarely over her port bow, and tons of water went thundering down upon her deck. The wave, flung high by its impact against the forward deck house, drove against the ports of the steel inclosed navigating bridge, smashing six of them in. The quartermaster at the wheel was fung across the room and cut by the flying glass.

Thirty-five feet of the teak rail on the forward boat deck was torn away. The steel bulwark was dented and the iron supports so loosened that several bolts dropped out. The steel wall of the deck house was also dented. The blow was so great that the liner stopped for a second, quivering.

There was short-lived excitement among the passengers. Several of the women, according to Mrs. W. T. Grenfell, wife of the Labrador missionary, thought the vessel had been in collision and began to dress, but when the Mauretania forged ahead they went to bed again.

Capt. Turner said that there was nothing to report. "It is true," he said, "that a little spray did come aboard, but there has been worse weather at sea."

The König Albert looked as if she had been under fire when she came to Quarantine behind the Mauretania. She passed through the same spell of rough weather, and, being smaller, suffered more damage. Three days of exceptionally bad weather began on March 7, and the vessel had to fight every knot of her way to port. One of those aboard said it was just one sea after another. The rails forward were carried away, ventilators torn from their fastenings, boats pounded in the davits. The forward hatch covering was smashed in. On March 8 the König Albert logged only 128 knots as a day's run.

The Savannah liner City of Savannah, which left Savannah on Tuesday afternoon and was due to arrive here early yesterday morning, did not get to her pier until 5:30 P. M. She reported that she had encountered very heavy weather, which had forced her to lower speed.

Everwear TRADE MARK HOSIERY

For Men, Women and Children

The chief argument in favor of Everwear Hosiery lies not so much in its six months' guarantee against holes, as in the fact that it lives up to that guarantee. We have said that that is the chief argument, but it is by no means the only one, for Everwear Hosiery has all the attributes of other good hose. It has beauty of texture, is soft and comfort-giving to the feet, and is shaped in the knitting to the true foot and ankle form. In fact it matches any other good hose, and has this one advantage over it. It is woven by special process and of special material at the heels and toes so as to give unusual durability and to justify a six months' guarantee against holes. It is in this particular that it is better than other hose.

CAMORRISTS' TRIAL WILL BEGIN TO-DAY

Jury to be Selected in Murder Case Involving Huge Italian Criminal Conspiracy.

ONE WOMAN'S PART IN IT

Maria Stendardo, Accused with Others, Said to Have Been Instrumental in Gang's Immunity.

VITERBO, Italy, March 10.—Everything is in readiness for the work of selecting a jury to-morrow for the trial of Alfano, or Erricone, and the other Camorrists who are charged with the murder of a former member of their band, Gennaro Cuoccolo and his wife. Although the city is crowded with persons from far and near to attend the trial there has been no disorder.

The task of securing a jury it is thought is likely to prove a hard one. Forty talesmen have been drawn by lot as prospective jurors. Any of these may be excused from serving by showing sufficient reason why they should not do so. Twenty-four jurors are required for the trial, twelve of whom will act as the jury proper and the other twelve as substitutes in case their services are required. If the court is unable to find twenty-four men out of the forty talesmen qualified to act as jurors it will be forced to postpone the trial.

All the prisoners are in good health and eager for the trial to begin, hoping to find in the courtroom some diversion from their long imprisonment.

Shut up in the prison of San Lupara, far away from the Santa Maria in Gradi, where the principal Camorristi are confined, are Giovanni di Gennero Abbatemaggio, whose confession is largely relied upon to fix the murder of the Cuocolos upon Alfano and his associates, and Maria Stendardo, the common law wife of Nicola Morra, alias "Puzzulaniello," ("Red Sandy,") one of the alleged principals in the murder of June 5, 1906.

The career of Maria Stendardo furnishes one of the most painful yet romantic revelations of the "mala vita" or underworld of Naples. She was not brought here with the first convoy of prisoners on Jan. 7, but came in the evening, two days later, under charge of Brigadiere Sora Nicola and a couple of soldiers. When she descended at the little station of the branch railway, which is the sole communication between Viterbo and Rome, she was met by Commissioner of Public Security Cavaliere Caputi, several police officials, and certain journalists with whom, however, she was not allowed to exchange a word. She was at once placed in a carriage under police guard, and the vehicle started off at full gallop for San Lupara.

Maria Stendardo is about thirty years of age and has the manners of a woman of the nobility and the gentle face of the Sistine Madonna. On her arrival she wore a hooded cape, and the station lamp shining on her face contributed to the illusion. She was born on the water front of Naples, and her parents were a sailor and a cigarette-maker. Having lost her father at sea when still very young, she became the jealous care of her mother, who was an honest, hard-working woman. Nevertheless she was scarcely fifteen when she began to cast her Madonna-like eyes on the youths living in the neighborhood.

One of them in particular she fancied, but as he was the son of a mere dock laborer her mother did everything she could to break off the attachment. In vain. The marriage was finally celebrated and, with the little money which the mother had saved, the three planned to establish a modest lodging house, which would not lack for lodgers, since Maria's husband spent all day on the water front and was very often employed by foreigners to direct them to a place of abode.

The lodging house thus opened, off one of the principal streets of the city which lead up from the water, Via Rettifilo, was called the Palazzo Amendola, after the name of Maria's husband. It was at this place, twenty years later, that Capizzuti first began his investigation of the Camorra. Every day, in the warm Neapolitan sunshine, the balconies of the dwelling were strung with bleaching linen, and at night mattresses were laid there, and the members of the "mala vita" for a few centessimi could rest their weary limbs. In the Winter the mattresses were spread out on the floor inside.

Thus the Palazzo Amendola became prosperous, so prosperous, in fact, that people living near by complained to the Questura that all was not right within. The Questura sent agents to investigate. A glance at Maria's mother was sufficient to convince them that everything was right, for, if the house did harbor criminals, these criminals paid for their abode, no questions were asked, and no crimes were hatched there with the knowledge of the padrona.

But the agents of the Questura were not insensible to the beauty of Maria and told the local delegato about it, so that he visited the Palazzo Amendola in person and made certain veiled threats that he would shortly close up the lodging house. Maria's husband reflected that if this were done they would all be ruined, so he bade Maria visit the delegato to see if she might not prove persuasive.

Maria did as she was bidden. The future of the Palazzo Amendola was thus made secure, and Maria ceased to help her mother about the house and was seen dining at night in fine clothes with the delegato at the restaurant he usually frequented in the Bagnoli. It was here that Maria first met Nicola Morra. Soon afterward the delegato was transferred by the Ministry of Interior to another city, and Maria, leaving her mother in the Palazzo Amendola, went to live with Morra in a street just off the Piazza San Ferdinando and near the Via Nardones, where the Cuoccolo couple dwelt.

It was in their house, the prosecution alleges, after the court of the Camorro on May 26, 1906, condemned the Cuoccolos to death, that Giovanni Rapi gave the final directions for the murder to Corrado Sortino, Antonio Cerrato, Ferdinando di Matteo, Giuseppe Salvi, Mariano de Gennaro, and Nicola Morra, the active principals in the crime.

GOING BLIND, SEEKS DEATH.

Policeman's Prompt Work Saves Simon, Who Promises to Do His Duty.

Sigmund Simon, 30 years old, a peddler of 337 Alabama Avenue, Brooklyn, spent the last cent he had yesterday for carbolic acid. He drank the acid as he stood almost directly in front of the Delancey Street Police Station and fell unconscious to the ground.

Policeman Sommers saw Simon fall and rushed into a delicatessen store near by and got a bottle of milk, which he poured down the man's throat. This, according to Dr. Smith of Gouverneur Hospital, saved Simon's life. After being treated at Gouveneur Hospital, Simon was arraigned in Essex Market Court.

"Why should I live any longer?" he asked Magistrate Steinert. "I am becoming blind, unfit to work and support my wife and five children, and why should I become a burden to them?"

"Are you still determined to die?" asked the Magistrate.

"No, your Honor," said Simon. "The brief instant after taking the carbolic acid I wanted to live, but then the utter hopelessness of my case came back to me. I have read a number of books on this subject, have studied man's duty to the world, and the causes and end of suffering, but if you will let me go I will be a man."

Magistrate Steinert discharged him and started a collection.

EXPLOSION VICTIMS TO SUE.

Damage Claims of $4,000,000 for Pleasant Prairie Shock—Freaks of Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Damage suits that promise to aggregate $4,000,000 will be started in four States against the Du Pont de Nemours Powder Company as a result of the explosion in the company's mills at Pleasant Prairie, Wis., last night. In Wisconsin, Indiana, Illinois, and Ohio reports of damages, mostly in plate glass broken, have been received.

Kenosha, Waukegan, Lake Forest, and surrounding towns are the heaviest losers. Damage to plate glass in State Street, Chicago, alone is estimated at $10,000. The loss of the company's plant is estimated at $500,000.

One hundred and fifty deputies guarded the ruins to-day, and kept the curious crowds away. The body of E. S. Thompson, the one man killed, was recovered this afternoon.

A piece of one of the glazing cylinders crashed through the roof of a two-story building occupied by H. A. King. The cylinder made an eight-foot hole in the roof, and, passing through the structure, was buried in the cellar.

Supt. Clarence Brady was in the soda house with Engineer Flynn at the time of the explosion. They were blown through the building and landed on the roof of the adjoining magazine. This exploded instantly and Brady and Flynn were thrown a hundred feet from the building. Flynn suffered internal injuries and inhaled poisonous fumes. Brady escaped practically unhurt.

Phil Hess, a farmer living two miles from the powder mills, probably will lose his right ear, which was nearly severed by a piece of flying glass which struck him.

The magazines which exploded contained 150 tons of finished dynamite, 130 tons of dynamite unfinished, 80,000 kegs of finished giant powder, 25,000 kegs of unfinished giant powder.

There have been nine explosions in ten years at the powder works. In the explosion of 1906 nine men were killed.

CITY BILL ROUSES FARMERS.

They See Damage Without Compensation in Attempt to Prevent Pollution.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, March 10.—Property owners in the northern part of Westchester County and in Putnam County, where New York City owns millions of dollars worth of dams, reservoirs, and watershed property, are protesting against the bill now before the Legislature which gives the city unlimited powers over land.

The bill was introduced by Assemblyman A. J. Levy, and it practically grants to the city absolute control of all land anywhere near the watershed property, whether it has condemned it or not. Drastic measures, the opponents of the bill say, are allowed in order to prevent pollution of the streams, and the land owners can get no remuneration. The city, they say, is allowed to go on a man's property and raze or move buildings. The farmers say they will not be allowed even to pasture their cows. One provision of the bill is:

> The Commissioner of Water Supply may summarily abate or remove the cause of the violation of such rule or regulation of the nuisance so created, and to that end may employ such force as may be necessary or proper.

County Register Edward B. Kear of Yorktown is at the head of a big delegation which is going to fight the bill. Mr. Kear said an effort would be made to have the bill amended allowing the city to condemn the land, so that the owners will get something for the damage they suffer.

J. P. Morgan and Mrs. Arabella D. Huntington, widow of Collis P. Huntington, are among the landowners who receive awards under a report filed by Appraisal Commissioners in connection with the condemning of land for the new Catskill Aqueduct in the Town of Greenburg and on the outskirts of Yonkers in the Westchester County Clerks' office to-day.

URGES TAFT PEACE PLAN.

International Bureau at Berne Sends Circular Commending It to the Powers.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 10.—The International Peace Bureau of which the United States is a member, on Wednesday last, sent a circular letter to the Foreign Ministry of all the powers concerning the question of the limitation of armaments as proposed in the resolution adopted by the American Congress which authorized the President to appoint a commission to study the subject.

The bureau calls the attention of the Governments addressed to the text of this resolution and quotes President Taft as saying in his message to Congress of Dec. 6 that he had delayed nominating the members of this commission because he was awaiting the expressions of foreign governments as to their willingness to co-operate with the United States in the appointment of similar commissions. The heads of the foreign offices are urged to do all in their power to have their governments reply favorably to the proposals of the United States and to assist that Government in the movement which it has initiated. The bureau adds that the appeal is supported by a great number of peace societies.

CANALEJAS REBUKES VATICAN

Calls Attitude Toward Association's Bill Interference with Spain's Rights.

MADRID, March 10.—Premier Canalejas announced in the Chamber of Deputies to-day that the Government's Religious Associations bill would be introduced in the Chamber within the month. The Premier declared that he had said previously that the bill would not be introduced until the negotiations with the Vatican regarding the application of the bill had reached a certain stage. But, he added, the Vatican in its last note had refused to resume the negotiations unless the Associations bill itself was submitted to the Vatican for examination and formed the subject of an entente between the two parties.

The Spanish Government, Señor Canalejas said, would not consent to make the exercise of the National sovereignty dependent upon the result of pourparlers with the Holy See and it had replied to the Vatican's note in a manner effectually disposing of the Vatican's pretensions.

In concluding his speech, Premier Canalejas said emphatically:

"Whatever the state of the negotiations, I shall introduce the bill before the month has elapsed."

GERMANY CALLS FOR AIRMEN.

Young Unmarried Lieutenants Asked to Volunteer for Training.

BERLIN, March 10.—A step has just been taken by the Ministry of War to increase the number of German officers available as tested aviators for reconnoissance work in time of war. A request has been sent to units of all branches of the service for the names of young unmarried Lieutenants willing to undertake a two-months course of instruction in flying at the military aerodrome of Doeberitz.

The authorities intend to select from the list of volunteers sixty of those most suitable owing to their light weight and good sight. These officers, after they have obtained their certificates of proficiency, will return to their corps and instruct small flying detachments in each military district. The Reichstag is to be asked to appropriate a supplementary credit for the purpose.

ALMOST OPEN RIOT IN BRITISH COMMONS

Opposition Speaker Offers to Throw Irish Nationalists Out of the House.

AN ANGRY UPROAR FOLLOWS

Home Secretary Churchill, in Asquith's Absence, Holds Fort for Government —Gives Hint of Lords Reform Plan.

LONDON, March 10.—After a continuous sitting of nineteen hours, the House of Commons rose at 10 o'clock this morning. Stormy scenes marked the session up to the very close.

The whole night was occupied with the discussion of the land clauses of the budget and the debate was the most bitter that has been heard in the lower chamber in ten years. Taunts and insults were hurled back and forth furiously, tempers flared up, and at one moment a riot was threatened, when in the midst of an excited demonstration on the part of the Nationalists, Capt. James Craig, Unionist member for the East Division of Down, sprang to his feet and, addressing the chair, remarked that if the presiding officer would give the word, the Opposition would gladly throw the whole Nationalist Party out of the House.

This remark drew a hurricane of angry shouts from the Irish benches, and it was some time before the Chair was able to restore order.

The scenes reminded one of that night in 1901 when the police were called in to make the Nationalists behave themselves.

Home Secretary Churchill stood in the breach for the Government in the absence of Prime Minister Asquith, who had been called to Switzerland by the illness of his daughter, Elizabeth, and of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George, whose bad throat makes it impossible for him to take part in an ordinary debate, and who could not have been heard in last night's turmoil had he been present.

The Home Secretary and the leaders of the Opposition exchanged caustic remarks that were frequently personal, and several times Mr. Churchill was called to order by the Chair. Frequently the Government leader resorted to closure, but the discussion was continued until the participants were fairly worn out.

In a speech at the National Literary Club to-night Mr. Churchill indicated the Government's plan for the reform of the House of Lords. He said it would be useless to propose reform while the House of Lords was possessed of the power of veto, but when the veto was abolished it was contemplated to substitute for the existing obsolete second chamber a body more or less evenly constituted, whose balance should be preserved and corrected from year to year by some effective perennial contact with and relation to public opinion and the popular will.

PEACE IN HONDURAS.

American and British Bluejackets Withdrawn—Revolutionaries Disarmed

PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, March 10.—The American and British bluejackets were withdrawn from San Pedro yesterday and the town turned over to the representatives of the Honduran Government.

Guards were withdrawn from the trains, and the revolutionary army here was disarmed. Peace has once more been restored along the coast.

BOSTON BROKERS ON TRIAL.

New York Witness Testifies Regarding Claim of Solvency by Mr. Sederquist.

BOSTON, March 10.—Three days before the failure of the brokerage firm of Sederquist, Barry & Co., Mr. Sederquist told Richard H. Reid of the Ways and Means Committee of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange that the Sederquist-Barry firm was solvent, according to the testimony of Mr. Reid at the Sederquist-Barry trial here to-day. Mr. Reid testified that he had been sent as one of a committee of investigation from the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange to determine the standing of the house.

When one of the committee from New York said that he did not believe the firm had any securities, Mr. Sederquist replied:

"The firm can produce a certain party who will swear that he has seen securities of the firm to the value of $140,000."

The committee would not accept the statement, according to Mr. Reid.

Under cross-examination Mr. Reid said he did not know the source of the quotation received by the Consolidated Stock Exchange nor did he know whether that Exchange had a wire connection with the New York Stock Exchange. He admitted that the defendants gave the committee from New York free access to all the books in the office.

The jury was excused until Monday morning to allow the counsel for the Government and the defense to decide as to how about 100 cash books, ledgers, and blotters could be introduced in the case.

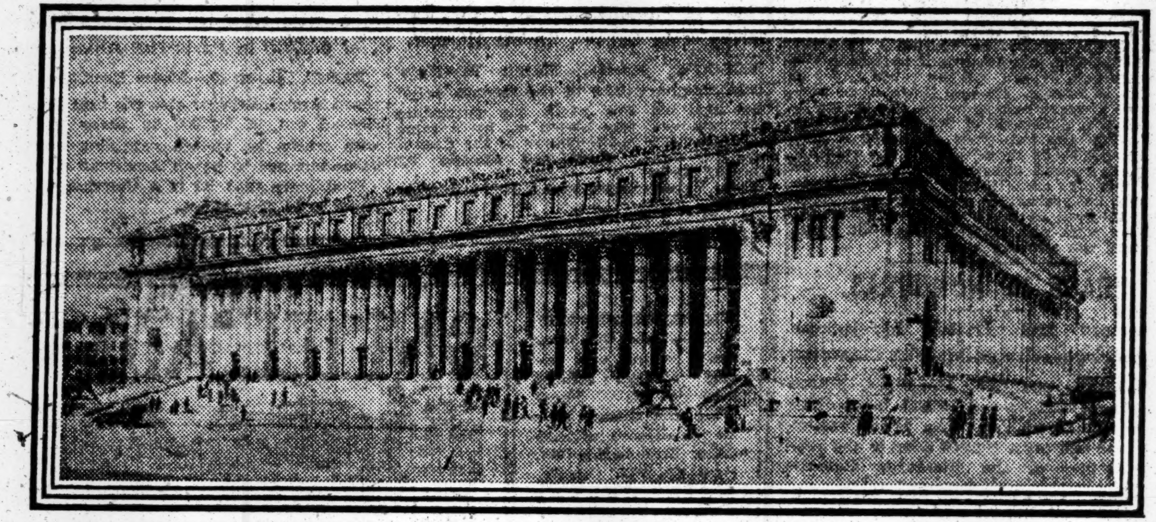
ALL READY FOR WORK ON NEW POST OFFICE

Contract Let to George A. Fuller Company and Building to be Done in 23 Months.

FACES PENNSYLVANIA STATION

New Building Will Resemble the Station in General Appearance—McKim, Mead & White Drew Both Plans.

THE NEW UPTOWN POST OFFICE.



The contract for the building of the new General Post Office, just opposite the Pennsylvania station in Eighth Avenue, was awarded yesterday to the George A. Fuller Construction Company on its bid of $2,515,267. The total cost of the site, building, and plans will be $5,275,807. The contract specifies that the entire building must be completed within twenty-three months. McKim, Mead, & White, the architects of the Pennsylvania station, also are the architects of the Post Office building, which will harmonize with the architectural plan of the railroad terminal. This Post Office building will be the finest in the country.

It will have a frontage of 875 feet and a depth of 335 feet. It will be set far back from the avenue, giving a wide space for the principal approach. It will have a broad tier of granite steps running the entire length of its huge colonnade, not unlike that of the Pennsylvania station. The architects have endeavored, while keeping in mind the practical uses of the building, to give it the monumental character befitting a Government building of such importance, having an exterior with as few breaks as possible in its façades and a columnar motive running through two stories. The building, like that of the station, will be of granite, and three stories high.

While the colonnade and general design of the depot is Roman Doric, the Post Office building will have a quality of its own, its style being Roman-Corinthian, which is more ornamental. The entire group of buildings will be on a scale commensurate with the Forum of Rome, presenting colonnaded and pilastered façades complimentary to each other and lending themselves to a unity of scale and style of marked effect. While the station itself is composed of three pavillions, the Post Office will have only two, joined by an unbroken row of Roman-Corinthian columns of the same diameter as those of the station. The façades on the streets are continuous and of the same general motive as the Eighth Avenue front, with pilasters, however, instead of columns. The street façades are also terminated in pavillions at the westerly ends.

The Public Corridor.

On the ground floor there is a wide corridor allotted to the public, extending back of and on a line with the frontal colonnade. Back of this will be the general working space for the handling and distribution of the mails, and on the westerly front of the building there will be a private driveway connecting Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets, by which access is to be given to mail wagons and other city deliveries.

Directly over the corridor on the Eighth Avenue front of the second floor and in the centre of the façade will be the Postmaster's suite of rooms, and on either side and extending somewhat back on the north and south fronts will be the rooms of his principal assistants. A mezzanine floor between the first and second floors, and back of the public corridor, will be assigned to swing rooms, locker rooms, and toilet rooms, and to record and document rooms. The Eighth Avenue front of the third floor is assigned to the executive staff of the Railway Mail Service. Other parts of the second, third, and attic floors are for the working forces of the various departments. The westerly and southerly portions of the basements will be used by the working force of the Railway Mail Service, and direct communication between this section and the railway tracks and platforms and the service just below, and working space on the floor above is provided by means of mail conveyors, elevators, and chutes. Newspaper and parcel distribution also will be handled in the basement.

Pennsylvania Tracks Beneath.

The Government acquired title to the site from the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1907 for $1,660,540, subject to a perpetual easement to the railroad, permitting it to use the sub-surface for its station and storage tracks. In April, 1908, Congress appropriated $100,000 for the preparation of plans for the structure, and those of McKim, Mead & White were finally selected. Competitive plans had been submited by Carrere & Hastings, Heins & La Farge, H. Van Buren Magonigle, Whitfield & King, Kenneth M. Murchison, and Cass Gilbert.

When completed, the new Post Office will be the largest in the country, if not in the world. It will employ about 1,500 men, as against 1,600 or 1,700 now in the cramped quarters of the old Post Office Building. In the new building all the mail now handled in Jersey City by the Pennsylvania Railroad will be received direct, without the present delay and loss due to ferriage in foggy weather, and cartage through the streets.

The old Post Office building and the Hudson Terminal Post Office station will probably be retained merely as branch delivery stations, to handle the bulk of the mail which goes downtown. The money order department, registry division, and executive offices will be removed from the old Post Office to the new. The Railway Mail Service has been handling since Fall on the site of the new Post Office the mail of newspapers and publishers sent over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

May Lead to Other Changes.

Incoming mail which at present is distributed at Station E, on Thirty-third Street, near Sixth Avenue, and at the old Post Office, will be assorted and handled at the new Post Office. The working force of Station E, which, according to Postmaster Morgan, will probably be abolished on the completion of the new building, will be transferred to the main Post Office, as will probably a large part of the force now at the old Post Office and at the Hudson Terminal Station.

Business of the Grand Central Station Post Office, which is leased from the New York Central by the Government, will not be affected, but just what will be the effect on the mail now carried over the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and other roads Postmaster Morgan could not yesterday foretell.

This mail at present comes into the Hudson Terminal station and the old Post Office. Mr. Morgan said he was in favor of having a pneumatic tube service installed, for the purpose of switching this mail to the new Post Office, but that this would require a Congressional appropriation. It is impossible, too, to lay dawn definite plans for the handling of this mail at the new Post Office at present, he said, inasmuch as there is no telling what changes the railroad companies themselves may make in their terminals in the two years from now to the completion of the new Post Office building.

TOLSTOY'S SON HERE TO STUDY AMERICA

"I Want to See Your Country and Learn Its Lesson," He Says on the Mauretania.

IS IMAGE OF HIS FATHER

Gives a Reception to the Passengers and Tells of the Late Philosopher's Work—His Stay Indefinite.

Count Leo Tolstoy, third son of the late Count Tolstoy, arrived yesterday on the Cunard liner Mauretania. It is his first visit to the United States. Count Leo is a rather than man of 42 years, of medium height, and bearded as was his noted father, whom he resembles in many ways. He attracted much attention during the voyage among the passengers.

Count Leo is a sculptor, a student of sociology, and a worker for educational reform in his own country. He has the face of a dreamer. His stay in this country, he said, would be of indefinite length, and while here he will be a guest of Edward C. Hill of Trenton, N. J.

In the lounge on board on Thursday evening the Count spoke of his father. The great room was filled, and many passengers had to listen from the doorways. He won much sympathy by his feeling references to his father's life work and his death. While speaking he stood beside two busts of his father, one in bronze, the other in plaster. He told of his father's ideals and of his earnestness in working fo rthe good of Russia.

The Count showed a photograph of his father taken at a railroad station when he went on the journey which was followed by his death. He gave details of that last pilgrimage, speaking as one who had been his father's personal assistant and sympathetic companion. He attribute dsome of the extreme views held by his father to the influence of Lord Radstock, an evangelist whom he met early in life. The Count did not court publicity, and when he saw the reporters approaching he sought to retire.

"What do you want to know about me?" he asked. "There is nothing I can say that will be of interest. I am simply the son of a great man. My visit here is one I have looked forward to with much pleasure. How long I will remain on this side is uncertain. I want to look at your beautiful city and learn the lesson taught by this country and its people."

The Count denied that he had come to get material for a book on America, to be written upon his return to Europe. The Count came from Paris, where he has been a student of Rodin, the sculptor.

The Count expects to meet President Taft, Gov. Wilson, former President Roosevelt, Mr. Carnegie, and Thomas A. Edison.

Michael Komminsky, a relative of the late Count Tolstoy, arrived in this country last January with the avowed purpose of finding an American purchaser for the property of the late Count, to establish a colony, where a theatre, a university, and a library may be erected as a memorial to the great Russian. It was hoped that Mr. Carnegie would be the purchaser, but the Count had nothing to say on the subject.

HISTORIC CHURCH TO CLOSE.

House of Worship in 37th Street Played Its Part in the Civil War.

A historic Methodist Church will close at the end of this conference year, when the Thirty-seventh Street Church, between Second and Third Avenues, of which the Rev. E. C. Hoag is pastor, consolidates with the Fiftieth Street Church, the Rev. J. J. Blythe, pastor. The property in Thirty-seventh Street has been sold. The consolidation is made necessary by changes in population, and is made for greater efficiency.

The church to go out of existence played a considerable part in civil war times. Its pastor was a fine speaker, and he took the stump for Lincoln in 1864. In the draft riots a flag made by the women of the church was shot through several times. The mob demanded that it be hauled down, but it remained to the end of the war. It is now preserved by the church.

The church with which the Thirty-seventh is to be merged was formed in 1860 by twelve persons who met in the old Beekman mansion, near to where the church now stands. This house was held by the British, and in it Nathan Hale was tried and condemned. The last night of his life he spent in the greenhouse in the mansion garden.

Refusal to Wed Costs Him $10,000.

A City Court jury returned yesterday to Judge Smith a $10,000 verdict for breach of promise of marriage in favor of Fanny Liebenau against Joseph Krauss. Miss Liebenau swore Krauss was the father of her child.

Stropping vs. Throwing Blades Away

WITH most safety razors you throw away a blade after a few shaves.

But you don't change AutoStrop Razor blades any oftener than you'd hone your old-fashioned razor. Because it's kept sharp by expert stropping—only razor that strops automatically.

Strops, shaves, cleans—without detaching blade. Dealers sell them on trial, refunding cost if unsatisfactory. Will you get one today?

ASKS AID FOR POOR FAMILY.

Father Is Ill and Mother Is Forced to Support Seven Children.

Her husband stricken with consumption, and she in no condition to do hard work, the case of a mother with seven children to support has been brought to the attention of the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities. For the last five years the health of the husband has been barely able to support his family, and he is now in a sanitarium. The wife is janitress of the building in which she and her children live. For her services she receives a reduction in her rent, and is able at times to make a small amount by washing. This, combined with the irregular earnings of her two eldest children, is all that this family has to exist upon.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities asks the readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES to assist in raising $150, to be paid to this woman in small sums weekly, so that she and her children may be kept from want until the father is again able to provide for them. Contributions may be sent to the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, marked 3127.

CALLS DEAD WOMAN HIS WIFE.

Her Relatives Seek to Enjoin Him from Getting Her Money.

That he was secretly married to Maria Steuger, who died on March 2, for a period of ten years is contended by Adolph Deutsch in a suit to restrain him from withdrawing $2,242.96 from the Dry Dock Savings Institution. The money was transferred to his account on an order signed by the woman and presented by Deutsch on the day of her death.

An injunction to restrain him and the bank from disturbing the money is sought by Julius and Eugene Herbener, nephews of the deceased woman, who assert that she made a will in their favor in 1902. This will is said to be in the possession of their father, George Herbener, who is now on his way from Europe.

Supreme Court Justice Newburger reserved decision on the injunction until his return.

$3,500 FOR COMPLEAT ANGLER

First Edition of Isaak Walton's Book Bought by Charles Scribner's Sons.

A first edition of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler," London, 1653, was sold at Anderson's yesterday for $3,500 to Charles Scribner's Sons. It is said to be the second highest price paid for this famous work at auction in America. The John G. Heckscher copy sold at Merwin-Clayton's for $3,900. In London a copy brought in 1909 $5,425. A fourth edition of Walton's work, London, 1668, went to George D. Smith for $250.

The same bidder bought for $755 a copy of the first edition of Thackeray's "Vanity Fair" in the original parts. William Combe's two works on the "Dance of Life," London, 1815-17, brought $94, (Mischke;) the Halliwell-Phillips edition of Shakespeare, $205, (order;) first edition of Percy B. Shelley's "Revolt of Islam," $58, (Dodd & Livingston;) first edition of Joseph Smith's "Book of Mormon," Palmyra, N. Y., 1830, $14.50, (order;) "Not I and Other Poems," first edition, (Davoos-Platz, 1881,) one of the rarest of Robert L. Stevenson's works, $102.50, (Dodd & Livingston,) and Robert Surtees's sporting novels, illustrated by Leech, five volumes, London, 1853-65, $250, (order.)

Copies of "The Anti-Corn Law Circular," July 23 and Dec. 10, 1839, containing the two "Illustrations of the Rent Laws," with descriptive text by Thackeray, brought $45; "Mrs. Perkins's Ball, by M. A. Titmarsh," Charles Dickens's copy, with his book plate, $51, (Smith;) first edition of "The Universel Angler," by Walton, Cotton, and Venables, London, 1676, $105, (Smith;) C. M. Westmacott's "English Spy," first edition, $152.50, (Scribner's;) first edition of Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," $63, (Drake;) and a presentation copy from the author of Oscar Wilde's "Poems," London, 1881, $40, (Smith.)

The total for the day was $8,151, and for the entire sale, $18,958.

Peabody of Boston, Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery of Rochester, Miss Jennie V. Hughes of China, and Dr. Mary Riggs Noble of India.

AIDS CUSTOM HOUSE BROKERS

New Law Permits Payment of Duties by Certified Checks.

Custom House brokers, importers, and about fifty of the banks of this city are congratulating themselves on a new law which Congress has just passed and which President Taft has signed, permitting the Custom House brokers to pay duties on imports and internal taxes by means of certified checks instead of by cash or by customs transfer slips, as in the past.

The Custom House slips are issued against daily deposits which the brokers make in the Sub-Treasury through their banks. Often the brokers' banks would be slow in transferring the brokers' money to the Sub-Treasury, and the broker would discover, just about the time that the Custom House was closing at 3 P. M., that he wasn't credited with any money in the Sub-Treasury, and that he might not be able to pay duties and get his goods through the Custom House until next day. Then there would be a great scurrying around for cash and for armed guards to carry it. As high as $20,000 in cash has often been carried by the brokers' employes through downtown streets to get dutiable goods through the Custom House on time.

The Custom House brokerage firm of F. B. Vandergrift & Co. of 15 Whitehall Street was among the sufferers from this inconvenience, and about a year ago determined to put a stop to it. So William W. Rich, President of the company, had his attorneys draft a bill and went down to Washington and asked Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury to have the bill passed. Secretary MacVeagh consented. The bill provides:

> That it shall be lawful for collectors of customs and of internal revenue to receive for duties on imports and internal taxes certified checks drawn on National and State banks and trust companies during such time and under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. No person, however, who may be indebted to the United States on account of duties on imports or internal taxes who shall have tendered a certified check or checks as provisional payment for such duties or taxes in accordance with the terms of this act shall be released from the obligation to make ultimate payments thereof until such certified check so received has been duly paid, and if any such check so received is not duly paid by the bank on which it is drawn and so certifying the United States shall in addition to its right to exact payment from the party originally indebted therefor have a lien for the amount of such check upon all the assets of such bank, and such amount shall be paid out of its assets in preference to any or all other claims whatsoever against said bank, except the necessary costs and expenses of administration and the reimbursement of the United States for the amount expended in the redemption of the circulating notes of such bank.

The bill was signed by President Taft last week and will go into effect June 1.

Knox made Hats

Today begins in all the Smith Gray & Co. stores, the first complete display in New York of Knox made Hats in the 3.00, 4.00 and 5.00 grades—the Knox-Beacon at 3.00—the Knox-Roxford at 4.00—and the Knox-Smith Gray extra quality special at 5.00.

For upwards of seventy years, Knox made Hats have been conceded the absolute standard of quality and style—today they represent the ultimate in every attribute that makes for hat desirability.

Made by an organization, the efforts of which are largely confined to the making of 5.00 hats, the 3.00 and 4.00 grades represent a combination of quality, style, service and value, not found in any other hats of like price.

The Knox-Beacon Hats at 3.00 occur in 5 styles and 30 different dimensions—included among which are the low crown, wide brim derbies, quite English and markedly becoming to the average man. Then, too, there is a new flat brim derby of strong appeal to the younger men—also a derby, made especially for Smith Gray & Co., of medium low crown with brim half way between a flat and roll effect.

The Knox-Roxford Hat at 4.00 is shown in most comprehensive assortment, in shapes along the safe and conservative lines of the regular Knox block.

The Knox-Smith Gray extra quality special at 5.00 is the last word in quality, style and service—shown in most complete and comprehensive assortment—there are blocks for every taste and style idea.

SOFT HATS

Knox-Beacon Soft Hats at 3.00 are to be had in trooper and telescope styles, in varying heights of crown and lengths of brim, in black, brown, Nutria and natural pearl.

Knox-Smith Gray extra quality special Soft Hats at 5.00 occur in Alpine shapes, in every correct dimension, in black, brown and natural pearl.

TAFT ASKS SOUTH TO AID RECIPROCITY

Tells Commercial Congress He Wanted Free Trade with Canada, but Dominion Demurred.

PRAISES WORK OF CONGRESS

And Counsels Southern Young Men to Take Up Political Issues from a Broad and Liberal Standpoint.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 10.—President Taft in a notable speech before the closing session of the Southern Commercial Congress to-night made a plea to the young men of the new South to take up the political issues of the day from a broad and liberal standpoint and to eliminate from their consideration all narrow partisanship, and sectionalism.

"Come fully into our National communion," the President urged, "with the patriotic purpose of stimulating the progress of our civilization in every right direction, maintaining our country's prosperity and accumulating its wealth, but always in subordination to higher ethical standards and to the promotion of righteousness and justice."

Other speakers of National prominence at the closing session of the congress to-night were Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey and Secretary of War J. M. Dickinson. George Westinghouse urged a Federal incorporation act which would protect minority owners of stock.

The President arrived in Atlanta shortly after 11 A. M. to-day, and left at midnight for Augusta, where he is to have a nine days' vacation. From the moment of his arrival until his departure the President was busy. He was escorted from the terminal station, through streets crowded with people, to the Auditorium, where the congress was in session. From there he went to the Capital City Club for luncheon. In the afternoon there was a reception at the Governor's Mansion, a visit to the University Club, and dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The President, in his principal speech to the delegates, after alluding to the great difficulties the South had overcome since the civil war and its present great prosperity, said:

"When I was here in the early part of my Administration, I expressed the hope that I might be permitted to do something to bring the North and South closer together, and to convince our Southern brethren that they were part of the Union and part of the Government, and that we were all really Americans, with no Mason and Dixon line to divide us. My hope has been realized, for my appointments of Southern men to high offices have been received throughout the North as well as the South as proof that birth in the South and participation in the civil war on the side of the Confederacy was not the slightest bar to preferment to the most exalted positions of those plainly competent and fit.

"The growth of the South in wealth, in education, in civil order, and in civilization has contributed greatly to the growth of the country. By making a greater South, you have made a greater country. With what is almost monopoly in the growth of cotton, you have swelled our exports to a point never reached before. By raising in great quantity that which all nations must have, and which you only can produce, you have increased the dependence of the rest of the world upon American industries. There is not the slightest tinge of jealousy or envy of your good condition on the part of the Northern and Western manufacturer or farmers. They rejoice with you in your success and in a progress more rapid than theirs."

The President then proceeded to review the work of the Sixty-first Congress, which, he said, had enacted more useful and progressive legislation in its three sessions than any Congress since the war. The close of its third, its last and shortest session, was obscured by such an apparent clogging of business as to leave the impression that it had done at that session little or nothing in the way of helpful laws. It was due to that Congress, he declared, to remove such an impression.

Speaking of the provision made for the fortification of the Panama Canal, Mr. Taft said:

"The canal was built partly for commercial purposes and partly for defensive purposes, so that the effectiveness of our navy might be doubled in that it could be quickly transferred from the Atlantic to the Pacific seaboard, and vice versa. There were good men who insisted that the canal ought to be neutralized and not fortified at all—in other words, by general international agreement, it should be held for the use of all nations both in time of peace and war. The result would have been that while we could have used the canal we built in time of war to defend ourselves, we could not prevent our enemy from using the same canal for the purpose of attack. With due deference to those who have taken this view, it seems to me that this is carrying the love of peace to an illogical extreme, is adhering to a mere shibboleth and not treating the subject with the common sense and practical view that it deserves."

Mr. Taft finally singled out as the most important achievement of the Congress just ended the ratification of the treaty with Japan. He said:

"The old treaty was about to expire in less than a year. It contained a clause in reference to a limit upon immigration which offended the sensibilities of the Japanese. The new treaty omits this clause, but goes into effect under conditions that make certain a continuance of the present status under which Japan is herself limiting the immigration of her people into this country; and all this without the enforcing of any restrictions on our part. Thus, without offending the patriotic pride of our neighbor upon the Pacific, we are able to maintain an important National policy. It insures the continued friendship of a most progressive and powerful nation with whose development we have beeen intimately connected since Commodore Perry opened her ports. I greatly rejoice that the cloud of uncertainty which hung over the settlement of this question has now been removed.

"Of course, the greatest disappointment of the session was the failure of the Senate to follow the lead of the House in ratifying the reciprocity agreement made with Canada. When we entered upon the negotiations I asked the Secretary of State and his Commissioners to offer free trade in everything, but this Canada could not grant us, because she has a protective system and she was afraid of the competition of our better organized industries.

"The South is particularly interested in the fact that vegetables and cottonseed oil are both put on the free list by the removal of rather heavy duties on both. But I do not ask your support on the ground of any local advantage. I ask it because I regard this treaty, if adopted, as the beginning of a new relation with our rapidly growing neighbor. The removal of the duties provided for in this agreement, or, indeed, the removal of all duties between the two countries, if we could have it, would violate no principle that either a reasonable protectionist or a reasonable tariff reformer upholds.

"Canada is at the parting of the ways. If we now reject this opportunity to bring about closer business and trade relations and insist upon the continuance of an artificial wall between the two countries—which differ no more in conditions of labor and production than do Kentucky and Tennessee or Georgia and Alabama—we shall throw away an opportunity for mutual benefit not likely to recur. It will be a course as blind as that which was followed by the colonies under the articles of confederation, when each colony, taxed the imports from every other colony, a disastrous policy which was the main cause for the adoption of the present Constitution and its inter-State commerce clause. I feel confident that a test of six months of this agreement will so vindicate the wisdom of adopting it as to remove it from political

ROOSEVELT IN BIRMINGHAM.

Advocates a Commission System of Government—At New Orleans To-day.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 10.—Approval of the commission form of government in municipal affairs characterized Col. Roosevelt's address to-day to the citizens of Birmingham, who are about to experiment with the commission system.

"You are the first city of the size," he said, "that has introduced the commission system in your municipal affairs. Now I believe in the commission system, and I am glad you are going to try the experiment, but I would like to say one word of warning to you, based upon thirty years of mighty active experience in practical politics.

"Don't you ever imagine that you can invent any patent system of government which will work by itself if you don't act the part of good citizens. You need good laws, for if the laws are bad the best men cannot produce good results out of them. You need to try every good governmental expedient, but after they have been adopted don't forget that the root of the matter lies in the character of the individual citizen."

To illustrate his warning, Col. Roosevelt called attention to South American republics, which, with systems similar to that of the United States, had failed to establish successful government.

"You are going to try an experiment which I think is fraught with infinite promise for good," he continued. "I believe in the short ballot, and I believe in efficiency, in responsibility, and we have a right to look to you to see that you do your duty and make the form of government work well."

Col. Roosevelt will spend the forenoon to-morrow at Jackson, Miss., leaving for New Orleans shortly after noon.

MME. CALVE SAILS TO-DAY.

Will Leave for Europe with Her Husband, Alnor Gaspari, a Tenor.

Mme. Emma Calvé will sail from America to-day with her husband, Alnor Gaspari, a tenor who appeared with her during her recent concert tour. The two are booked as M. and Mme. Gaspari to sail this morning on the St. Paul.

Mme. Calvé goes away leaving her recent marriage and her visit to New York entirely unexplained. She came here on Sunday with her husband and registered at the Hotel Plaza, but they took separate apartments, and since that time neither of them has made any statement.

Mme. Calvé has often visited her old friend, Mrs. Jessie Baskerville, but otherwise she has remained aloof. She has gone about heavily veiled, and has made as much of a mystery as possible about her appearance here.

FEAR WOMAN WAS SWEPT OVERBOARD

Miss F. M. Warwick of New Haven Missing from Dominion Liner Monroe on Reaching Norfolk.

LAST SEEN ON UPPER DECK

Supposed to Have Remained There in the Teeth of a Gale—Did Not Occupy Stateroom.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., March 10.—Mystery surrounds the disappearance of Miss F. M. Warwick of New Haven, Conn., who left New York on Tuesday afternoon aboard the Old Dominion Line steamer Monroe to visit her brother, Abram Warwick, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, in this city. The belief is entertained by Mr. Warwick that his sister was drowned while the vessel was proceeding south through a gale.

Mr. Warwick was advised yesterday that Miss Warwick probably did not reach her destination. The company's officials think that she was thrown overboard by a lunge of the ship. The fact that she did not appear to claim her baggage when the Monroe docked in Norfolk on Wednesday supports this theory. Search in several Norfolk hotels has been made, but no trace of her whereabouts was found.

Mr. Warwick had been advised that his sister sailed for Norfolk on the Monroe. She was expected to leave that city on Wednesday afternoon over the Norfolk & Western Railway for here. Her brother was at the station to meet her. As she did not appear he concluded she had missed her train. Shortly after his return to his home he was visited by the officials of the company, who informed him of their belief that the woman had been thrown overboard while at sea. Richmond passengers on the ship say they had an unusually rough passage.

Miss Warwick had been visiting friends in New York. She was last seen at 9 o'clock on the upper deck. The weather was so rough and the ship was rocking to such an extent that few ventured from their staterooms. Her brother does not believe that Miss Warwick has committed suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 10.—Relatives of Miss Florence M. Warwick accept the theory that she was swept overboard from the steamer Monroe of the Old Dominion Line, between New York City and Norfolk, on Tuesday night during a gale. She was seen on the deck that evening, but did not occupy her stateroom that night, and has not since been seen. Her brother to-day wired their relatives here that there seems no doubt of her fate. She was a good sailor, and was wont to remain on deck in the teeth of a gale, and she is believed to have overestimated her strength.

Miss Warwick was the daughter of Major William B. Warwick of Richmond. Her sister is married to the Rev. William A. Beardsley, rector of St. Thomas's Episcopal Church in this city. She had been prominent in philanthropic work here, and was a member of the Board of Governors of the New Haven Orphan Asylum. She was 45 years old. It was her custom to go annually to Richmond early in the Spring to visit her brother.

Capt. Catherine of the Old Dominion liner Monroe, upon his arrival yesterday, reported to the company that there was fear that Miss Florence Warwick of Richmond, Va., had been lost at sea during the outward trip to Norfolk. She boarded the vessel here. After the passengers had landed at Norfolk it was found that her trunk and valises were still in her stateroom. No one had seen her go ashore. Mr. Forrest, a representative of the line, said that in the baggage left on board were the addresses of Miss Warwick's relatives in Richmond.

As soon as the discovery was made, he said, an agent of the line left Norfolk for Richmond to ascertain whether Miss Warwick had reached her brother's home or had notified her relatives of her arrival. It was thought that perhaps she had gone ashore, intending to arrange later for the removal of her baggage from the pier. The skipper reports that the Monroe went through some rough seas on her outward trip.

HAIRE CONFUSES ACCUSER.

Admits Begging Lawyer to Ask Guilty Partner to Return Bribe Money.

Col. Robert J. Haire, on trial for attempted subornation of perjury before Justice Davis, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, continued yesterday his cross-examination of John Rodgers, the complainant and self-confessed pickpocket.

Rodgers was under fire all day, and became so confused at times that he could hardly reply to Col. Haire's questions. He was made to identify several letters he had written from the Tombs, begging Col. Haire to ask his partner, Harold Trippett, who pleaded guilty last Monday, to return the money he had received to use in fixing a Judge and getting two witnesses to give perjured testimony for Rodgers.

Col. Haire asked Rodgers when he had first seen him in the Tombs, to which the witness answered that he could not tell, adding:

"I don't know that, but I do know you have a lot of influence and prestige in the Tombs. And I also know that the keepers get you a lot of cases by referring prisoners to you."

The case was adjourned until Monday morning.

CABINET OFFICERS AWAY.

Mr. Meyer and Huntington Wilson Now to Take Short Vacations.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Officials of the Administration are temporarily moving out of Washington. To the list of those already absent, including the President, Secretary of State, Secretary of War, Secretary of Agriculture, the name of Secretary of the Navy Meyer was added to-day, and it was announced that Acting Secretary of State Huntington Wilson will leave the capital to-night for a short vacation in South Carolina.

Mr. Meyer has gone North on a personal trip.

NEW HAVEN TO RETRENCH.

Extensive Economies to be Effected Soon, Due Partly to Rate Decision.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 10.—It is stated that partly as a result of the recent decision of the Inter-State Commerce Commission against increase of freight rates, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company will shortly order extensive reductions upon its system. Purchase of supplies will be curtailed, as well as the cost of maintenance and operation. New work already in progress and under contract is not likely to be much affected. It is understood that the chief retrenchment will be in the operating force and in the shops, but will apply to the number employed, not to wages. The retrenchment will not go into force until about the first of next month, and will thus affect the last quarter of the fiscal year of the company.

It is pointed out that in his last annual report President Mellen expressed the belief that the net loss in the advance of wages over and above increased passenger rates, amounting to $858,753, would be made good from advances allowed on through freight rates by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. As those advances were not allowed, the above reductions were determined upon.

Here are new spring Derbies in full stiff, the featherweight and self-conforming kinds, in the conservative shapes, and those for the younger element, including the low crown and wide brim effects.

Here are soft Hats in wide brim Telescope shapes, Alpines, tourist, punch crowns and Western effects, in the prevailing spring colors.

Stetson Derbies, $3.50 to $10.

Stetson Soft Hats, $3.50 to $12

From England we have imported the new spring styles of J. Moore & Sons' Hats, known as the "Tween," taken from the fact that these Hats come in sixteenth sizes, in all the shapes, from the conservative to the extreme, $3.

We show also Waterproof Soft Wool Hats, from Joseph E. Ward, of Stockport, England, particularly suitable for automobile wear as well as business, $3.

From France the Tirard Freres featherweight Soft Hats in the new spring colors and shapes, $4.

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY, $3 DERBIES AND Soft Hats in the new spring blocks, all new and perfect Hats, $1.75. Fourth floor

New Blouses — And Their Name Is Legion at Gimbels

Here is the simple Shirt, with its severe tailored lines, its tailored collar, its mannish shoulders, sleeves and cuffs of all sorts of mannish materials, from the plain linen to the fancy shirtings.

And here is the Blouse in all its delicate elaboration of style and trimming; Parisian in every aspect but the one of price.

Truly, the Gimbel showing of Blouses for Spring enlarges upon our contention that here is broadest variety shown, with an attraction pricewise in every instance.

Here are Sailor-Collar Blouses, with many a new feature.

Here are low-neck Blouses, in the variations of the kimono style.

Pongee Blouses, $2.95 to $19.75.
Those of Foulards, $5, $5.95 and $8.95.
Of striped silks, $2.95 to $6.95.
And of messalines, $2.65 to $6.95.

BILLION DOLLAR SESSION OF CONGRESS

But the Appropriations Were Only a Million Above President Taft's Estimates.

DEMOCRATS PLAN ECONOMY

New Committee to Pare Down Proposed Expenditures Before the House Passes on Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—When Tom Reed was Speaker of the House of Representatives his political opponents made a cry against his billion-dollar Congress, and it went far to turn the tide against President Harrison in the Presidential election of 1892. But billion-dollar Congresses have been so frequent since that time that the country has become used to them. It is now announced authoritatively that we have just had a billion-dollar session. The statement of appropriations was given out to-day by Mr. Tawney, the ex-Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, and the criticisms of the appropriations by ex-Representative Livingston of Georgia, who for eighteen years has performed this party service and now probably does it for the last time.

Judge Livingston's statement is of timely value, because it throws light on the avowed intention of the Democratic majority in the next House to make the first rule of policy a firm insistence on economy. To accomplish this it is now accepted that the plan of a committee on estimates devised by Representative Sherley of Kentucky will be adopted.

This committee is to be made up of the Chairmen of all the committees of the House having jurisdiction of appropriation bills, and all estimates are to be referred to this committee, which will pare them down to a practical working basis and then bring in a resolution to the House stating the amount estimated for every one of the supply bills. This resolution, when adopted, is to be binding on the House and bar any legislation which proposes an increase of any kind.

It is expected that this system of repressing legislation and keeping down appropriations will operate automatically and relieve committees of much of the pressure that is now put upon them by the executive departments.

Appropriations at the last session of Congress aggregated $1,025,489,662. Mr. Tawney says this is less than $1,000,000 in excess of the total estimates of President Taft, on which the appropriations are based, and he pays high tribute to the President for good faith in scrutinizing estimates, and computes that the surplus of revenues next year will be not less than $26,542,050, which, with any part of the Treasury cash balance, may be applied to the sinking fund.

Mr. Tawney renews his recommendation for the consolidation of the appropriating jurisdiction of the House under a single committee of sufficient size to be representative of all sections of the country and of all branches of the public service. Eight committees now consider and report appropriation bills, and Mr. Tawney says no reform is more important.

The Committee on Appropriations, which reports more than half of the total appropriations of Congress, reported at the first regular session of the last Congress $16,933,925 less than the estimates, while the appropriations by all the other appropriating committees, according to Mr. Tawney, were $27,931,402 in excess of the estimates. Mr. Tawney says that if this consolidatnig reform had been effected it would have saved $32,000,000 at that session alone.

Mr. Tawney says that in the six years of his Chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee the estimates amounted to $6,061,257,132, of which Congress granted all but $165,662,264.

Declaring that the Democrats want to save the people of this country "from the danger which threatens them because of the rampant expenditure of their money that has been going on for the past twelve years," Mr. Livingston in his statement contends that militarism is a menace and that Democratic accession will prevent National bankruptcy.

He says it is a superhuman task to restore expenditures to a normal level because of the enormous liability fastened upon the Treasury "by the statutory increase of the enlisted strength of the army and the navy, fourfold since Mr. Roosevelt was so unhappily called to the Executive office of the Republic."

Mr. Livingston says the nations of the Old World stand agape and wonder over the magnitude of appropriations and increased Federal activity. He compares appropriations for the Fifty-third Congress, the last Democratic one, aggregating $917,013,523, with those of the last Congress for the two fiscal years 1911 and 1912, aggregating $2,053,319,201, and declares that in twelve years there has been more than 500 per cent. increase in all expenditures.

ARMY RANK READJUSTED.

Regimental Promotions Now on an Equal Basis—Officers Moved Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Adjt. Gen. Ainsworth announced to-day the promotions that result from the recent legislation to correct and readjust army rank. Under the old plan of regimental promotion, which was abolished on Oct. 10, 1890, advancement was more rapid in some regiment than in others, and when the plan of lineal promotion throughout each arm was adopted there were about 100 officers who suffered considerably in the position that was given them on their respective grade lists. From that time to this they have been trying to get Congress to set the matter right, and the Congress just adjourned has granted their entreaty. The plan adopted promotes at one stroke forty-three officers without prejudicing any officer in any grade who holds his rank under existing law.

The promotions occur in every arm of the service, and the promotions given below will in turn cause a general series of promotions from grades below to fill vacancies made by these advancements.

POTASH SETTLEMENT NEAR.

Officials Deny There Is Any Diplomatic Dispute—Dr. Hill on Way Home.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—With the American reply to the German note on the potash controversy in the hands of the German Ambassador, it was declared in official quarters here to-day that the dispute was capable of an amicable settlement. It was denied that there was any friction between the two Governments in connection with the diplomatic interchange.

The controversy, it is understood here, probably will be settled by a compromise between the private interests involved.

BERLIN, March 10.—Dr. David Jayne Hill, the American Ambassador to Germany, and Mrs. Hill left Berlin to-night for New York.

Dr. Hill will proceed from New York to Washington to discuss with the Secretary of State qeustions pending between Germany and the United States, among them the potash controversy. Later he will deliver a series of lectures at Columbia University.

JUDGE CRITICISES TAFT.

Van Orsdel Objects to President Forcing Legislation on Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The President was criticized from an unusual source last evening when in an address to the Bachelor Club here Justice J. A. Van Orsdel of the District Court of Appeals took the President to task for forcing legislation upon Congress.

"I look with alarm on the tendency of the executive branch of the Government to dictate to the legislative branch," declared Justice Van Orsdel, warmly. "It is a new thing in this country, and I do not believe it was intended that the Executive should say to Congress: 'You pass this law or I'll call an extra session and compel you to stay here until you do pass it.'

"I, as a member of the judiciary, may have gone beyond the bounds of propriety in making this criticism, but I am sure that that theory was not the one on which our Government was founded."

May Tax Notes Found in This State.

By a divided opinion the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court ruled yesterday that promissory notes found in a safe deposit box in this State may be legally taxed as the New York property of a decedent, even though the decedent died out of the State and the makers of the notes were non-residents. The decision affects $60,000 worth of notes belonging to the estate of the Rev. Charles C. Tiffany, who died in Sharon, Conn., leaving a $500,000 estate.

THREE ATTORNEYS DISBARRED BY COURT

C. N. Ironside, Armand Spenser, and Edgar Logan Ruled Out by Appellate Division.

KEPT MONEY OF CLIENTS

French Consulate Responsible for Shutting Out of Spenser, Who Prosecuted Claims of Frenchmen.

Decisions disbarring Attorneys Charles N. Ironside, Armand Spenser, and Edgar Logan were handed down yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

Ironside was retained to collect a claim of $268 on a 10 per cent. basis. He collected two installments totaling $212, the Appellate Division finds.

"Thereafter," states the decision, "the client made inquiries from the attorney, who not only concealed the fact that any payment had been made, but informed him that no payment had been made. Thereafter the client, having learned the actual facts, employed another attorney to collect from Ironside, who finally paid $100. He has never paid any further portion of the amount collected, and was properly found by the referee to have wrongfully and unlawfully converted his client's money to his own use, and guilty of deceit, fraud, malpractice, and unprofessional conduct in his office as attorney at law. He must be disbarred."

Logan was found guilty of deceiving a client, Mary F. Richards, in a mortgage transaction. She executed a mortgage to him upon a parcel of land in Morsemere, a section of Yonkers, to secure the repayment of $4,000. Logan delivered this mortgage and an assignment of it to Park Benjamin. Benjamin foreclosed it Feb. 14, 1905, in an action in which he named Mrs. Richards and Logan as defendants. Logan secured a postponement of the foreclosure sale by small payments until May 12, 1905. Meanwhile he learned that another client, Mrs. Ada B. Whittemore, had $2,500 in the bank. He told her that he had a safe investment at 6 per cent. for her in Yonkers and she paid over the $2,500 to him. He wrote her under date of April 30, 1906, nearly a year after the mortgage sale:

"Would you care to take $2,500 of a mortgage on a house at Morsemere temporarily? I want to keep it alive and take it up and buy for a client who has not the money, temporarily."

"So it appears," says the court, "that at the time he procured from Mrs. Whittemore the $2,500 as a temporary call loan, upon the presentation that the security was unquestionable, and perfectly safe in every respect, he concealed from her that the mortgage had been foreclosed."

The French Consulate in this city was responsible for procuring Spenser's disbarrment. He had distributed a circular in France advertising the collection of American claims on a 30 per cent. contingent fee basis. He applied part of the money collected to his own purposes, but made restitution after the disbarrment proceedings had been started. This, the Appellate Division said, it could not take into consideration and pronounced Spenser "unworthy to continue in the practice of an honorable profession."

$75,000 FIRE IN ENGLEWOOD.

Hackensack Sends Help—Telephone Service Will Be Cut Off for a Time.

Special to The New York Times.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., March 10.—The Bergen Building, occupied by the Public Service Corporation, the New York Telephone Company, several stores and six living apartments, was partly destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is put at $75,000.

Julia O'Brien and Katherine Zaremba prevented a panic among the telephone operators who remained at the switchboard until well nigh suffocated by smoke. The town will be without telephone service for nearly a week. The building, a three-story brick structure, is owned by Dr. Byron G. Van Horne. This is the third fire he has suffered within a week. For two hours the business section of Englewood was threatened because of the poor water service. Not until Hackensack sent help were the flames subdued.

1,000 and the Band Locked Out.

About 1,000 persons, most of them residents of Brooklyn, went all the way to Niblo's Garden at 170th Street and Third Avenue, the Bronx, last night, to attend a dance which had been advertised for the benefit of the Free Employment Association for Waiters and Bartenders. When they got to the hall they found only the band standing in front of a locked and bolted entrance. Louis Dimburg, proprietor of the hall, said M. Lippman of 716 Cauldwell Avenue, who engaged the hall, sent him a telegram telling him that the dance had been postponed. He sent a boy to Lippman's home and received word that Lippman had gone to Chicago.

THE HACKMAN DISPLEASED.

He Got No $3 for Taking Anybody to Belmont Suffrage Meeting, Says He.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., March 10.—Whether or not the folk who attended Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont's suffrage meeting at Brookholt last Saturday night had a good time listening to the speeches is something that J. W. Davis, the liveryman here, says he doesn't know, although every one who spoke to him about it said they enjoyed themselves. But he does know that nobody paid him any $3 or $5 for the drive from the station to Mrs. Belmont's place and back.

"Why one man didn't pay me at all," said Mr. Davis to-day. "And I had to drive him and his wife three and a half miles out and three and a half miles back. It was announced on the circulars that the charge for hack service would be fifty cents the round trip, and I never tried to charge any more. Neither did any one else who drove.

"Some folks, I understand, didn't pay at all for their ride, saying that they supposed carriages were to be furnished free. The man I had trouble with was one of these. I asked him for $1 for himself and his wife and showed him the printed circular, but he refused to pay.

"I told him then that he didn't look like it, but if he were a man who didn't have a dollar I'd even give him one and not think of trying to charge him for the ride. However, he wouldn't pay, and he had a lady with him. That was all there was about it. I couldn't do anything then."

There are none in Hempstead who paid more than the recognized 50 cents.

THINK BOY STARTED FIRES.

Two in School Where He Said He'd "Get Hunk" with Teacher.

Two incendiary fires kindled in different class rooms in Public School 84 in Theodore and Albert Streets in the Steinway section of Long Island City, within the past few days, are attributed by detectives to Kalman Lakatos, 11 years old, of 691 Ninth Avenue, Astoria. Yesterday he was taken in custody and sent to the rooms of the Children's Society in Brooklyn.

This is one of the fine new school houses erected in Queens within the past few years. Dr. J. D. Melville is the Principal, and the first blaze was discovered in the book room of Grade 3-A on the second floor, which is taught by Miss Sarah M. Cox. This is the class attended by young Lakatos. The fire was set in the book room and was discovered immediately after the school had been dismissed for the noon hour. It was extinguished after a loss of about $200. A second fire came Wednesday about the same hour, set in another room, and was put out by the teachers and janitor.

Miss Cox said Kalman Lakatos had been the unruly member of her class, and had been punished several times by being kept in. He informed his companions, so they told Detective Fordham, that he intended to "get hunk with her."

Minister Egan Here on Leave.

Dr. Maurice Egan, American Minister to Denmark, arrived from Copenhagen yesterday on the Scandinavian-American liner Oscar II. He is here on a two months' leave of absence. Before returning to his post he will lecture at the Johns Hopkins University.

MATTEAWAN WITNESS SEIZED BY SHERIFF

Galbraith, on Whose Testimony Riley Was Held for Nugent's Death, in Custody Here.

COLLINS ANSWERS THAW

Just a Case of an Unreasoning Man Wanting Favors, Declares Superintendent of Prisons.

George Galbraith, the Matteawan Asylum attendant, on whose testimony Daniel Riley, another attendant, had been arrested for manslaughter in connection with the death of John J. Nugent, an inmate, was taken into custody in this city last night on a writ of attachment issued by Under Sheriff Hornbeck of Dutchess County.

Galbraith did not show up at the examination in the case on Thursday morning at Poughkeepsie. His attorney, John J. Donnelly, presented a telegram from him, dated New Rochelle, saying he had been sick and could not appear in court that day. Judge Hasbrouck immediately forfeited the bond of $150 under which Galbraith had been held as a material witness and issued the attachment.

Galbraith was found at 200 West Fifty-second Street, where he has been rooming since he left Matteawan. He said he went to New Rochelle Wednesday night, and was too ill Thursday morning to go to Poughkeepsie. He denied that he was trying to avoid giving his testimony, and said he had done all he could in telegraphing his attorney and in sending word to his landlady to forward to him in New Rochelle any word she might receive for him. He returned to this city Thursday night, and had been ready to go to Poughkeepsie, he said, whenever notified that he was wanted.

The issue raised by Harry K. Thaw as to his treatment in Matteawan was discussed in statements issued yesterday by Superintendent of Prisons Collins and Clarence J. Shearn, Thaw's attorney. Thaw complained recently in a letter to Gov. Dix and Mr. Shearn followed this up by a letter a few days ago.

The statement of Superintendent Collins was made public in Albany. It included extracts from a letter sent to him last October by Dr. Robert B. Lamb, Superintendent of the Matteawan Asylum, in regard to complaints made by Mr. Shearn at that time. Dr. Lamb said that the question was whether Thaw and his mother should formulate rules for the government of the institution or abide by the rules formulated by the institution and impartially applied to all its patients. Concerning the alleged assault on Andrew Anderson by Attendant McDonald, Dr. Lamb said no reliable witness could be found who would say that any assault occurred, that Anderson's body showed no mark and that Thaw refused to answer any questions at the investigation.

Dr. Lamb declared that Mrs. Thaw had at all times been treated politely and respectfully and that Thaw had had more visitors than all the other inmates combined. In conclusion he said:

"It is for want of reason and judgment that Harry K. Thaw is here. It is for want of reason and judgment that Harry K. Thaw asks favors that are not and can not be given to other patients, and it is by reason of his domination over his mother that she demands all that Harry demands—much of which cannot be granted—and which is the present source of friction."

Replying to this statement, Clarence J. Shearn said, in part:

"It is unfair and utterly discreditable to Collins and Lamb that an attempt should be made to mislead the public into believing that any question of special privileges to Thaw or to his mother is involved. Both of them know that such is not the case, and resort to this deception shows their unfitness to hold their office.

"The only question is whether an inmate of a public institution shall be punished and deprived of the ordinary rights and privileges accorded to all others merely because the patient has protested against wanton brutality to other patients and called public attention to the death of another patient under circumstances pointing strongly to murder."

THEY GO TO HEAR BRYAN

And Get a Chautauqua Lecture with Political Intermission.

An announcement that William Jennings Bryan was going to speak of "The Signs of the Times" brought about 200 members of the Twilight Club and many reporters to the National Arts Club last night. They listened to an address evidently prepared in advance for the Chautauqua circuit over which Mr. Bryan occasionally passes, without catching any reference to Sheehan on the north, or Mexico on the south, or Wilson to westward.

For the most part Mr. Bryan's address dealt with his experiences in foreign lands, observing the modern tendencies toward democracy. He told how the Persians and Russians and British and Egyptians were moving steadily toward more democratic governmental forms.

Speaking of the proposal for popular election of Senators, which will soon be in the President's hands for signature, he said:

"The evidence, before us for a generation, of the manner in which the Senate has been the bulwark of exploitive special interests is beginning to tell. I believe in the second House, but I believe that the only way to rescue it from the odium now surrounding it is to have the people choose their Senators directly.

"They used to say oratory was dead because we had the newspapers. Jefferson thought the newspapers would keep our public officials from becoming wolves by keeping them in touch with the pressures of public sentiment. But I want to tell you the newspapers have patted and praised the wolves, and so to-day we need orators more than ever before in the world's history to tell us what the wolves are doing to us." At the conclusion of his lecture Mr. Bryan left for the West.

WOMEN PHYSICIANS DINE.

No Man Admitted at the Closing of Their State Convention.

A dinner at the Hotel Leonori, Madison Avenue and Sixty-third Street, last night, closed the sessions of the fifth annual convention of the Women's Medical Society of New York State. One hundred women physicians dined. No men were admitted to the dinner or allowed to listen to the speeches.

Dr. Mary B. Jewett is President of the society, and Dr. Eveline P. Ballentine Secretary. Dr. Angenette Parry was Chairman of the Arrangements Committee. Dr. Eliza M. Mosher was toast mistress of the dinner.

Dr. Grace Peckham Murray responded to the toast, "The Absent"; Dr. Yamai Kin spoke to "Our Medical Sisters in China," Dr. Mary Lawson Neff related "Frontier Experiences," Dr. Elizabeth B. Thelberg spoke on "Our College Girls," Dr. Ruth Webster Lathrop made prophecies regarding the "Woman Physician of the Future," Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton repeated "Reminiscences of Student Days in Germany," Margaret M. York responded to a toast, "The Dress and Undress of To-day," and Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden spoke on "Silver Linings."

Day sessions were held at the Academy of Medicine, 17 West Forty-third Street, at which the report of the Scientific Programme Committee was given by Dr. Evelyn Garrigue, the report of the Legislative Committee by Dr. Grace W. Kimball, and the report of the Public Health Committee by Dr. Eleanor Parry.

Scientific papers were read by Dr. Mary D. Rushmore, Dr. Caroline S. Findley, Dr. Eveline P. Ballentine, Dr. Mary Gage Day, Dr. Sarah J. McNutt, Dr. Isabel M. Meader, Dr. Jane L. Berry, and Dr. Grace Peckham Murray.

HORSE DASHES UP STEPS.

Knocks a Man Down and Rolls on Him Trying to Enter Borough Hall.

A runaway horse owned by John Jones of 176 Mrytle Avenue, Brooklyn, with the broken shafts of a wagon dangling dashed through the busy section near Borough Hall yesterday afternoon and attempted to run up the long stretch of stone steps leading to Borough Hall itself. The animal knocked down Thomas Cunningham, an insurance broker, who was coming down the steps, then fell on him. It struggled to its feet and ran into a hallway entrance on the ground floor.

Several persons ran to Cunningham's assistance. He received a severe scalp wound, but was not seriously injured. After his wound was treated by Ambulance Surgeon McClellan of the Brooklyn Hospital he was taken to his home at 446 Prospect Place.

The horse ran away at Fulton and Liberty Streets. Jones got off his wagon to let the animal take a drink at a watering trough there, and it bolted. At Clinton and Fulton Streets the wagon struck an elevated railroad pillar and was demolished.

Madam, Here's Something New

Here is a spaghetti, Italian style, made better than in Rome.

It's our newest dish—the most popular dish our chefs have ever created.

They spent two years on the recipe. They employ in the making 17 ingredients, each the finest of its kind.

The main ones are these:

Durum wheat spaghetti.
Herkimer County full cream cheese.
Best creamery butter.
The same superlative tomato sauce we use in Van Camp's Pork & Beans.

This dish, ready cooked, is now at your grocer's. All you have to do is to heat it.

It is so amazingly good that people notice it instantly. You will find no one who ever has eaten another spaghetti like this.

Don't ask how we make it, for that is our secret. The recipe is priceless.

But enjoy it—enjoy it to the full. It's hearty and cheap and delicious.

Every time that you serve it you'll be glad that we make it.

And, however much you serve, there will never be any left over.

Tell your grocer—now before you forget it—to send the first supply. Then note how often you serve it—a dish you never had before.

SWIMMING RECORDS FALL IN 3 EVENTS

De Witt Clinton Team Wins Point Honors in Interscholastic Races.

The annual interscholastic swimming tournament, which was held last night in the tank of the College of the City of New York under the auspices of the High Schools Games Committee, proved to be a big success and was witnessed by the largest crowd ever assembled in the natatorium, which numbered about 1,500 persons.

Records began to fall in the first event on the programme, which was the 800-foot relay, and from all indications it will stand unchallenged for some time. The De Witt Clinton quartet covered the distance in 2:52 3-5, which bettered the old P. S. A. L. mark by 10 seconds. Then the figures in the 50-yard swim went by the board when H. Davis of De Witt Clinton bettered the mark by 1 2-5 seconds, when he swam the 50 yards in 0:28 3-5. The third record to be hung up was the one for the plunge, in which J. Schneider of the Townsend Harris Hall plunged a distance of 59 feet, breaking the record of F. Meyer, which was made in the events of 1910, when he covered 55 feet 5 inches.

The De Witt Clinton School swept all the opposing teams aside for the point honors and made a tally of 38 points for the six events; Townsend Harris was second with 20, High School of Commerce came in third with 5, and the teams of Stuyvesant and Manual tied for fourth honors with 4 points each, while the other two competing schools, Boys' High and Eastern District, were shut out without a single tally.

The feature event was the 800-foot relay, and after the necessary trial heats were run off the final furnished a great race, despite the fact that Clinton won easily by about half the length of the tank, the other three teams finishing in a neck-and-neck race, it being hard to pick the second and third positions. Zimm of Clinton, who took up the first relay for his team, got off to a good start, and after he had covered the two lengths he retired with a slight margin for Rogers. The latter continued in the premier position and gradually opened a gap on his opponents, and when the final relay was taken up by Davis he had an advantage of about ten yards. This was increased at the end to fully a half length of the tank, and Clinton was returned the victor. The other teams came in within arm's reach of each other.

After the trial plunges were decided the surviving ones were the best of the association, and in the final try J. Schneider stayed on the surface until he had reached the fifty-nine-foot mark and thereby established a new record.

The fifty-yard swim was productive of some good sport and was a nip and tuck battle for the honrs, in which H. Davis of De Witt Clinton was finally returned the victor and with his victory went the old mark for the distance, as his time was one and two-fifths faster than the old mark.

W. Moore of the victorious school annexed the easiest victory of the tournament by winning the 100-yard race. Moore was led for about twenty-five yards of the distance by J. McAuliffe, and the latter was going along in good style, but Moore suddenly shot out in front and took the lead, which he held until the finish. The summaries:

800-Foot Relay.—Won by De Witt Clinton, team composed of Zimm, Rogers, Moore, and Davis; Manual Training, team composed of Palmer, Du Temple, Kranich, and Wieler, second; De Witt Clinton, second team, composed of Trenholm, Seymour, Halasz, and McAuliffe, third; Townsend Harris, team composed of Miller, Rogow, Grossman, and Robinson, fourth. Time—2:52 3-5.

Plunge for Distance.—Won by J. Schneider, Townsend Harris, distance, 59 feet; A. Kalman, High School of Commerce, distance, 56 feet, second; L. Schwartz, De Witt Clinton, distance, 54 feet, third; F. Neuse, High School of Commerce, distance, 51 feet 5 inches, fourth.

220-Yard Swim.—Won by H. Rogers, De Witt Clinton; J. Seymour, De Witt Clinton, second; A. Miller, Townsend Harris, third; J. Walsh, Commerce, fourth. Time—3:03 4-5.

50-Yard Swim.—Won by H. Davis, De Witt Clinton; W. Edgar, Stuyvesant, second; M. Rogow, Townsend Harris, third; M. Kranich, Manual Training, fourth. Time—0:28 3-5.

Fancy Diving Contest.—Won by O. Benjamin, Townsend Harris (110⅛ points); S. Rogan, Townsend Harris (109 points), second; J. Tarler, De Witt Clinton (83½ points), third; H. Sullivan, De Witt Clinton, (82½ points,) fourth.

100 Yard Swim.—Won by W. Moore, De Witt Clinton; J. McAuliffe, De Witt Clinton, second; A. Robinson, Townsend Harris, third; Peters, Stuyvesant, fourth. Time, 1.13 4-5.

Point Score.—De Witt Clinton, (33); Townsend Harris, (20); High School of Commerce, (5); Stuyvesant, (4); Manual Training, (4).

CRICKET DATES SELECTED.

New York and New Jersey Association Clubs to Play Home and Home Series.

At an Executive Committee meeting of the New York and New Jersey Cricket Association, held at The Hermitage, the schedule of games for the championship series of the association was formulated. It was decided to play a home-and-home series between the clubs, and twenty matches were arranged, beginning on May 30 and ending Sept. 2.

The Bellevue Cricket Club decided not to take part in the competition this season, and will confine itself to exhibition games. It will be known in the future as the Commonwealth Cricket Club. The invitation from Sidney Young, Secretary of the Associated Cricket Clubs of Philadelphia, was received and steps were taken to co-operate with the Metropolitan District Cricket League in sending a New York eleven to the proposed international games in Philadelphia.

Included in the fixtures scheduled is a game between the association and Toronto, to be played on July 20 at Staten Island during the tour of the Canadian representatives in this vicinity, when they will also play the Staten Islands, Veterans, Crescent A. C., and Bensonhurst. The local schedule follows:

May 30, Bensonhurst vs. Richmond County, at Ulmer Park; June 3, New York Veterans vs. Richmond County, at West New Brighton; Crescent A. C. vs. Bensonhurst, at Bay Ridge; 10, Richmond County vs. Staten Island, at West New Brighton; 17, New York Veterans vs. Staten Island at West New Brighton; Crescent A. C. vs. Richmond County, at Bay Ridge; 24, Crescent A. C. vs. New York Veterans, at Bay Ridge; July 1, Staten Island v. Crescent A. C., at Livingston; 8, New York Veterans vs. Crescent A. C., at West New Brighton; Bensonhurst vs. Staten Island, at Ulmer Park; 15, Bensonhurst vs. New York Veterans, at Ulmer Park; Richmond County vs. Crescent A. C., at West New Brighton; 20, New York and New Jersey Cricket Association vs. Toronto, at Staten Island; 29, Crescent A. C. vs. Staten Island, at Bay Ridge; Richmond County vs. Bensonhurst, at West New Brighton; Aug. 5, Staten Island vs. Richmond County, at Livingston; Aug. 12, Bensonhurst vs. Crescent A. C., at Ulmer Park; Aug. 19, Staten Island vs. Bensonhurst, at Livingston; Richmond County vs. New York Veterans, at West New Brighton; 26, New York Veterans vs. Bensonhurst, at West New Brighton; Sept. 2, New York Veterans vs. Staten Island, at West New Brighton.

Barnard Defeats Sachs School.

Barnard School basketball players defeated the quintet from Sachs School yesterday in the Eighth Regiment Armory by a score of 18 to 11, gained mainly by excellent passing. J. Lilliandahl was the mainstay of the winning five, as he tallied four goals from the field. The summary:

Barnard.	Position.	Sachs
M. Frank	Left forward	Schuman
J. Lilliandahl	Right forward	G. Burkhard
Temple	Centre	E. Burkhard
N. Frank, Crane	Right guard	Rossbach

Goals from field—M. Frank 2, J. Lilliandahl 4, Valentine 2, N. Frank 1, Schuman 4. Goals from fouls—G. Burkhard 3. Referee—J. Jardine. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

One-Sided Basket Ball Game.

In a very one-sided basket ball game last night in the old Second Battery Armory, Tremont, the team of the Bronx Catholic Club defeated the Fordham Catholic Club five by a score of 39 to 5. Gantz, right forward for the winners, was the star of the game, tallying nine goals from the field. Murphy, substitute left guard for the Bronx contingent, threw four baskets during the short time he was in the game. The lineup:

Tierney	Right Forward	Gantz
Mann	Centre	Dougherty

Goals from field—Gantz, 9; Archibald, 2; Dougherty, 2; Leslie, 1; Fitzgibbon, 1, Murphy, 4; Mann, 1. Goals from fouls—Riley, 2; Dougherty, 1. Referee—R. Volz, Franklin A. C. Time—20 minute halves.

Union's Basket Ball Record.

The Union College basket ball team has closed its season with a record of seven victories and two defeats. This year's five was the fastest that has represented the college on a basket ball court in many seasons, and, as a result, there has been renewed interest in the game at this institution. Union won from West Point, Rochester, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Tufts, Colgate, Pratt, and Syracuse. The two defeats were administered by Colgate and Rochester in return games.

FLY-CASTING AND SHOOTING AT GARDEN

L. S. Darling Leads with Rod and Bridgeport Team Best at Sportsmen's Show Traps.

The fly-casting and trap-shooting contests continue to be the main features of the Sportsmen's Show in Madison Square Garden. The chief interest in the competitions yesterday was centered in little Madge Seixas, the four-year-old daughter of Phil Seixas, who is well known in the athletic world. The young miss is an ardent "woodsman," and a clever fly-caster, having a mark of forty-five feet with a fly rod weighing about four ounces, which she used yesterday in her casts. She trod the trail to the top of the mountain at the Fourth Avenue end of the amphitheatre, and insisted upon casting into the waterfall which runs down its side.

The dry fly-casting for accuracy was won by L. S. Darling, with a percentage of 98 14-15; R. J. Held was second, with 98 6-15; J. E. Mitchell third with 97 6-15, while the other top scores were J. L. Kirk, 97, and E. M. Gill, 96. The conditions required that one cast be made at each of five buoys placed 20, 30, 40, 50, and 60 feet from the platform. A demerit was given for each foot or fraction of a foot the fly landed away from the target, and another demerit for each failure to make the fly float for at least one second.

In the fly-casting for distance, Dr. R. J. Held made the creditable distance of 57 4-12 feet; A. J. March of Orange was second with 55 feet 11 inches, and J. L. Kirk third with 49 feet 5 inches. In this contest a horizontal bar supported by two uprights was placed in front of the contestant at a distance of thirty feet and six feet above the level of the water. Casts were made under this bar with a complete reel, six-foot leaders.

The Van Allen cup, the trophy which the trap shooters are trying for in the indoor shooting event, to be decided next Monday evening, was made a perpetual prize yesterday, when the donor provided the means for its being competed for yearly by the establishment of a fund, through a trust company. The cup is a beautiful piece of the silversmith's art, and is to be presented to the amateur who makes the highest score in any one of the events at fifty targets during the week of the Sportsmen's Show. At the present time, Lester German, former pitcher of the Giants, has the best chance of capturing the prize, with his clean score of 50, made two days ago.

Miss Annie Ricker of Lancaster, Penn., was an entrant in the trap shooting tourney yesterday, and she made the excellent showing of 39 breaks of a possible 50. It was her first experience at indoor shooting, and she intends taking more practice in order to qualify for the finals. Miss Ricker recently won a 100 bird shoot at the traps of the Eastern Gun Club, with a score of 87, against John Wheaton with 85.

The scores made yesterday, all shooting at fifty targets, were as follows: F. D. Kelsey, 48; F. Stephenson, 46; W. T. Smith 45; E. D. Reed, 44; E. D. Borden, C. H. Daly, F. Grosbeck, H. Burlington, A. Betti, and E. G. Southey all recorded 43; G. H. Pomelly, 42; G. L. Lyon, 41; J. S. Fanning, 41; Edward Viffett, 41; G. F. Hamlin, 41; G. H. King, 40; E. A. Wilson, 40; C. Von Lengerke, 40; George Piercy, 39. Eighty individual scores were recorded in the preliminaries of the day for the amateur and champion finals on Monday.

A programme of special three-man team events was inaugurated yesterday, and will be a feature this afternoon. The results were as follows:

Danbury, Conn., Team.—C. H. Daly, 43; C. W. Stevens, 36, and F. T. Clarke, 42. Total—121.

Bridgeport, Conn., Team.—E. Southey, 39; C. Sherwood, 35, and C. Vanstone, 32. Total—106.

New Haven Team.—W. Rice, 29; Dr. Funk, 35, and Dr. Bishop, 36. Total—100.

Jersey City Team.—H. J. Burlington, 37; H. H. Shannon, 37, and E. Hallinger, 29. Total—103.

North Caldwell, N. J., Team.—G. G. Francisco, 33; L. Stager, 33, and W. Kussmaul, 38. Total—104.

YALE GYMNASTS WIN.

Sons of Old Eli Vanquish New York University Athletes by 36 to 18.

Yale won its annual gymnastic contests with New York University last night in the "gym" on University Heights by a score of 36 to 18. Old Eli made a clean sweep in the parallel bar event, getting all three places, while the home contingent returned the compliment in the club swinging by shutting Yale out. A. Everard of Yale, the intercollegiate champion on the parallel bars, won first place in his specialty, and with E. G. Clark, the Eli Captain, managed to tally 20 points between them. The summary:

Horizontal Bar.—Won by E. G. Clark, Yale, with 35 points; F. M. Callahan, Yale, second, with 32.5; J. Cremer, New York University, third, with 26.5.

Parallel Bars.—Won by A. Everard, Yale, with 51 points; B. Ruge, Yale, second, with 50.5; C. Samuels, Yale, third, with 49.2.

Club Swinging.—Won by D. Phillips, New York University, with 27 points; S. Dutcher, New York University, second, with 24.2; F. Russell, New York University, third, with 24.

Side Horse.—Won by A. Everard, Yale, with 46.8 points; J. Cremer, New York University, second, with 43; A. Scofield, New York University, third, with 40.5.

Flying Rings.—Won by E. G. Clark, Yale, with 46 points; J. Cremer, New York University, second, with 43; B. Ruge, New York University, third, with 42.

Tumbling.—Won by F. M. Callahan, Yale, with 52.7; W. Williams, Yale, second, with 46.5; J. Norton, New York University, third, with 38.7.

Brown Football Schedule.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 10.—The Brown University football schedule, announced to-night, includes eleven games, one more than last year. Brown this year drops Colgate and Norwich. Trinity, Bowdoin, and New Hampshire are taken on. Following is the schedule:

Sept. 30, New Hampshire at Providence; Oct. 4, Rhode Island at Providence; 7, Massachusetts Agricultural College at Providence; 14, Bowdoin at Providence; 21, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 28, Harvard at Cambridge; Nov. 4, Tufts at Providence; 11, Yale at New Haven; 18, Vermont at Providence; 25, Trinity at Providence; 30, Carlisle at Providence.

LARGE SHIPMENT OF AEROPLANES TO CUBA

Famous Fliers Will Compete in Aviation Tournament at Havana.

The largest shipment of aeroplanes ever made in the United States will leave New York for Havana to-day. The Aero Club of America has granted a sanction for an international aviation tournament to be held in Havana, Cuba, from March 18 to 27, and the machines will be used in the contests there. This is the first competitive tournament to be held in any country in the Western Hemisphere outside of the United States. Among the airmen already entered are Roland G. Garros, Bene Simon, and Rene Barrier, all of France; Edmond Audemars of Switzerland, St. Croix Johnston, and M. J. Seymour of the United States, and John J. Frisbie of Ireland. Mlle. Dutrie, one of the most famous of French airwomen, is now on her way across the Atlantic to drive a French biplane in the tournament. It is expected that several other world-famous aviators will fly at Havana.

The prize list put up by the newly formed Aero Club of Cuba already aggregates $30,000 in cash, and a number of valuable cups and trophies. Among the most important prizes is the $3,000 in gold offered by the Havana City Council for the fastest flight made from Camp Columbia to and around El Morro and return before March 31. McCurdy competed for this prize when he was in Cuba in January, as it was then thought that competition for the prize would close on March 1. But the City Council of Havana determined, in view of the forthcoming open tournament, to extend the time in which the prize might be tried for to March 31. Garros, Simon, Barrier, and Johnston have already entered the El Morro competition.

Mr. Johnston, who arrived in the United States only a few days ago, left yesterday for Havana with two monoplanes. Garros, Simon, Barrier, Audemars, Seymour, and Frisbie, who have been flying in Mexico City for the past fortnight—where the three French airmen all passed the 12,000-foot mark and established new speed records for overcity flights—leave to-day from Vera Cruz for Havana.

Six aeroplanes were taken from the Moisant factory in this city yesterday morning to the Ward Line dock to be shipped to Cuba to-day. Twelve pairs of extra wings, tail planes, and many other parts form a portion of the shipment. Included in the six flying machines sent from here for use in Cuba, is the latest type of the Moisant metal monoplane, designed and used by John B. Moisant.

The Aero Club of America is sending two representatives to Havana in order that due cognizance may be taken of the new speed and altitude records that it is hoped will be established during the competitions there. The Aero Club of Cuba, under whose auspices the Havana tournament is held, has 150 active members, and is growing very rapidly. Its Honorary President is President Gomez of Cuba. Speaker Ferarra of the House of Representatives is the actual head of the club.

Harmon Talks on Aviation.

Clifford B. Harmon delivered an address, illustrated by stereopticon views, last night at the Gardner School for Girls, 507 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Harmon explained at length the science of aviation, and afterward showed moving pictures of several of the big tournaments in which he took part.

$8,000 FOR YEARLING COLT.

David Look Buys Trotting-Bred Youngster, Mr. Stokes.

David M. Look of New York has purchased from W. E. D. Stokes, proprietor of the Patchen Wilkes Stock Farm, the sensational ten-months-old trotting-bred colt Mr. Stokes. The price, $8,000, is a record for a yearling trotter. Mr. Stokes is by the famous stallion Peter the Great, and is a full brother to Miss Stokes, 2:09¼, the fastest two-year-old filly of 1910. The deal was announced by Mr. Stokes to a number of road drivers. The future of the yearling is in the hands of Trainer McDonald.

He Relied On the Telephone

ONE of the largest contracting engineers in the world was injured recently, and was confined to his bed for some days. It was just at the crucial period in the construction of a big job which demanded his personal attention. Without his guiding brain mistakes might occur—serious ones that could not be remedied.

What did he do?

He had a telephone installed at his bedside. With his secretary nearby, and the telephone connecting him with the superintendent of construction and his other subordinates, he directed the progress of the work almost as well as if he had been on the spot. The telephone made him master of the situation.

Busy men are not free from illness and accident, and it is during the periods of enforced absence from their usual duties that they most appreciate the convenience of telephone service. The telephone keeps them constantly in touch with their business or professional affairs. It relieves them from worry. It hastens their recovery.

By the way, have you a telephone in your home?

PETER A. SCHEMM'S PAINTINGS ON VIEW

Schreyer's 'A Wallachian Teamster; Entangled in the Marshes,' Among the Notable Canvases.

FINE EXAMPLES OF ISRAELS

"Summer," by Harpignies; "Farmyard," by Jacque, and "Mill in Flanders," by Cazin, Among French Pictures.

The collection of the late Peter A. Schemm, now on view at the American Art Galleries, contains not only some notable pictures, important from the point of view of the salesrooms, but an unusual number that are pleasure-giving and generally rewarding, without claiming the overworked title of masterpiece.

The big Schreyer in the lower gallery comes close to deserving that title, however. We do not remember ever having seen a picture by this extremely uneven painter so eloquent of his best qualities. The subject is "A Wallachian Teamster Entangled in the Marshes." The struggling horses show the strain on their muscles without exaggeration of modeling. The color is strong, but subdued, the tawny whites of the nearest horse having been beautifully contrasted with the dark gray of the sky. Especially is the surface admirable in quality, quite free from the disconcerting woolliness of Schreyer's less fortunate moments.

The Dutch school was in high favor with Mr. Schemm. There are several good examples of Israel's work, one in particular, "Amusing the Baby," hanging near a charming Kever, (both water colors) shows strikingly the greater mastery of the older man. Other Dutch painters who are well represented are Blommers, Mauve, Mesdag, (with several noble versions of the shipping at Scheveningen,) Neuhuys, Willem Maris, (who died last year in possession of an already enviable fame,) Ter Meulen, young Van Mastenbroek, Jongkind, Willy Maartens, Artz, and others.

Several German pictures of more or less importance are in the exhibition, the most interesting, aside from the Schreyer, is "Mother and Child," by Franz von Lenbach, one of that painter's "sketch portraits" in which his great facility shows to the best advantage.

The French Pictures.

Among the French pictures are a "Summer" by Harpignies, dated ten years ago when the veteran master was already old; a "Farmyard" by Charles Emile Jacque with a flock of sheep awkwardly crowding to the foreground; a "Mill in Flanders" by Cazin; four subjects, a "Magdalen" and a woman's head, an ideal head, and a girl in some beautiful red drapery by Henner; a "Landscape" by Michel, "Highland Cattle" by Rosa Bonheur, a marine by Jules Dupré, some military sketches by Meissonier, and a fine "Group of Animals" by Troyon.

A little group of marines by Alfred Stevens is especially interesting as completing for the uninitiated the impression made by Stevens as a marine painter at the Berlin Photographic Company's Galleries. One only of the several views of Tréport is entirely charming and this (253) has the exquisite surface and the jeweled color of Stevens's finer work, together with a unity of effect lacking in all but one of his other marines in the present exhibition. A curious and enlightening contrast has been given to this fastidious art by hanging a little sea-painting of Mesdag's in the centre of the group where its gravity and weight are given their full value.

One of the most amusing and competent of the minor pictures is Boldini's "La Place Clichy," which perhaps is misplaced as a "minor" performance. Its breadth and certainty of drawing, the brilliant vivacity of the little figures, each perfectly characterized, and the spots of delightful color give it an importance that will increase with time.

Work of Americans.

Almost one entire room is filled with the work of Americans, and among the well-known names are C. P. Gruppe, H. Bolton Jones, George Inness (with five examples), G. H. Smillie, W. E. Schofield (with a Winter landscape), Arthur Parton, the two Morans, J. F. Murphy, Walter Mittleton, W. L. Lathrop, Augustus Koopman, D. R. Knight, Arthur Hoeber, C. W. Eaton, Frank De Haven, H. C. Dearth, Dennis Bunker, and George Bogert.

A fine painting of Spanish fishermen, by Brangwyn, is the salient example of the English school.

Mr. Schemm was a generous man with his pictures, and many of these examples have been brought together from public exhibitions to which they have been loaned and where they have been enjoyed by a large public. The whole collection is stamped at once by personal taste and by the sort of cordial bonhomie that enables a man to live on excellent terms with many types of art. The oil colors will be sold at Mendelssohn Hall on the evenings of March 15, 16, and 17; the water colors at the American Art Galleries on the evening of March 14.

ART NOTES.

The eighty-sixth annual exhibition of the National Academy of Design opened yesterday with a private view and reception. The pictures fairly represent the average achievement of the regular contributors. There are no surprises, and there is nothing so salient as to call for immediate notice, but the exhibition contains much excellent workmanship and many thoughtful and serious compositions.

No large canvas occupies the place of honor in the Vanderbilt Gallery, and it is difficult to see just why Mr. Johanson's interesting "In the Garden," which took the Saltus gold medal, or Mr. Hawthorne's "The Trousseau," also a picture of considerable size and the winner of the Clarke prize, should not have been hung there instead of the three small pictures of which the most distinguished is Mr. Hassam's "Nursemaid and Children in a Park," a very charming rendering of sunlight on green foliage and lawns, but not an effective canvas from a distance.

A good many of the pictures will be familiar to those who frequent the smaller exhibitions of the season. Martha Walter's smiling young girl in a richly plaided skirt has been seen both here and in Philadelphia, where it was a prize winner a year or so ago. Jerome Myers has a kaleidoscopic color arrangement—a procession with banners marching through one of the east side streets—which was shown, we believe, in one of the Fifth Avenue galleries; Robert Reid's blonde girl in sunlight was in his special exhibition. We have seen Emil Carlson's still life before, and Lewis Cohen's landscape, which is even more dignified and striking in these motley surroundings than it looked in the more suitable environment of a private gallery. This also is true of T. Luis Mora's "In a Studio," and more conspicuously true of the portrait by Wilhelm Funk, which, if we remember rightly, was not finished when we saw it before.

There are landscapes by J. Francis Murphy, H. Bolton Jones, Edward Potthast, Joseph Boston, H. R. Butler, Gardner Symons, I. F. Mielatz, Robert Spencer, Gifford Beal, Edmund Lawson, Elmer Schofield, Guy C. Wiggins, Daniel Garber, Guy Rose, Arthur Dow, Ann Crane, R. W. Van Boskerk, Albert Groll, Jane Peterson, Edward Dufner, Birge Harrison, J. F. Carlson, George Bellows, Lilian Genth, George H. Smillie, (whose contribution commemorates his fiftieth year as a painter and bears an inscription to that effect,) Sheldon Parsons, and C. F. Ryder.

Figure subjects are sent by Matilda Brownell, F. C. Jones, E. Prellwitz, J. C. Johanson, Will Howe Foote, Robert Reid, Lilian Genth, C. W. Hawthorne, Childe Hassam, R. MacCameron, Arthur Crisp, Irving R. Wiles, E. F. Couse, Victor Hecht, Ella Condie Lamb, Martha Walter, Sergeant Kendall, Jean McLane, D. A. Tauszky, F. E. Church, E. R. Finley, A. L. Kroll, F. Luis Mora, W. Funk, L. F. Berneke, Louis Vallance, Helen M. Turner, Orlando Rouland, F. W. Maynard, M. Curtis Richardson, Hilda Belcher, Louise Cox, L. E. Bittinger, Chester C. Hayes, A. E. Albright, Clara Weaver Parrish, Alice Schille, Sherman Potts, Ben Ali Haggin, Albert Sterner, C. Noel Flagg, and others.

The prizes were given as follows: The Clarke prize to C. W. Hawthorne for his picture called "The Trousseau," the Innes gold medal to G. Elmer Schofield for his "February Morning," the Saltus prize to John C. Johanson for "In the Garden," the first Hallgarten prize to Lilian Genth for her "Depth of Woods," the second Hallgarten to Joseph Pearson's "Geese," the third to Leslie Thomson's "Tea," the Shaw prize to Mary Vander Veer for an "Interior" with a figure.

New Novels

Bawbee Jock

By Amy McLaren.

A pleasant, wholesome, entertaining, Scottish love story. "Jock," the impoverished head of a Highland clan, has let his ancestral home to a moneyed Englishman. He falls in love with one of his tenant's guests, and the story of his romantic courtship is sympathetically told. $1.35 net.

A Question of Marriage

Mrs. George de Horne Vaizey.

A deeply interesting story of the problem order, written with deep tenderness and full of beautiful thought. The novel is marked by quiet strength, is infused with sincerity, and conveys a message that will not be lost. $1.25 net.

The Return

By Walter de la Mare.

The story of the possession of a commonplace, easy-going man by the furtive, restless spirit of a French suicide, a sort of low conjurer and adventurer, dead several centuries. The sensations through which the possessed passes before the final expulsion of the intruding spirit are graphically depicted, and the working out of the uncanny situation is done with such artistic sleight-of-hand that the reader remains enthralled. $1.25 net.

East and West

Comparative Studies of Nature in Eastern and Western States.

By Stanton Davis Kirkham, Author of "Mexican Trails," etc.

8vo. Illustrated. $1.75 net.

A delightful volume of nature studies, part appreciative, part informing. Mr. Kirkham has given vivid descriptions of some of the most arrestingly beautiful or perennially fascinating sections in the Eastern and Western parts of the United States, and information about the birds and other animals, as well as the plants indigenous to the different regions.

Schools of Painting

By Mary Innes.

Edited, with a chapter on Schools of Painting in America, and certain further additional material, by Charles De Kay 106 Illustrations. $2.50 net.

This book offers a general view of the development of painting in Europe from the first century, A. D., to the beginning of the nineteenth. It supplies an historical background to the art movements in various countries, so that the influence of one school upon another may be rightly judged. A brief biography is given of the prominent painters in each school, with a description of their most famous pictures and an appreciation of their work.

TYPEWRITING

MSS. copied. Promptness, accuracy, my specialty. Elizabeth Daniell, 132 Claremont Av. Telephone 3325 Morningside.

To the Men and Women of America:

Our faith as publishers in One Way Out has been justified.

It is one of those rare books which gain a national circulation by intimate, personal, enthusiastic, word-of-mouth recommendation.

It is the story of how a man of 38 lost his position and in his suburban home had to face the problem of how to exist, how he and his wonderful wife, Ruth, solved that problem in an unexpected and dramatic way by "emigrating" to America, and what they did there.

The reviews have been prompt, enthusiastic and complete, some of the best journals in the country giving column-long notices to the book.

There is space for only the briefest of extracts from a few:

Edwin L. Shuman, in the Chicago Record Herald:	"It is a real book; it 'reads true' from start to finish, and it is original and absorbing throughout. The tale GRIPS LIKE A VISE and charms like a pleasing romance."
James L. Ford, in the New York Herald:	"One of the most convincing and interesting [books] that I have read in many a long day, and, in my opinion, it is BOUND TO BE WIDELY READ and thoughtfully discussed."
A. E. Winship, Editor Journal of Education:	"You have done more good in publishing 'One Way Out' than you will ever know. Will not some of the noble rich BUY A MILLION COPIES and see that they are given to those who need them?"
E. F. Edgett, in the Boston Transcript:	"It may well serve as AN INSPIRATION FOR MANY A MAN. And simply as a story, 'One Way Out' excels both because of its intrinsic interest and its novelty."
Rochester Post-Express:	"A very impressive narrative. The story OUGHT TO BE READ BY THE AMERICAN PEOPLE."
Springfield Union:	"It will probably ATTRACT AS WIDE-SPREAD ATTENTION as 'LOOKING BACKWARD,' and it is more practical than Mr. Bellamy's because it provides a 'way out' for those who have the courage."
New York Times:	"A great adventure, one that would have been a great adventure in any man's life. 'One Way Out' has that MOST GRIPPING APPEAL that inheres in all true leaves out of human experience....bound to be fruitful of suggestion and mental stir."

The Patriot (PICCOLO MONDO ANTICO)

An impassioned story of lovers struggling to break the barriers of aristocratic prejudice that opposed their marriage. It is also a story of patriotism—of the freeing of Italy from the Austrian yoke.

The Sinner (PICCOLO MONDO MODERNO)

The dramatic story of Piero Maironi, the son of the hero of The Patriot, and of his love for the beautiful Jeanne Dessalle—a story that presents a vivid picture of the Italian world of rank and fashion, and involves, too, a study of political and ecclesiastical life.

The Saint (IL SANTO)

The hero of The Sinner and the lover of Jeanne Dessalle appears as a penitent full of religious zeal and finds a double outlet—in asceticism and works of mercy and in an attempt to reform the Church of Rome from within. On publication this book was placed upon the "Index Librorum Prohibitorum."

The Patrician

By

John Galsworthy

Author of "Fraternity," "A Motley," "Justice," etc.

A novel of present day aristocratic English life containing a love story so moving that its equal cannot often be found anywhere in English literature.

Young Lord Miltoun's struggle between his love and his principles becomes as vivid as if enacted before the reader's eyes; the all-conquering Barbara, whose patrician pride revolts against patrician bulwarks, becomes a radiant beauty in fact as well as in name.

The Camera Fiend

By E. W. Hornung

Author of "Raffles"

Although the charming heroine alone is excuse enough for a novel, its main interest lies in the tracking down of a cunning criminal by an astute young detective — himself a character of strong individuality. The first page of the book is exciting, and the excitement is kept up without a pause by murders, disappearances, and all manner of sensational encounters which finally bring up at a climax that startles.

ART EXHIBITION AT UNION LEAGUE

J. W. Alexander's "Phyllis" and George De F. Brush's "A Head" Are Triumphant Paintings.

PORTRAIT OF LITTLE GIRL

J. Alden Weir's Work Redolent of Serious Serenity—Douglas Volk Represented by Charming Figure of Girl.

At the Union League Club is an exhibition of pictures that will well repay a visit from those fortunate enough to have the necessary invitation. At one end of the gallery is a beautiful picture by J. W. Alexander, not before exhibited, and one of the most ingratiating examples of his always ingratiating art. The title is "Phyllis." A slim girl stands holding a glass bowl in her hands, a big yellow hat forms a halo about her very graceful head, the sunlight touches her waist and arm and face, the shadow is luminous to an extraordinary degree for even this painter of luminous shades. In a word, the picture is a triumphant Alexander.

Near it hangs another triumph by a well-known painter, "A Head," by George De Forest Brush. It is an exquisite piece of miniature painting, with the breadth which the fine old miniatures found it possible to combine with the utmost delicacy of finish. The rosy cheeks, the tip-tilted nose, the strong crimson background, are marvels of close, firm craftsmanship, and furnish an example for the modern painter in little which should not be neglected. It is a manner much better suited to the small scale of the present picture than to the larger scale on which most of the artist's recent painting has been done.

J. Alden Weir has an early portrait of a little girl in an embroidered white dress standing in a library near a leather-covered armchair. The transition from the dark surroundings to the little white figure is successfully made, and the whole painting is redolent of that serious serenity, that calm depth of mood, in which this artist has worked from the beginning, and which is a rare quality in American art. Douglas Volk is represented by a charming figure of a girl holding grapes, slightly sugary in color and sentiment, but preserving the delicate contours of youth with a sympathetic daintiness of line. Harry W. Watrous has a characteristic figure of a girl in a wonderfully tailored gown which he calls "A Trip to Sea, a Wedding Ring, and He," with reference, presumably, to the fortune she is reading in her teacup. F. J. Waugh has a marine in which the waves dash high against a stern and rockbound coast, but which somehow misses the bigger rhythms of the ocean, without which its surface turbulence seems ineffective.

"The Sirens," by F. S. Church, will tempt the gallery visitor to error. Note that three things are different, a leopard, a lady, and a cupid, otherwise perhaps you might have seen the canvas before. William A. Coffin is represented by a clear-cut little "Spring Morning," Bruce Crane by a monochromatic "Sunrise," Frederick Crane by "Afternoon Near Dorset," Edward Dufner by "The Bathers," in which the light quite certainly is that of the poet's dream. Ben Foster's "Evening Mists" are of the substantial kind that sweep over marshy land and wrap the earth in a gray torn shroud, and are hard on delicate throats. Childe Hassam's "The Piano" we noticed at a previous exhibition. "An Early Colonial Wedding," by E. L. Henry, is crowded with figures. One visitor counted them and announced the fact in triumph. He was asked how many there were, but he had forgotten. Certain paintings do cry out for these mathematical tributes, but Mr. Henry's work is so vivacious and dainty in its punctilious quaintness that we prefer to see it, as we do old sporting prints, for its sprightly antiquarian charm, without arithmetic or analysis.

Other exhibitors are Francis C. Jones, H. Bolton Jones, F. W. Kost, H. Siddons Mowbray, J. Francis Murphy, Walter L. Palmer, and R. W. Van Boskerck.

In the small gallery beyond the picture gallery have been placed a collection of antique porcelains, pottery, and bronzes, in part belonging to the club and in part loaned by the members. These comprise some very wonderful specimens of ninth century Rakka ware, and of the ancient Han pottery from North China, which dates back two hundred years before Christ, as well as fine examples of Ming pottery and tiles, Persian and Mesopotamian wares, Chinese blue and white ware, and single-color porcelains, as well as the three and five color porcelains of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and a group of Chinese cloisonné enamels and ancient bronzes. This truly remarkable collection will draw to itself the attention of connoisseurs, who will be glad to know that the section belonging to the club is to be on permanent exhibition.

REAL SUFFRAGE PLAY READY.

Mrs. Kidder Wrote It in a Week After English "Pageant" Couldn't Be Had.

"The Pageant of Protest," a real American woman suffrage play, which is to be given for the benefit of the Woman Suffrage Party at the Broadway Theatre on Tuesday, March 28, had a first rehearsal yesterday. Mrs. Augusta Raymond Kidder, the author, directed the rehearsal.

The suffrage party had made arrangements to use Cicely Hamilton's "Pageant of Great Women" when a letter was received from Miss Edith Craig, Ellen Terry's daughter, who is Miss Hamilton's business manager, saying that the play could not be used unless the women would agree to produce it fifty times and pay the royalties in advance. That was out of the question. Mrs. Kidder undertook immediately to write another "Pageant," was locked up in the Metropolitan tower, and finished the play in a week.

The play was read at the residence of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the Woman Suffrage Party head, 2 West Eighty-sixth Street, on Thursday night and was pronounced greatly superior to the Hamilton play. The opening scene will show Uncle Sam, with Our Cause, dressed in rags, prostrate at his feet. Columbia pleads for Our Cause, who gradually rises, and her rags fall away, revealing a beautifully dressed young person. Uncle Sam asks what the women have done, and this gives excuse for the introduction of thirteen tableaux representing great American women from the days of Pocahontas down. All the characters in the tableaux will be taken, as far as possible, by women in some way connected with the work for which the picture stands. All the speaking parts in the play will be taken by men and women of the stage, the tableaux most of them by amateurs.

Among the typical great women represented will be Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Mary Baker Eddy will have a place among the great and typical women. The pageant is written in verse, and those who heard it say that it is remarkable and moved them both to laughter and tears.

AMONG THE AUTHORS

MR. WILLIAM H. OSBORNE says, in a recent interview, that he wrote his first story after reading an article on "How to Write Short Stories." Following this venture with 105 short stories written the next year (1902) he has since had 450 of his stories published. During the same period he has published two novels, and a third appears this week. Mr. Osborne is a lawyer.

MR. REGINALD KAUFFMANN, who has finished his lecture tour, sails this month with his wife for Brittany, where he will write his next novel. The latter, it is rather vaguely said, will deal with "one of the big problems of the day."

MISS BEATRICE GRIMSHAW, author of "When the Red Gods Call," is an explorer of out-of-the-way places, who, fifteen years ago lived among the Fiji Islanders and afterward wrote two books about her experiences. Miss Grimshaw is now in the Eastern archipelago collecting material for a series of stories.

MR. RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD, author of "Jim Hands," according to an article in the current Bookman was, while an undergraduate at Harvard, one of the Board of Editors of The Lampoon. He was also the President of The Advocate, the ivy orator of his class, the author of the libretto for a Hasty Pudding play, and a football player. He was graduated from the university in 1903, and then entered the Law School. He had some practical experience in journalism through working on the Boston papers, and after finishing his law course went to Washington as a correspondent. "Balzac and Thackeray make me forget that I am reading a book," says Mr. Child. "Dickens and most of the English authors make me positively remember it."

PROF. ERSKINE COMPLIMENTED.

IN congratulating Prof. John Erskine on his "Leading American Novelist," the London author wishes that he would give us, in a companion volume, similar appreciations of the authors of "Arthur Gordon Pym," "The Epic of Wheat," "Huckleberry Finn," "Mr. Isaacs" and "Elsie Venner," to say nothing of living writers.

Keeping Up With Lizzie
By Irving Bacheller
"The trouble," says the Honorable Socrates Potter, who tells the story, "began when Samuel Henshaw, grocer, started to make a queen of his daughter Lizzie." The pace set by her corrupted the simplicity of the little Connecticut town, and the new houses, "with towers on them," the automobiles, university tuition, and foreign tours jeopardized the financial stability of the community. The story is a shrewd commentary on American life, full of humor and humanity.
The Unknown Lady
By Justus Miles Forman
Suppose you had something of very great and unusual value, something you believed in with all your heart—and you wanted to tell other people about it—what would you say? Remember, all the describing adjectives have been used; they are old and worn smooth with lip service. It isn't easy, is it? That is the situation one finds oneself in in trying to talk about "The Unknown Lady"—a novel which Justus Miles Forman has just written. It doesn't make any difference what kind of a plot it has—the story itself is there, palpitating, warm with life, vigorous with feeling, appealing with gracious manner and enticing charm of style. Most everybody is reading it.
The Skipper and the Skipped
By Holman Day
Full of humor, with the tang of the brine along Cap'n Sproul's native Maine coast. Cap'n Sproul, the author's famous character, has new adventures that turn the town topsy-turvy. Pitted against the local tyrant, Colonel Gideon Ward, the Cap'n is often in desperate straits, but the wit and ingenuity of the man who has "side-wiped many Portergees" are more than a match for him. "A lot of meditation and a little prayer will do wonders in this world, especially when you're mad enough," is Cap'n Sproul's philosophy.
Fortunata
By Marjorie Patterson
A few years ago when Rex Beach was putting forth his first book we said in this column that lots of people would know his name soon. That same thing is true of another new and unknown author, who is presented here for the first time. Her name is Marjorie Patterson; she is only twenty—and comes pretty close to genius. Her book, "Fortunata," is an astonishing work—a novel of tremendous force, of vivid characterization and of vigorous action. Fortunata is the name of the heroine, and she is a wonderful new kind of girl—a kind of Becky Sharp in another setting. It is a book to remember.

CUPID INTELLIGENT
By JULIA A. BALBACH
12mo, Illustrated, 198 pages..........$1.25
This book, written by a New York woman whose interest in women's clubs and in her fellow beings have been widely commented upon by the press, deals with a Cupid that went about his work with an idea of uplifting people and improving their condition.
"It is in fact as sensible a book as any one could wish if not excitingly fresh and piquant. The volume is a kind of woman's rights book and really there is no answer to the plea set forth in novel form."—Buffalo Evening News.
"It is very evident the author has not written for the average novel reader, but has given a somewhat intimate account of the lives of her characters—self-possessed people in conventional environment."—Troy Times.
"Two or three sweet little love stories run through the book, stories which serve to apply truths which she tells."—Troy Standard.
"An effective little story convincingly presenting the ideas of what may perhaps be called the typical twentieth century woman."—Newark Evening News.

BY this remarkable novel, Vaughan Kester places himself in the forefront of American writers of fiction. In every respect he shows his eminence by an ability ample and abundant.
He handles an intricate plot, with mystery at its heart, firmly and assuredly. His characters stand up alive—men and women to know and enjoy. His humor is genuine and genuinely American. His style fits every occasion, meeting the demands of each climax powerfully but without straining for effect.

BORROWING TO LEND AND TO SPEND.

Of the $60,000,000 received for the 4¼ per cent. bonds which the city issued the other day the larger portion has since been on deposit at presumably the going rate of 2 per cent., and certainly at less than the city is paying. There are other and more important reasons than the loss of the difference in interest why such a state of things is undesirable. On the one hand it is not to be desired that the city should have such considerable sums to bestow as favors among bankers, and, on the other hand, it is not good management that the city should often be asking accommodations on long-time security. Especially is this so in consideration of the fact that the city is one of the largest borrowers on short-time security. Up to the time of tax collection last year the city borrowed $165,259,296 on short-term obligations, and this is the usual run of business. The long-term borrowings since the creation of the greater city have ranged between 22 and 96 million dollars for each single year. It thus appears that the city borrows both to lend and to spend, and that there is a lack of good system in both operations.

The ideal would be that the city's resources should become available from time to time as needed, and that meanwhile they should remain in the pockets of the people who pay the money. On the one hand the city should guard against being compelled to finance itself at an inconvenient season, and on the other hand it should not safeguard itself against this by piling up scores of millions for which it has no immediate use in the manner indicated above. There are three proposals to remedy these inconveniences. One, to make the taxes payable semi-annually, has not yet been formulated, but has been described by the Controller and has received a somewhat doubtful reception for reasons connected with the buying and selling of real estate. A bill, introduced yesterday, proposes to enable the Controller to make sales of the city's securities in foreign lands in such manner as will facilitate the operation, which already is of much use. It has been estimated that one-third of the last 60 millions was taken by foreign subscribers. Evidently the amount might have been larger if the securities had been offered in the foreign market, in the currency of the country, and in pieces suitable to the customs of foreign buyers, who prefer small denominations. The third measure, also introduced yesterday, proposes a substitute for the "revenue warrants" on which the city has been accustomed to make its short-term borrowings. By including bills and notes within the lawful credit resources of the city, and by issuing these from time to time, it will be possible to choose the time of issuing the long-time securities with which the short-time issues shall be redeemed.

It will be seen that all these proposals relate to the method of borrowing, and tend to facilitate the process by bringing it into better agreement with the settled customs of the lenders. The proposals may have defects not apparent on their face, but so far as appears they are desirable on their merits, apart from the scandals of the moment which strengthen the argument from considerations of customary finance. There is every reason why the city should borrow and lend in the manner approved by experience instead of persisting in its own bad way.

NO DANGER OF WAR.

It is obvious that the country refuses to believe that President TAFT has acted hastily or unwisely in dispatching a large body of troops to the Mexican frontier and a war fleet to Mexican waters, or to be alarmed about the possible result. The explanation that a strong frontier guard is needed to prevent the breaking of neutrality laws by the recruiting and arming of revolutionists on United States soil is regarded as sufficient. The situation in Lower California assuredly demanded prompt action on the part of the United States Government. The belief that the Diaz Government has known the course the United States intended to pursue, and has tacitly approved of it, is widespread. All yarns, therefore, manufactured at home or abroad of the influence exerted by various capitalists who have interests in Mexico fail of effect. American financial interests in Mexico are very large, and they may in time need protection. There is at present, however, no trustworthy indication that the Government in the Zocalo Palace is tottering, that the Chihuahua rebels cannot be conquered, and peace restored throughout the republic, if help to the revolutionists is not supplied from the United States.

We should be slow to accept statements not only from the various revolutionary juntas, but from Mexicans, not avowedly revolutionists, who are obviously not in touch with the present policy of the National Palace. There are official assurances from the City of Mexico that the relations of President DIAZ and his Ministry with this country are not strained, and there is no present likelihood that the soldiers summoned to Texas will have use for their ball cartridges. President TAFT is a man of conservative mind and the confidence the country places in him at this juncture is doubtless well placed.

PLANS OF THE NEW THEATRE.

The avowed failure of The New Theatre is both architectural and economic. Artistically there have been some very promising results, and more time also is needed to develop the individual talent and harmonious interplay of a stock company. From this point of view any harsh judgment of The New Theatre's work has been unfair. But quite apart from the disputed point of the eligibility of the location, and we think that events have shown that the house has not been neglected on that account, the structural defects of the building are radical. There are too many seats from which all of the stage cannot be seen, the acoustics are hopelessly bad, and the huge open balcony with its persistent glare of lights has been found unattractive. The prevailing plan of theatrical construction, with the horseshoe form, and the overhanging balconies, has been proved the most satisfactory.

The temple of the drama in Central Park West, therefore, is to be abandoned as the abiding place of the company of actors endowed by a number of wealthy New Yorkers, and its future is in doubt. It may be a second opera house, which promises a dubious future, a concert hall to rival the Fifty-seventh Street building, and supply the place of Mendelssohn Hall; it is not to be thought of as a variety theatre or cheap playhouse. With some more or less expensive alterations it might suit the needs of the National Academy of Design. That is worth thinking about.

The announcement that the company is to be maintained and to be more suitably housed within the next two years is good news. The new building will presumably be less expensive to run. The fixed charges of the Central Park West house must be three times those of an ordinary first-class theatre. Apart from the actors' salaries, the cost of ushers, attendants, mechanics and stage hands is enormous. Permanent occupation is given to a small army of producers and designers. The items of heat and light are very large. Curtailment can be made in all these expenses in a smaller house without departing at all from the scheme of the founders. Mr. AMES, according to the announcement, is to retain the directorship in the tour of the company next Fall and Winter, and it is to be hoped that he will be retained thereafter. He has borne a large share of abuse, while much praise has gone out to some of the subordinates he appointed. He has directed a theatre which has drawn larger audiences and taken in much more money than any other playhouse in New York. He deserves a chance to profit by his experiences and carry his plans to fruition.

It is seen now that The New Theatre was established on no settled plan. It is in no sense a National theatre. It represents a capitalization of conflicting ideals, moods, and fancies. Its founders are no more than human, surely, and as long as the institution lasts they will expect some recognition in its proceedings of their individual tastes, whims, and prejudices. The director must be a man capable of maintaining harmony under conditions which would keep an ordinary impresario in a state of perpetual bewilderment. There is a harsh and discordant note in the otherwise calm and well-worded official announcement of the founders' plans. That is in the implication that the failure of the present building is due to "the advice of a leading theatrical expert." The late HEINRICH CONRIED's ideas are not to be questioned now. The theatre that was built, largely because of his enthusiasm, was not his, and the founders of The New Theatre are all old enough and strong enough to bear the burden of their own errors.

WILL MR. COLLIN EXPLAIN?

There is not the slightest reason to suppose that in asking District Attorney WHITMAN to confer with Attorney General CARMODY concerning the affairs of the Carnegie Trust Company Gov. DIX had any other purpose than that of properly safeguarding the interests of the State, which has a large sum of money locked up by the failure of that institution. But in the circumstances attending the delivery of his letter to Mr. WHITMAN there is ample warrant for the conclusion that the Governor was imposed upon, that his confidence was abused, and that an attempt was made to make him, without his knowledge, a party to an interference with the course of justice.

Gov. DIX handed to Prof. CHARLES A. COLLIN, his legal adviser, the brief letter he had dictated to the District Attorney, with the request that he deliver it to Mr. WHITMAN. When Prof. COLLIN arrived in this city he handed the letter to Mr. STEPHEN G. BALDWIN, who is the counsel of WILLIAM J. CUMMINS, President of the Carnegie Trust Company; of JOSEPH B. REICHMANN, a Director of that Company, and of CHARLES H. HYDE, City Chamberlain. The relations of these gentlemen to the company are a subject into which the District Attorney is inquiring. By the hand of this messenger, who was possibly the last person in the world to be chosen for such a service, the letter was delivered late at night to District Attorney WHITMAN. It is reported that in delivering it Mr. BALDWIN used certain expressions indicating his belief that the letter would have the effect of checking the activities of the public prosecutor in the pursuit of information concerning Mr. BALDWIN's clients. It further appears that the Governor's letter was unsealed at the time of its delivery, and it is reported that it had been read prior to delivery by other persons than the public official to whom it was addressed.

Inasmuch as communications from the Governor of the State to District Attorneys are not customarily delivered by the counsel of persons whom it may be necessary to bring before the Grand Jury, the strange circumstances attending the delivery of this letter call for explanation. Evidently Prof. CHARLES A. COLLIN is the man who can give the explanation. Thus far he has given none. Yet his reputation as a member of the Bar and his relation to the Chief Executive of the State certainly call somewhat loudly upon him to clear his own skirts.

What was attempted in this case does not lie beyond the realm of reasonable conjecture. District Attorney WHITMAN has carried his inquiries into the management of the Carnegie Trust Company to a point where proceedings of a serious nature may become necessary. If it be conjectured or supposed that the persons most deeply interested in these proceedings had formed a plan or a plot to stay the hand of Mr. WHITMAN, it can be said, at least, that that theory would be compatible with the known facts. Apparently these gentlemen had counted upon the co-operation of the Attorney General of the State. Mr. CARMODY refused to co-operate with them. Possibly they hoped that after an examination of the matter the Attorney General would report to the Governor that the entire investigation should be committed into his hands, thus relieving District Attorney WHITMAN not only of responsibility but of power. If they counted upon Mr. CARMODY for such a service they entirely misjudged him. He will, of course, look after the interests of the State, but the District Attorney of New York County will continue his investigation, and he may be counted upon to carry it to its logical result. Of course Mr. CHARLES H. HYDE, City Chamberlain, turns up in this affair. It seems to be his fate to be involved in many affairs with which a City Chamberlain should have nothing to do. The public amazement grows at the failure of Mayor GAYNOR to understand that Mr. HYDE's continuance in office is a monstrous scandal.

WHAT RECIPROCITY IS.

In the first place it is a crowning of the policy of lasting peace that has been maintained, not without difficulty, along our northern border for nearly a century. It makes for peace in two ways. It largely secures the benefits of freer commerce between the countries, and this is a great gain because it is the hindrances to trade that cause bad feeling, which the liberty of mutual trade tends to prevent and to replace by countless ties of good feeling. In this process the agreement opens the channels of commerce northward and southward and practically puts an end to the policy of the British Tories, which aims at blocking those channels and directing the currents of trade eastward across the ocean to the special gain of England. Incidentally, our acceptance of the agreement would also destroy the hope of the British Tories to establish a tariff wall about the markets of England, with the avowed purpose of reducing American trade. These are results of great and permanent value which in themselves are enough to decide the votes of reasonable members of Congress.

In the second place, reciprocity is the beginning of a policy that will powerfully protect the natural resources of our own country, to the conservation of which the nation has devoted years of study and is preparing to expend many millions of dollars. It would at once open to us the immense actual and increasing supplies of food and of forest products existing in the great Dominion, and give to us the same priceless advantages we have derived in the past from like resources within our own borders. Our growth has been so rapid that we have only lately begun to understand its effects. A score of years ago we still looked upon those resources as practically boundless and their exploitation as the sure means of incalculable prosperity. Within ten years we, as a nation, have come to know that their limits are quite within comprehension and that our constantly and swiftly advancing demands are outgrowing the certain supply. The basic need of food and shelter and the infinite industrial needs of a great people for wood in its varied uses are now becoming distinctly serious and are bound to become pressing. The agreement with Canada offers us free access to resources comparable to our own before our tremendous growth encroached upon them. To refuse this would be as crass an act of folly as for the commander of a besieged garrison to decline convoys of provisions.

It would be all the more foolish because our varied industries supply us with ample means to purchase all that we may require. Already Canada takes nearly two-thirds of its imports from the United States—$223,000,000 out of $376,000,000—and with its sure advance in population and in all forms of activity will constantly take more. Our trade with Canada is in its infancy. We took from her last year some $20,000,000 in lumber, some $6,000,000 in pulp and paper, $6,000,000 in fish, and so on through what is an insignificant list considered in its relations to her resources and our requirements. The proposed treaty, measured by the actual trade that it would immediately influence, is not of great importance. Some $22,000,000 of Canadian goods and $30,000,000 of American goods are freed from duty, while duties are reduced on some $35,000,000. But the possibilities of the future are very great. There are not in our own country 6,000,000 of people better equipped by native qualities and by training than are the people of Canada for the progressive development of their rich inheritance, and with every year, when the barriers to trade which are in part lowered by this agreement shall be removed, this people, while wholly independent politically, will be as valuable to our economic progress as those of the Middle West or the Pacific Slope. They will prosper, and we shall find our prosperity grow with theirs. They will grow strong and we shall be the more secure for their strength. Canada, says the President, "has cost us nothing in the way of preparations for defense against her possible assault, and she never will." And the establishment of a free, strong, and friendly people across our northern border, bound to us by the countless intimate ties of trade and mutual interest, is an appreciable guarantee of peaceful relations with the great Empire of which Canada is a vital part. Every rational consideration of our immediate and future advantage, of the economic and political security of ourselves, and of the far greater nation whose welfare we hold in trust, demands that the agreement with Canada shall be accepted, carried out, and ultimately extended. Any member of the Senate or of the House who from narrow partisan or local motives obstructs this measure of broad and far-reaching beneficence is unworthy of his office.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Dangerous Carriages and Wagons.

We have not always praised the bills which Senator GRADY, Tammany's leader in the Senate, has introduced, but it is inevitable that in his active legislative experience he should, at intervals, propose a measure that is good in principle. Senator GRADY is not only a friend of Tammany, he tries to be a friend and protector of the masses. Therefore he has caused to be referred to the Committee on Judiciary a bill providing that all persons who drive or ride in carriages, wagons, or other vehicles, or on bicycles in the city streets, with reckless disregard of the rights of pedestrians, "shall be imprisoned for not less than thirty days, and fined not less than $100." If injury shall result from such conduct, the persons convicted shall be "imprisoned not less than one year or more than two years and fined not less than $1,000 nor more than $2,000." A death shall warrant conviction of "manslaughter in the second degree." The refusal to decrease the speed of a vehicle at the order of an officer shall warrant a month's imprisonment and $100 fine, besides the penalties mentioned above, and action for injuries may be brought in addition to the penal prosecution.

We said that this bill is right in principle. Secretary CORNELL of the National Highways Protective Society says that more street accidents are the result of reckless driving of carriages, wagons, and trucks than of motor cars. His society approves the GRADY bill in principle, but he points out that its excessive penalties would make it quite unworkable. Reckless drivers of vehicles should be convicted of a misdemeanor simply, leaving it in the discretion of the Magistrate to inflict a fine or a jail sentence. The measure would then be rigorously enforced, so that the moderate punishment inflicted in all cases would be deterrent. Then, too, Mr. GRADY has referred his bill to the wrong committee. It should go to the Committee on Internal Affairs, which takes cognisance of all matters relating to the highways.

Relief for the Starving Elk.

Director HORNADAY of the Bronx Zoological Park and of the Camp Fire Club of America has succeeded, as Chairman of the club's Legislative Committee, in obtaining from Congress $20,000 for the relief of the starving elk in the Jackson's Hole country of Wyoming. Thither great herds of elk, with which the Government has stocked the Yellowstone Park, have migrated. But the customary excellent grazing in the Jackson's Hole district had been picked over and exhausted by other animals before the elk arrived. This circumstance, together with the fact that the elk have been breeding in greater numbers than usual, combined to produce a pitiable famine. The creatures are tamed by weakness and starvation. Thousands of them are stalled in the deep snow and suspended upon ranch fences which they have vainly attempted to leap. Relief came in response to a hurry call to Dr. HORNADAY from Mr. S. N. LEEK of the Jackson's Hole district, who is now co-operating with the Government authorities under the direction of EDWARD A. PREBLE and B. C. NOLIN of Wyoming to purchase hay and scatter it over the valley until the coming Spring shall cover it and the adjacent territory to the north with a fresh crop of grass. Sportsmen and all lovers of animal life will congratulate Dr. HORNADAY's committee upon its sympathetic and efficient service.

Futility of the Cat o' Nine Tails.

What is the effect upon the woman whose husband has been publicly flogged for wife-beating? This question is raised by The Baltimore News, which has been conducting a vigorous campaign against the continuance of Maryland's archaic whipping post. The News asks:

> How does the whipping affect her? Will she not, by reason of the law, suffer even more in silence than at present? Will she not suffer even more at the hands of the brute who, at least, has one easy method of revenge against the outraged sentiment that has scourged him?

In other words, does not the institution of the cat o' nine tails in Maryland, Delaware, and in the State of Oregon, where there is an agitation for its revival, serve merely to intimidate wives of drunken and brutish husbands from entering complaints against them? Does it not bring upon them, also, a disgrace and stigma that is undeserved, besides sure vengeance from the incensed coward? Doubtless, too, the welts that rise upon the backs of such creatures are often so many lacerations to the souls of the suffering wives, whose pathetic exhibitions of devotion to their ungrateful spouses are proverbial. But back of these considerations is the fundamental one that the lash never reforms, simply brutalizes both its object and the civil society that tolerates its infliction.

Marion School's Dental Squad.

The dentists of this country are conducting intelligent campaigns for oral hygiene in its schools. Their National committee has gathered into records the fruits of the work accomplished in the Cleveland schools, so that they may be available for workers everywhere in this field. The Dental Digest has presented, in successive issues, an account of the improvement, mental, moral, and physical, resulting from the experimental care of the teeth and mouths of a squad of foreign-born children selected from the 1,000 pupils in the Marion School of Cleveland. Parallel with their bad oral conditions were bad conditions of physique, mentality, and a sulky, resentful, and insubordinate moral state.

All these conditions improved markedly after the dental treatment, but Dr. GEORGE WOOD CLAPP, who has written the report, is careful to state that the mere fact that these conditions are parallel is not conclusive proof that imperfect and neglected teeth are the chief cause of the backward children's ills. The condition of such pupils has been benefited by the prescription of suitable glasses, by the treatment of adenoidal throats, and of diseased ears and noses. But one improvement leads to another. The bodily organism differs from a machine in that a slight change for the better may start the entire physical metabolism toward a complete and automatic repair of its organs and functions. It is the comparatively slight initial change from better to worse or from worse to better that is critical.

CLEVELAND FUND $96,295.

Association Needs Only $3,705 More to Complete Monument.

Only $3,705 remains to be collected for the Cleveland Memorial Fund. The amount to be raised is $100,000, and the association which is collecting the money hopes to have the entire amount in hand by March 18, the late Mr. Cleveland's birthday.

These are the contributions received by the association yesterday:

Acknowledged ..	$95,755	Carl Fischer	$10
C. W. Harkness.	200	Abram De Ronde	10
C. J. Canda....	100	Dan F. Platt....	10

Hilary A. Herbert, who was Secretary of the Navy in Cleveland's second term, sent THE TIMES yesterday a check for $25 for the fund. Here is Mr. Herbert's letter:

> 1612 Twenty-first Street,
> Washington, D. C., March, 7, 1911.
>
> Please hand over this inclosed check to the authorities who are to construct the memorial to President Cleveland, and oblige yours truly, HILARY A. HERBERT.

Here are some letters received by the association with contributions yesterday:

It is a pleasure to think of the splendid memorial that is to be erected to that great American and sterling Democrat, Grover Cleveland.

WM. D. GAILLARD, New York City.

I loved him while he lived for his hatred of all methods that savored of chicanery and his steadfast adherence to principle throughout an honorable public career, and revere his memory for his integrity as a man, his candor, courage, and patriotism as the Chief Executive of the Nation, and his dignity, self-respect, and modesty as a citizen. His life has been an inspiration to men, and I am glad of the opportunity to express to you my appreciation of your effort to suitably perpetuate his name.

CHRISTOPHER GRAEBNER,
Port Jervis, N. Y.

I inclose a trifle for the Cleveland memorial, and I wish I could send far more. If each of the admirers of Mr. Cleveland would contribute even as small an amount, not only the present balance still required would be raised, but the entire fund could have been secured through the subscriptions of those who recognize his sterling honesty and unquestioned patriotism.

DE WITT C. JONES, Elizabeth, N. J.

A small contribution, but I want to help in honoring the memory of a great man, who was truly interested in the individual.

JOHN C. McMULLEN, New York City.

All contributions should be sent to John F. Dryden, Newark, N. J.

The Indeterminate Sentence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Eugene Smith's letter in to-day's issue is admirable in every particular, so far as it goes.

Among other things, he states truly and forcibly, "the prison regime is, or should be, so conducted as to aid the prisoner in his efforts to reform." Admitted that this is done, as far as may now be practicable, we know that owing to overcrowding, bad sanitary conditions, and ignorant and ill-paid officials, it is often impossible in our prisons, not to speak of penitentiaries and jails. I am convinced that herein lies the greatest dread of the man who is sentenced and of the innocent victims who are nearly related to him. He and they know in advance what is in store for him, what he must expect. No matter, therefore, how reasonable and just the mere wording of the law is in regard to the sentence, the lamentable fact remains true that the prisoner is compelled to submit to conditions which are degrading. Physically, mentally, morally, he is injured by them, and must leave prison after sentence is expiated a worse man than when he entered.

For this our legislators and society are responsible and should be blamed, because with power they fall short of imperative duty to fellow-men.

Moreover, criminals are ever becoming more numerous, and we have at present no sufficient and proper places of detention for many of them. BEVERLEY ROBINSON, M. D.

MAJORITY MORALS.

Lorimer of Illinois remains a Senator of the United States by a vote of 46 to 40.

If 46 vote that he's honest,
And 40 vote him otherwise,
It leaves him all right in the Senate,
But is he, in the public's eyes?
And must the 40 change opinion
And make him friend and equal when
The 46 command the 40
To class him with the honest men?
Oh, casuists and moral teachers,
Pray give us some directing note
And show us how the U. S. Senate
Can make its morals by its vote.

NO "COFFEE TRUST."

A Supply of "Valorized" Product Has Kept Down the Price.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As it strikes me, apropos of "The High Price of Coffee," the gentleman in Congress who has discovered ground for prosecution of a "trust" has really uncovered a mare's nest. I am perfectly willing to leave it to his own conviction, but I crave space for a word or two to the coffee drinkers of the United States on what, as a purveyor of the article at first hands, I deem to be the facts.

The plan of "valorization," or, as is might more comprehensively be called, "equalization," was conceived, not as a boosting measure, or with design to corner the market, but simply in an instinct of self-preservation.

Suppose, for instance, the staple product of the State of Texas—practically the sole reliance of her people—was cotton. And suppose through diligence in the cultivation of cotton, combined with what we may call fortuitous crop conditions, the people of Texas were confronted with a surplus of their product unmarketable save on a basis of ruinous prices. It would be quite in order for the economists to exclaim at the lack of foresight of those foolish Texans and tell them, as we could tell the Brazilians, that they might profitably have turned their attention to something else than cotton. But the fact would remain that they were up against an exigency requiring heroic treatment. There was where the Brazilians—the people of the State of Sao Paulo particularly—found themselves. It was a case of sink or swim, and you couldn't blame either the people of Texas or the people of Sao Paulo for trying to swim under such circumstances.

They placed restrictions upon further production, and they even considered resort to destruction of a certain proportion of their surplus coffee.

In the extremity it occurred to some resourceful souls among them to "valorize" coffee, that is to pawn the surplus until the coming of a lean year would let them out. This kind of financing appeals more readily to European bankers than to us, our usual preference being for a better color of security for our ventures. And, besides, we don't have to reach out for investments as the Europeans do, though, perhaps, Pan-American sentiment in this instance should have moved our sympathies and so our purses. However, the European aid was forthcoming, and with it was joined the support of several American operators who felt they could afford to take the chances.

A syndicate was formed, the wherewithal advanced, and the security taken in charge by a duly constituted set of trustees; the Federal Government of Brazil, meanwhile, pledging her credit and a part of her customs resources to see the thing through.

We onlooking dealers here were inclined to regard the scheme as a delusion and a snare, because we knew that Dame Nature had to be reckoned with, whose vagaries no man can fathom. For some years this "valorised" coffee has hung like a pall over the market, and many's the time we have wished those Brazilians had taken their medicine and done with it.

Some of it has been peddled out from time to time, but always there has remained that fear of a descending avalanche on any prospect of promise. You will, therefore, note that "valorization" has operated to preserve a dead level of low prices of which the consumer has received the benefit.

Last Autumn a rift appeared in the clouds, through which a possible "get out" could be discerned. A shortage became apparent in the current crop, and the American operators who had taken hold of "valorization" saw their opportunity and turned "bullish." To make a long story short they "did their darndest" and "the country" began to take hold.

Then on a pretty well strengthened position a sale of "valorization" coffee was planned for April, some here and some abroad, and this was the signal for other operators of "bearish" tendencies to get the "bulls" on the run.

That occurred a month or so back, since which time it has been "nip and tuck" with "the country" looking on.

Just where it will end no one can say, but the coffee drinker may comfort himself with the reflection, when he is asked a higher price for his "morning cup," that he has enjoyed a long season of low cost; and that much of the "valorized" coffee remains to be sold, however Dame Nature may choose to play her cards.

Where, I ask, are grounds for prosecution of a "coffee trust" in this? E.

The Inheritance Tax.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's TIMES is a letter from Mr. William J. Coombs, stating that, in case of death, estates are obliged to pay an enormous tax if held in New York, and, what is worse, another tax to the State in which the company issuing the bonds or stock is incorporated.

The subject of the payment of inheritance taxes in two or three States is one to which I have given considerable attention during the last few months, and the results of my investigation were recently published in pamphlet form.

So far as my investigation went, there are few States which attempt to collect any tax upon bonds issued under their laws and held by estates of non-residents, and then only in cases where the bonds are registered.

A resident of New York who confined his investments to coupon bonds and retained them within this State would be subject only to the one tax imposed by New York.

The double and triple taxation to which attention has been called refers to cases where an estate holds stock in corporations of other States, or where he keeps his securities in other than the State of his residence. So far as a holder of coupon bonds is concerned, conditions are not so burdensome as your correspondent seems to believe.

Cruelty to Animals in Maine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I appeal through your columns to those New Yorkers who are Summer residents of Maine? Four years ago a traveling agent was employed by a committee consisting chiefly of Summer residents to enforce the laws respecting cruelty to animals, and to assist poor men in the care of their horses and cattle. The plan has proved a great success. The agent goes to any part of the State upon request of any person, and has accomplished a great deal in diminishing cruelty to animals, especially in the back towns, in logging camps, and on cattle trains.

Last Summer owing to the absence from the State of some members of the committee, and to the engagements of others, the work of collecting funds for the year was very imperfectly done, and the services of the agent will have to be dispensed with at once unless a few hundred dollars can be raised immediately. The scheme of a traveling agent was a new one, and it will doubtless be adopted in other States if we can maintain it in Maine as an object lesson. We earnestly hope that generous persons in the city will bear in mind the suffering of animals in a State like Maine, especially the suffering of horses from cold, starvation, and painful forms of lameness. Contributions may be sent to the undersigned or to Miss E. G. Bowdoin, 39 Park Avenue, New York, or to Mr. John Kendrick Bangs.

The Foes of Reciprocity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Underlying most of the anti-reciprocity (and even some of the pro-reciprocity) arguments, which have been heard in Congress and elsewhere, there is the assumption that the two nations are trading units; that they are about to enter into a bargain, and that one of the two is likely to get the best of that bargain.

But what is the fact?

The proposed reciprocity agreement simply means that certain persons in the United States and certain persons in Canada may trade with each other if they wish to do so. Not a single individual on either side would be forced to trade against his will or to make what he thought was a bad bargain. If reciprocity is so disastrous for us or for the Canadians as certain excited voices now proclaim, surely the people who would be ruined by it will not invite destruction by availing themselves of it. They will simply let it alone.

But the fear of the anti-reciprocity men is that the people would not let the measure alone; that they would avail themselves of its benefits and make advantageous bargains. They stand upon the maintenance of present restrictions. Their interests demand that other people shall be prevented from freedom of bargaining, and that is the secret of their opposition. T. SCANLON.

NEW THEATRE HAS BOXHOLDER PROBLEM

Men Bought Boxes Outright and May Be Expected to Look for Some Return.

LESS ROOM IN NEW HOUSE

Only a Limited Number of the Box Owners Likely to be Accommodated —Light Opera in Old Theatre?

The affairs of The New Theatre have been pretty thoroughly discussed in the public prints, and although the statement of the founders, which appeared yesterday morning, has settled many questions, there still remains an important feature of the situation which evidently has not been dealt with in any way. What is to become of the boxholders?

The men who bought boxes for The New Theatre bought them outright, and own them in the same way that the boxholders of the Metropolitan Opera House own their boxes. One of these boxes at the Metropolitan offered for sale within the last few years brought $100,000, and probably would bring even more to-day.

The boxholders in The New Theatre doubtless do not feel that their property is so valuable, but nevertheless they have put their money into it and they may be expected to look for some return. In so far as any public statement issued up to date is concerned there has been no attempt made to settle this question.

It is proposed to build a new theatre, and yet it has been publicly announced that this new theatre would be very much smaller than the house on Central Park West. There will be room in it for only a limited number of those who control the boxes at the old house.

It is not to be expected that those who bought boxes will receive their money back, nor is it to be expected that the boxholders will be satisfied to receive a certain number of orchestra seats in the new theatre which is to be built.

When The New Theatre was built the boxholders bought their boxes on the understanding that opera was to be given there twice a week. Subsequently, when this proved unprofitable and was abandoned, the boxholders did not protest, it is said.

Some Boxholders are Founders.

One of the complications of the arrangement is the fact that some of the boxholders are Founders of the theatre and some are not. There are also several Founders who are not boxholders.

There are sixteen boxes in The New Theatre, besides the large boxes devoted to the Founders and the Directors, but these sixteen boxes are divided between a great many people. Even if sixteen boxes could be placed in the new theatre which is to be built it would be difficult to arrange them so that they would all be on one tier as these are. And doubtless there would be some who would feel that, after all, they had bought their boxes in the old New Theatre rather than in the new New Theatre.

There has been some talk of the Metropolitan Opera Company taking over The New Theatre in a season or two for the presentation of the lighter operas. Now, when this was attempted last season it was found that it did not pay. Audiences could not be found willing to pay $5 a seat to hear "Fra Diavolo" and "La Fille de Madame Angot." The productions of the lighter operas often cost as much as, and sometimes more than, those of the heavier works.

The scenery and costumes were expensive and sometimes, as in the case of the operas just named, when Mr. Clément sang the tenor parts, the casts cost a great deal of money.

Prospects of Light Opera Season.

However, there is no reason to believe that a season of opera conducted at $3 for the best seats could not be conducted at some profit to the Metropolitan Opera Company. No other management could give satisfactory opera at that price, because it has not the plant, but the Metropolitan Company has storehouses full of costumes and scenery which are not being used, and there are many extra singers, understudies, and people who appear in smaller parts at the Metropolitan who would be very good for lighter opera given in a smaller theatre.

As the management already possesses the scenery and costumes, and as the singers are being paid anyway, it would be quite possible to conduct a season of opera, with the added expense of a small orchestra and the maintenance of the theatre, perhaps at a profit.

Otherwise the theatre may be turned into something which those who were connected with its building will regard with sorrow and regret.

It has been stated on many recent occasions by those connected with the directorate of the house that the theatre is too large for plays; it has also proved too small for operas, given in the ordinary way, with the biggest stars. However, the founders, it is said, were advised by many of the best theatrical authorities, when the house was building, to build a smaller house.

In any case the question remains what will be done with the boxholders.

NOT FOR ACADEMY OF DESIGN.

New Theatre Would Be Inadequate, Says Secretary of the Council.

A report that the National Academy of Design is planning to take over The New Theatre when the founders abandon it for a cosier playhouse was scouted yesterday by Harry W. Watrous, Secretary of the Academy's Council.

"I have never even heard of such a proposal," he said, pointing out that with an academy meeting last week and a meeting of the council on Monday he would have had ample opportunity to hear of the idea had it been seriously held in any responsible quarter.

Mr. Watrous was willing to say that any such proposal would fall to the ground for lack of support among the academicians, who plan, he said, when they do move, to do it on an ample and ambitious scale. The New Theatre would be hopelessly inadequate in the matter of size. It is because their present quarters in the Fine Arts rooms in West Fifty-seventh Street are so cramped that they are seeking a new site, most of them animated with a determination that the new building, wherever it may eventually stand, shall be a sizeable structure.

The New Theatre.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am sorry to see from your issue of to-day's date that the founders of The New Theatre have got what they call in this country "cold feet."

I think they are wrong to abandon the enterprise or even to feel seriously disappointed if a loss, even a heavy loss, has been made during the first two years. There are always a number of preliminary expenses, and, with experience, a great many savings and economies might be made.

I can imagine quite a variety of ways in which the income might be increased and the expenses diminished.

The number of new productions and the short runs have, I presume, been responsible for most of the expenses and the loss sustained. I see that it is suggested that a smaller theatre should be built. I should like to see the present one maintained, and a new and much smaller one added. Two theatres can always be run relatively cheaper by the same management than one.

The present theatre would put on all the large and important productions, while the smaller one would accommodate all those with short casts and simple scenery. In each case they might be kept on for at least three or four weeks, and then sent on tour.

I may claim to speak with some little authority, because I had the honor of being associated with Mr. J. T. Grein in the foundation of the Independent Theatre of London, which produced all the earlier Ibsen and Shaw plays as well as some by Maeterlinck and others, many of which were of real and lasting value. We did not aim at making a profit, but we managed to pay our way, though, of course, it was on a small scale.

I see no reason why The New Theatre should not be self-supporting within the next few years. EDEN E. GREVILLE.

HOST AT DANCE WEARS LIVE SNAKE

Merritt T. Wyatt Receives His Guests Dressed in Costume of King Ptolemy II. of Egypt.

COLORED MINSTRELS PLAY

Indian Princess Also Entertains at Nelson Burritt's Studio—Breakfast at 4 O'Clock—The Guests.

A costume entertainment and dance was given last night by Merritt Trimble Wyatt at the Nelson Burritt studio in East Thirty-second Street. Leverett Saltonstall of Boston was to have been joint host with Mr. Wyatt, but owing to the illness of his mother he was unable to be in New York.

The affair was preceded by two large dinners, one of thirty covers given at Sherry's by Miss Lilla Gilbert, and the other for men only by Edward Shippen, 2d.

Invitations were sent out for 10:30, and shortly after that hour the guests began arriving, and were received by Mr. Wyatt in the costume of King Ptolemy II. of Egypt, assisted by Mrs. Stanwood Stanwood Menken, who took the place of Mrs. Saltonstall, dressed in a striking Scotch costume. In addition to the Ptolemy costume, Mr. Wyatt had a live snake wound around his neck, a feature that aroused some apprehension as well as wonder in not a few of the guests.

Colored minstrels played and sang during the reception, and Rosenberg's orchestra played for the dancing, immediately following the reception.

At intervals the dancing stopped and those present were amused by various entertainments. Oscar Schwartz of "The Wizard" company did some fancy dances, and the Princess Chowhe, an Indian dancer, executed a dance with spot light. There were also eccentric and fancy dances.

A buffet supper was served continuously during the evening from the balcony over the studio, and commencing at 4 o'clock, breakfast dishes could be ordered until the last guest had gone.

Among the 250 guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carroll, Mrs. Edward R. Tinker, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Louis de Milhau, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Clarke, the Misses Edith Landon, Elizabeth Brice, Charlotte Delafield, Alice and Gertrude Andrea, Margaret French, Alice Richard, Cornelia B. Brown, Gertrude Monroe Smith, Adelaide Buchanan, Beatrice Pratt, Helen Langdon, Emily Ayres, Phoebe Judkins, Elizabeth Fowler, Abby Morrison, Adelaide Pendergast, Natalie Kelley, Katherine and Madeline Force, Mercedes de Acosta, Mary Busk, Isabelle and Hopeton Atterbury, Suzanne Carroll, Lilla Gilbert, Rosalie Smith, Laura Webb, Frieda Pearson, Minère Wardwell, Allison Pierce, Resina Otis, Charlotte Wyeth, Ursula Brown, Hilda Holmes, Margaret Gilmore, Lilian Endicott, Thryza Benson, Leila Haven, Doris Bissell, Elizabeth Huestis, Mabel Clyde, Nina Chisholm, Viola Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hennen Coddington.

Also Francis and Maurice Roche, Howard Parker, Livingston Watrous, Arthur Suckley, Henry Suckley, J. V. and W. S. Bouvier, T. Chesley Richardson, Henry Hughes, Gustavo di Rosa, Richard Lounsbery, Jr., Le Roy Miller, Harvey Ladew, Charles Buchanan, Brinton Buckwalter, W. Dudley Carleton, Guy Carleton, Carroll Winslow, Walter Geishenen, Newton James, Freeman A. Smith, Merritt Swift, Edward Twining, Whiteright Watson, G. W. Warren, Jr., Albert Shanon, Alfred Engel, Philip Mills, Artemas Holmes, Col. Astor, Vincent Astor, Julius Noyes, Bache Whitlock, Frank Crowninshield, Arthur Henderson, Edmund Fairfax, Fairfax Ayres, William de F. Manice, Jules and G. Brett Glaenzer, E. Dutilh Smith, Nils Florman, William Hewlitt, Louis Hunt, and others.

GIVE AN AUCTION PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Barber Offer Household Wares to Highest Bidders.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel D. Barber of East Eightieth Street, gave at their residence last evening, an auction party, at which was offered to the highest bidders various wares of the Barber household.

The invitations were also unique in handbill design with Chinese and Brownies disporting themselves over the page and a facsimile of the hostess's writing to the effect that the guests are invited to attend an auction of the "Barber's cast off presents and accumulated treasure trash at 9 o'clock," followed by the request to bring small and large change.

A large table was arranged in the dining room, and from this bits of old Sheffield ware, pewter, china, teakwood stand, water colors, samplers, a Persian shawl, tapestry, and even glove stretchers ,and other articles, most of the things in a more or less perfect state, were auctioned off.

Everett Shinn and Stewart G. Nelson were the auctioneers. The first article offered was a bottle of baby food, and at the end came an old cameo brooch.

There was also a grab bag, and one bachelor secured as his treasure trove an infant's nursing bottle.

About fifty guests were asked, but as most of these were asked to bring friends, there wase many more present. Among those invited were Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wood, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Shinn, Mr. and Mrs. Twachtman, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Warner, Miss Booth, Miss Stratton, Richard Pell, and Mr. and Mrs. Bell.

POSTUM.

CHILDREN AFFECTED

By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes.

The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach.

"The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it, too, suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk. I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So, I quit coffee and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum, with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk.

"My husband then quit coffee and used Postum and quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach.

"Now we all drink Postum, from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

J. Sanford Saltus Decorated.

A cable dispatch from Paris received in this city yesterday stated that J. Sanford Saltus of New York, a patron of numismatics and art, and one of the officials of the American Numismatic Society, had been decorated by the French Government with the purple rosette of the Department of Public Instruction for his services in connection with numismatics and encouragement of art. Mr Saltus a year ago founded the Sanford Saltus annual prize of $300 for the Academie des Beaux Arts for the best war picture.

WANT OPERA LOSSES MADE UP

Chicago Co. Calls on Philadelphians Before Negotiating for Next Season.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, held yesterday in New York, it was decided that if Philadelphians did not make up the losses for the present season of the company at the Metropolitan Opera House in Philadelphia that no further performances after this season would be given there.

It has already been decided to continue the company in Chicago, and if the Eastern territory is cut from its prospectus the company, it is likely, will make a tour of the West, going to the Pacific Coast, either before or after the Chicago season. This, it is thought, would be a decidedly profitable experiment, as the Metropolitan Opera Company has not undertaken this tour since the San Francisco earthquake.

The following statement in regard to the matter was issued last evening:

> It has been determined that if the losses sustained in Philadelphia this season are properly adjusted by responsible Philadelphia interests the company will proceed to negotiate for next season.
>
> CLARENCE H. MACKAY,
> Chairman of the Executive Committee.
> PHILIP M. LYDIG,
> Secretary of the Executive Committee.

Those present at the meeting were Harold M. McCormick, Clarence G. Dawes, Max Pam, and John C. Shaffer of Chicago, and Otto H. Kahn, H. Rogers Winthrop, Clarence H. Mackay, and Philip M. Lydig of New York.

It is said that the company, which did extremely well in Chicago, has lost a great deal of money in Philadelphia this Winter. If the Philadelphia performances are abandoned, of course the New York Tuesday evening performances and the Baltimore Thursday evening performances by this company would likewise be given up.

MUSIC NOTES.

Miss Kathleen Parlow, the young Canadian violinist, who will be the soloist with the Symphony Society of New York to-morrow afternoon at The New Theatre, will play the Brahms concerto instead of the Goldmark concerto, which had been announced.

Maurice Nitke, violinist, and several other soloists will give a concert at the Educational Alliance, East Broadway and Jefferson Street, to-morrow evening. The feature of the programme is the first public hearing of a trio by Ernest Kroeger of St. Louis.

JAPANESE NETSUKES IN ART MUSEUM

Mrs. Russell Sage's Gift Contains 2,546 Specimens of Marvelously Carved Trinkets

OF IVORY, WOOD, AND HORN

New American Paintings at Metropolitan Include Whistler's "The Gold Girl" and "White Peonies," by Lockwood.

The important acquisition to the Metropolitan Art Museum this past month and placed on exhibition in the Recent Accessions Room yesterday is the collection of Japanese netsukes presented by Mrs. Russell Sage. There are 2,546 specimens of these marvelously carved trinkets that the Japanese wear on the cords to their tobacco pouches or any recepticles they may hang suspended from the belt. The Museum considers itself exceedingly fortunate in receiving this gift, for the collection stands in the same rank as the Franko collection in the British Museum.

These netsukes were collected by A. C. Vrooman of Pasadena, California. They were seen there by Mrs. Sage and after her return to the East she made the purchase. The wonderful little carvings are of ivory, wood or horn and fill several cases. They are of great variety. There is the little Japanese mother with a baby on her back, a quaint little Japanese boy in a crouching position noticeable among the netsukes because of his hat of brilliant red and grotesque faces and grotesque elongated figures. In addition to the carving the netsukes are inlaid, lacquered, and enameled.

Seven new American paintings have been added to the Museum collection. One of these is a Whistler, "The Gold Girl," presented by George A. Hearn and hung in the Hearn gallery of American paintings. This picture, which has been exhibited less than many of the Whistlers, is a portrait of Connie Gilchrist, who was a popular dancer at the Gayety in London in 1876. The picture shows a slender girlish figure in tights, with high-heeled boots, wearing a short tunic with a loose belt from which is suspended a little hanging pocket, and in the act of skipping with a rope, the handles of which she holds in either hand. The picture takes its name from the soft, dull yellow tones in which it is painted.

Another picture which has also been hung in the same gallery is a delightful flower picture exhibited in the Winter Academy, "White Peonies," by Wilton Lockwood. The peonies are in a green bowl and there is a green background. The picture was purchased with money from the Hearn fund.

"Shooting the Rapids," the last picture of Winslow Homer, and which he had not finished, has been presented to the Museum by the brother of the artist, Charles S. Homer. This is one of the important pictures in the Winslow Homer Memorial Exhibition which is now on at the Museum, and hangs in the centre of the west wall of the gallery. It is a Saguenay River scene, three figures in a canoe in the rush of the waters.

The two new Sargents, painted by the artist in 1898, are in the Recent Accessions Room; a portrait of Israels by Walter Florian, and "Up the Hudson," by George Bellows, completes the list of acquisitions of American paintings. The Sargents are "Padre Sabastiano," showing the padre as a young man, the botanical specimens with which he is working about him, and "The Hermit," a large, curious picture, with the hermit seated in the foreground, and a couple of deer turning away from him into the wood. These were purchased with money from the Rogers fund from the artist.

The Bellows picture was presented by Hugo Reisinger and shows the broad expanse of the river, a tug in midstream, a small boat near a small wharf on the shore, men at work in the shallows, the railroad tracks, a few trees, a pathway, and a lamppost. The portrait of Israels, the Dutch artist, by the young American Florian, who died two years ago at the age of 31, is in beautiful soft brown tones, showing the venerable painter seated with his palette and brushes in one hand. It was presented by Julian Florian.

A monumental piece of bronze statuary presented by Jacob H. Schiff is "Universal Peace," by Jules L. Butensky, which, too large to be removed to the Recent Accessions Room, is in the gallery leading from the Central Park entrance to the Hall of Casts. A beautiful bronze plaque, a head of the Christ by Saroldi, the Italian sculptor, presented by Edward D. Adams, one of the Museum trustees, is in the Recent Accessions Room. There is a beautiful piece of old silver, an epergne, presented by Frank Partridge, and two Greek marble fragments from Epidauros, a gift of Capt. Philip M. Lydig, among other things.

An interesting feature of the Museum bulletin for the month is an account, with illustrations, of the work the Museum is doing in Egypt, aside from the excavating, in reproducing the paintings on the walls of the tombs at Thebes, work on the solid rocks which cannot be removed and which, now that the tombs are opened, may be lost by the effects of the elements. This is done not only to obtain the material for the Museum, but to preserve the records for the country as a return for the courtesy extended by the authorities in Egypt in allowing the excavators from this country to obtain the archaeological treasures from the tombs.

Henry E. Dixey to Act with Mrs. Fiske.

Harrison Grey Fiske announced yesterday the engagement of Henry E. Dixey for Mrs. Fiske's company during her forthcoming season at the Lyceum Theatre, beginning on March 20. In "Becky Sharp," which will be Mrs. Fiske's opening play, Mr. Dixey will have the rôle of the Marquis of Steyne, while in the American comedy Mrs. Fiske is to present on April 3 he will play an important comedy rôle. He has canceled an extensive tour recently booked in vaudeville.

Martin a Success in "La Gioconda."

Riccardo Martin sang the part of Enzo in "La Gioconda" last night at the Metropolitan Opera House for the first time in New York and made a success in the rôle. He sang "Cielo e Mar" with beautiful tone and excellent phrasing. The remainder of the cast was the usual one, including Miss Destinn in the title part, which, it is said, she dislikes the most heartily of all her rôles; Mrs. Homer as Laura, Mme. Claessens as the blind mother, Mr. Amato as Barnaba, and Mr. de Segurola as Alvise. Mr. Toscanini conducted the performance.

Winter Garden to Open Next Thursday

The opening of the Winter Garden, at Fiftieth Street and Broadway, has been postponed from next Tuesday night until Thursday night, March 16, in order that it may not conflict with other openings scheduled for the first of the week, and to permit of more dress rehearsals with scenery.

EDUARD GRELL'S MASS SUNG.

The Oratorio Society Gives His Setting in Sixteen Parts.

The Oratorio Society, under the direction of Dr. Frank Damrosch, gave last evening the performance of Eduard Grell's Solemn Mass that was originally set for last December, but was postponed. The performance was one of the most arduous of the recent undertakings of the society, on account of the elaborate structure of this composition, which occupies a place that very few modern choral works can contest with it. It is written in sixteen real parts, for four four-part choruses and four solo quartets, a cappella. The Oratorio Society has given it three times before, in 1889, 1890, and in the season of 1893-1894. Thus it is by no means new to lovers of choral music in New York—who seem to be a rather limited and uncertain body, unfortunately.

The mass can hardly be called a work of genius so much as the product of a skillful musician thoroughly at home in the treatment of choral part writing more or less in the manner of the old ecclesiastical masters, and animated by sincerity and churchly ideals. Grell, who is practically unknown as the composer of anything else but this mass, was conductor of a famous old choral society in Berlin, the Singakademie, when he produced this mass in 1861. He was by no means in his general scheme governed by the ideals of the great ecclesiastical writers of the sixteenth century, Palestrina and his associates, whose conception of church music was an impersonal utterance, dissociated from human passions and the emotions of the musician or the listener.

He employed their methods of writing so far as suited his purpose, but he did not confine himself by their rules, and frequently went to considerable lengths in interpreting the text dramatically or emotionally. Apparently as he went on he found himself moved more and more to adopt this manner of treatment. Thus in the "Quoniam" such modern effects first appear strikingly and they appear thenceforward oftener, as in the "Et in Unum," where the chorus reinforces the single words "Deum," "Lumen," "Deum verum," as sung by the solo voices; or in the dramatic and almost realistic effects of the "Et Incarnatus est" and "Et Resurrexit" the reiteration of the "non" and other such points. There are, as it seems, increasingly modern harmonies used in these movements, and even for a moment a faint shadow of Mendelssohn falls across the music.

There is great sonority and solidity in the texture of the composition, which is written in a wholly fluent vocal style; there is much variety in the tonal effects gained by the employment of various combinations of the choruses and the solo quartets, and even solo voices. And the general effect of the composition avoids much of the monotony and wearisomeness that would be inseparable from an equal length of the true old ecclesiastical music, which is practically devoid of melody in the modern sense, while in Grell's work many of the movements abound in it.

The performance of such a work puts severe demands upon the powers of both chorus and solo singers. The chorus knew the music well, and mastered its complications without hesitancy. There were one or two moments when the same could not be said of the solo singers; but the uncertainty was not more than momentary. The quality of tone was not always in either body of the finest, and there were times when the intonation was not perfect. It was on the whole, however, a creditable fulfillment of a difficult task, and there ought to have been a larger audience to hear it.

MME. SIMONE TO ACT HERE.

French Actress to Appear in English Under Direction of Liebler & Co.

Gaston Mayer, the London producing manager, arrived in New York yesterday on the Adriatic, bringing with him a contract signed by Mme. Simone, whereby the celebrated French actress, once known as Simone le Bargy, comes under the management of Liebler & Co. the coming season. Mme. Simone is to begin a twelve-weeks' season in New York in October. She will be seen in a repertoire of modern plays now being selected for her use. Mme. Simone will speak her lines in English, in which she is said to be as fluent as she is in her native language.

Mme. Simone, who in private life is Mme. Casimir-Perier, daughter-in-law of an ex-President of the French Republic, has had an interesting career, beginning only eight seasons ago, when, at the Gymnase Theatre, Paris, she appeared in the leading rôle of "Le Detour," written by a friend of her family, Henri Bernstein. The cable dispatches descriptive of her success in that play spoke of its author as "an absolutely unknown young man." Since that time, Mme. Simone's career and that of Bernstein have been more or less identical, and she has created the leading rôles in the most successful of the Bernstein plays that have since been produced. Among these have been "Le Bercail" (called in the Louis N. Parker version "The Redemption of Evelyn Vaudray,") "La Rafale" ("The Whirlwind") and "La Voleur" ("The Thief.")

More recently Mme. Simone created the part of the Hen Pheasant in "Chantecler." She is now appearing at the Theatre de la Renaissance in "Le Vieil Homme," by M. G. de Porto Riche. She has never played a subordinate rôle.

MR. MAHLER STILL ABSENT.

Rumored That He Will Not Continue as Philharmonic's Conductor.

Concertmeister Theodore Spiering again conducted the concert given by the Philharmonic Society yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. Gustav Mahler, the conductor of these concerts, has been absent from his post for two weeks now and last evening well-defined rumors were afloat that he has no intention of conducting again until some matters between him and the Directors of the society are arranged.

It is said that he has had difficulty in making out his programmes this season, that in almost every instance his programmes have been changed for some reason or other by members of the Board of Directors. Mr. Mahler has submitted to this under protest until recently, it was said by a friend of the conductor last evening, but now he has decided that unless affairs are arranged more to his liking he will not continue with the society.

Gustav Mahler has been conductor of the Philharmonic Society now for two seasons, and it was recently announced that he was engaged for a third; his next season here, however, will doubtless depend on the outcome of his present dispute. It was announced some time ago that he was ill and that he could not conduct at a certain concert. Since then he has not appeared.

On one occasion, it was said, he wanted to perform the overture to Cornelius's "Barber of Bagdad," but took it off the programme because some one connected with the society did not like the work.

DONE WITH WRITING PLAYS.

Booth Tarkington Says Rehearsals Became Distasteful to Him.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 10.—Booth Tarkington, the novelist and playwright, is positively through with writing plays.

"No, no, never again for me," said he in an interview to-day. "I am so tired of the theater proposition that I never want to look on a rehearsal again. My next work will be fiction, probably a complete novel, though I have several contracts for short stories which I may fill before I attempt another book.

"Going to a theatre in Indianapolis has been a real pleasure since I have been here," said Mr. Tarkington, "because I was compelled continually to oversee rehearsals in New York, and the work grew so distasteful that I fled from it."

"What are your views on the woman suffrage question?" he was asked.

"I have always been a warm advocate of woman suffrage," he replied. "I think the Indiana Legislature made a vital mistake when it failed to grasp the significance of the bill allowing women to vote in municipal elections. This measure was killed, and in the face of the argument that the women of the country are most vitally interested in the affairs of city governments—especially in questions pertaining to the public schools."

PRINCESS SITA DIVA APPEARS

In Hindu Serpent and Sacred Temple Dances and a Little Drama.

For two hours yesterday afternoon Princess Sita Diva interested a large invited audience at the New Amsterdam Theatre in illustrations of East Indian customs and dresses, and threw in a little drama for good measure at the end. According to advance announcements she is the daughter of an Indian Prince, and was consecrated, as a child, to service as a dancer in the temple. Missionaries who found her there took her to England and placed her in a convent school. When she grew up she married a surgeon in the British Army and returned with him to India, whence she was driven by the Hindus because she gave a temple dance before some friends in a hotel.

However, her performance yesterday afternoon interested her auditors, and proved her to be a dancer and actress of no mean ability. The first part of her entertainment was devoted to a description of the life of the women in India, illustrated by several typical costumes. She answered a number of questions put to her by women in the audience, and patiently listened to a Hindu in the top balcony, who tried to offer objections to her calling herself a Princess.

She then gave a song and dance of a Mohammedan public dancing girl, and also illustrated the type of singing and dancing of the street girls. The final scene showed the interior of a temple, with a corps of priests, Yogi, dancing girls, and musicians. The Princess herself appeared as the chief dancing girl, who had an intrigue with a disreputable temple hanger-on. This man persuades her to drug the guard and steal some of the jewels from the idol. A lightning flash kills her just as she is about to commit the theft.

This was preceded by illustrations of several temple ceremonials, including the marking of the dancing girls and their anointing with water from the Ganges. The Princess gave a serpent dance in which a live snake had a part, and also presented what she explained was a sacred temple dance, never witnessed by any Hindus outside those of the highest caste. This proved to be a sort of "temptation dance," used, in her playlet, to entice the soldier into drinking the drugged wine she offered him, and it allowed the dancer full opportunity to display her grace of body as well as her ability as a pantomimist.

H. A. BRUDENELL-BRUCE DEAD

Fifth Marquis of Ailesbury Was a Former Member of Parliament.

LONDON, March 10.—Henry Augustus Brudenell-Bruce, Fifth Marquis of Ailesbury, is dead. He was born April 11, 1842.

The Marquis of Ailesbury was a member of Parliament from 1886 to 1892 and a Captain of the late Ninth Foot Regiment. He was a member of the Carlton and Army and Navy Clubs.

Washington Lafayette Cooper.

Washington Lafayette Cooper, for many years a Trustee of the Church of the Divine Paternity, under the Rev. Dr. Chapin, and one of the pallbearers at the funeral of Horace Greeley, died of pneumonia at his home, 108 West Seventy-sixth Street, yesterday. He was 76 years old. Mr. Cooper was born in this city. In 1860 he married Miss Sarah D. Dockstader, whose father, George A. Dockstader, he later succeeded in the leather trade. He was on the Advisory Board of the Chapin Home, a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Natural History Museum, the Holland Society, and a life member of the Institute for the Deaf and Dumb.

Dr. Hosias Schiemann.

Dr. Hosias Schiemann of 312 East 119th Street died yesterday at the Mount Sinai Hospital as the result of an accident on the night of January 19, when his left leg was crushed between the floor of an elevator and the elevator shaft at the Yorkville Casino, 310 East Eighty-sixth Street. The injury made necessary the amputation of his leg above the knee. Dr. Schiemann, who was forty-eight years old, was a graduate of the University of Dorphe, Russia. For several years up to about four years ago he had held a Government position in Russia, and was last at Odessa. He was forced to leave there, with his family, because of the persecution of the Jews.

There are only three morning newspapers in New York that sell a million copies every seven days to the metropolitan newsdealers. The New York Times is one of them. Of the four other morning newspapers in New York City, the most largely circulated one sells less than half a million copies in seven days to the metropolitan newsdealers.

GIANTS DRIVE OUT SIX HOME RUNS

Colts Defeat Regulars in Game for Benefit of Daughters of Confederacy.

Special to The New York Times.

MARLIN, Texas, March 10.—The game scheduled between the Regulars and Colts for the benefit of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was played this afternoon before a large crowd. It was a fast and exciting contest, with plenty of hitting and base running, in which the Colts won, 9 to 6. It was the kind of a game fans like to see. Mathewson and Ames pitched the first six innings for the Regulars and held the Colts safe at all stages, but Hendricks, who pitched the last three innings, was hit hard, besides receiving some erratic support from the Regulars. Drucke and Wiltse, for the Colts, were also touched up pretty lively by the Regulars, but Jenkins, who pitched the last three innings, kept the regulars from scoring.

Home runs were plentiful. It will be some time before another game is played in which six home runs are made. Devlin led the batting, with two homers to his credit. Cy Forsythe, the Colts' first baseman, also covered himself with glory, driving out a homer and a three-bagger, besides playing a beautiful game at first base. Beals Becker was in the game again with another home run. The Colts played an up-hill game from the start and finished strong. Score by innings:

Colts ....0 0 0 2 0 0 3 2 2—9 12 1

Home runs—Devlin, (2,) Becker, Forsythe, Merkle, Bridwell. Three-base hits—Murray, Forsythe, McKnight. Two-base hits—Doyle, Snodgrass, Lush, Johnston, McKnight, Jenkins. Batteries—Regulars, Mathewson, Ames, Hendricks, and Schlei; colts, Drucke, Wiltse, Jenkins, Gowdy, and Hartley. Time of game—One hour and fifteen minutes. Umpire—Mr. Hansell.

Both clubs rushed back to the hotel and caught the 5:15 o'clock train for Dallas and Fort Worth, where they play to-morrow and Sunday.

YANKS' LAST DAY AT SPRINGS.

New York Team Starts for Athens To-night After Playing a Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., March 10.—Before they leave here to-morrow night for Athens, Ga., the Yankees expect to have a ball game at the baseball park, which has been used only once during the visit. There will be a battle between two teams of Yankees if the field is dry enough. That will be the New York's valedictory to Hot Springs and the social lights herein congregated will look on them no more, except that the countenances of Earl Gardner, Harry Wolter, and Charlie Hemphill will be in the midst of society luminaries for a while longer. The desire to break away for the South isn't universal with the players. Several of them feel so much benefited by their stay here that they have asked to remain a while.

Gardner, who has increased his avoirdupois five pounds, yearns to remain here longer and he and Wolter may linger until the team arrives in Cincinnati early in April.

Hemphill will stay a week longer, making two outfielders who will be missing for a while in the South. However, Cree is due in Athens next week and he, Daniels, Hemphill, and possibly Wolter, will be on deck by the time the Yankees begin their exhibition schedule. Furthermore, Hartzell, Roach, and Brockett can fill in the outfield, so there will be no scarcity of candidates for outfield berths.

The players had a long and helpful practice this morning on the grass and everybody was out. The work consisted of pitching, throwing, bunting, and fielding bunts. In the latter the pitchers got valuable practice, not to mention the conditioning that comes with chasing bunts. Hemphill took Wolter out for a drill over the mountains. The experimental tentative batting order which Chase has decided on shows one of the many arrangements of the material available. Needless to say, its duration depends entirely on the ability shown by its component parts and the way they fit in with one another. Chase said he expected to open the Southern campaign with his regulars assigned like this: Elliott, third base; Hemphill, right field; Chase, first base; Wolter, left field; Knight, second base; Johnson, short stop; Daniels, centre field and then catcher and pitcher.

Elliott is short. Short men are not easy to pitch to, said Chase, and for that reason he, as lead-off man, may be good at getting to first base.

Hemphill is always a good man near the top of the batting order. As Wolter won't be with the team for a while it is probable that Cree will go to left field. For that matter none of the outfielders is sure of a regular place. Daniels's ability to cover ground is the reason for his being assigned to centre. Jack Knight will have every chance to see what he can do at second base with two youngsters on the other side of the infield. This for a time may relegate Hartzell to a utility rôle, but he can play both outfield and infield.

RECRUITS IN FIRST GAME.

Young Yankees at Athens to Play University of Georgia To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—To-morrow afternoon the recruits of the New York Americans will have a chance to put into practice whatever big league lessons they have learned since arriving here. The first practice game of the season is billed with the University of Georgia nine. The 'Varsity boys are practically intact from last year, when they finished the season, after a poor start, with a burst of speed that fairly dazzled the Southern Intercollegiate League. The Georgians have taken advantage of the fine weather during the past five weeks to get themselves into the best possible condition. They are out for revenge to-morrow, for last year the New Yorkers defeated them in the few games that were played.

Every one in camp here will figure in to-morrow's game with the exception of Pitcher Sykes, who has not been in camp long enough to display his prowess. Southpaw Burbank is not mentioned in the list of Scout Irwin's selections, but he will be held in reserve to go to the rescue in case either Ables or Revelle, slated for pitching duty, goes wrong.

The Yannigans put in two busy practices to-day, under a warm sun. It was a thorough drill in batting on each occasion. The pitchers were worked out and for the first time steamed up a bit. Five of the first seven men on the batting order are left-handed hitters, a fact that will prove a handicap, as the Georgians have no competent southpaws. Walsh and Litchie are the right-handed hitters. Catcher Williams also hits right-handed. The batting order for to-morrow has been announced as follows: Jube, cf; Litchie, ss; Walsh, 1b; Kauff, lf; Bailey, 3b; Russell, 2b; McGraner, rf; Williams, c; Abels and Revelle, p.

Brooklyn Teams Play Tie Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 10.—A few more days of weather like that which prevailed to-day will put the Brooklyns in condition for their season's campaign. Manager Dahlen thought so well of his men's physical condition to-day that he sent them through a full nine-inning game this afternoon after a good morning workout under a hot sun. This afternoon's contest was interesting, especially when Pitchers Bell and Rucker faced each other, after Schardt and Burk had done their duty on the mound. In the fifth inning the big pitchers disposed of their opponents on four pitched balls. Daubert and Hummell furnished the batting feature of the game. Brooklyn's first-sacker lifted the ball over the right field fence for a homer, while Hummell drove out three safe hits, two of which were doubles. The Brooklyns may play a team of American Leaguers to-morrow as well as on Sunday.

Score: R.H.E.
Superbas ....0 1 0 1 0 1 0 1 0—4 9 0

Batteries—Schardt, Bell, and Erwin; Burk, Rucker, and Miller. Umpire—Mr. Lejeune.

American Association Opens April 12.

CHICAGO, March 10.—The American Association's baseball season for 1911 will open in the Eastern cities of the circuit on April 12, and close on Oct. 1, allowing 168 games on a four-circuit basis. This was decided to-day by members of the league after a long discussion of the schedule drawn up by President Chivington.

Minneapolis will open at Toledo, St. Paul at Columbus, Kansas City at Louisville, and Milwaukee at Indianapolis. This programme will be maintained until April 25, when Minneapolis will be host to Toledo, Indianapolis the guest of St. Paul, Louisville appearing at Kansas City, and Columbus visiting Milwaukee.

Two Baseball Clubs Fined.

CINCINNATI, March 10.—The Boston National League Club and the New Bedford Club of the New England League were fined $100 each by the National Baseball Commission today. The clubs were convicted of entering into a contract whereby George Walsh was to be "farmed" out to the minor league organization. The offense was committed before the present owners of the Boston Club obtained control. Incidentally the player was declared to be the property of the Fall River Club, provided he be content with his present contract with that team.

Dineen to Coach Cornell Pitchers.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 10.—The Cornell baseball management has engaged Bill Dineen, the old Boston American League Club pitcher and for the last two years an umpire in the American League, to coach the Cornell pitchers for a couple of weeks. Dineen is expected to come here next week, and he will take charge of the half-dozen pitchers who will work for Cornell this year.

Carlisle Indians Defeat Bucknell.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., March 10.—Bucknell University basketball team was defeated this afternoon by the Carlisle Indian School five by the score of 34 to 17.

Marshall and Capablanca Win.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, March 10.—In the twelfth round of the Chess Masters' International Tournament, which was played to-day at the Grand Casino here, the following results were recorded: Janowski beat Burn; Marshall beat Leonhardt; Bernstein beat Duras, and Capablanca beat Spielmann. The contests between Niemzowitsch and Vidmar, Schlechter and Teichmann, and Maroczy and Rubinstein were drawn. Tarrasch had the bye. To-morrow's programme will be devoted to the clearing up of games left unfinished in previous rounds. The thirteenth round is scheduled for Monday. The record of the tournament to date is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
Capablanca	8½	1½	Maroczy	5	6
Rubinstein	6½	3½	Niemzowitsch	4½	4½
Marshall	6½	4½	Bernstein	4½	5½
Vidmar	6½	4½	Janowski	4½	6½
Schlechter	6½	4½	Burn	4½	5½
Tarrasch	5½	4½	Leonhardt	4	6
Spielmann	5	5	Duras	4	7
Teichmann	5	6

PAL MOORE SCORES VICTORY OVER SMITH

Young Sammy Clings to Opponent to Prevent Himself from Going to the Floor.

Pal Moore and Young Sammy Smith, both Quaker City lightweights and contenders for the title now held by Ad Wolgast, engaged in an elimination session at the National Sporting Club last night, and Moore outpointed his fellow townsman. At times Pal's margin of a lead was very small, and in two or three rounds he had to take second honors, but twice—in the fourth round and again in the tenth—Moore had Young Sammy on the way to the canvas, and only the strength of the latter kept him on his feet. During the greater part of the battle, however, Moore had very little on his townsman.

Moore fought in flashes, and when he was going at his best he seemed to simply toy with his opponent. This was especially true in the two rounds when Sammy had to hang on to save himself from being floored. Both boys made the weight—134 pounds at 6 o'clock—and Smith found great difficulty in reaching this figure. That he was weakened was apparent in the early rounds, and became more apparent as the battle went on. Smith fought much below his usual form, and Moore found no difficulty blocking his leads. Sammy started both rights and lefts for his head all the time, making no effort to reach Pal's stomach, and a big majority of these swings got no further than Pal's arms as he extended them to guard his head.

Sammy did most of the leading, but he had difficulty in landing, and Moore found his mark often. At times the action was unusually slow, and it appeared as if Moore was not trying to land. Smith continued to pound away at Pal's head, and the latter was content to block the blows and go into a clinch. At infighting, as usual, Moore was strong, but during the slow spells, especially in the fifth and sixth rounds, he did not appear to try hard to land any hard punches in the clinches. The bout appeared remarkably slow at this stage, in contrast to the rapid-fire work of the fourth round.

The boys went into a clinch almost as soon as the first bell sounded, and had no sooner been separated than they went into another. A hard blow to the stomach plainly hurt Smith, and he swung several times to Pal's head without getting past Moore's guard. There was considerable feinting in this round, each being cautious and anxious to feel out his opponent. Sammy had the first of his falls in this round, but was up in an instant. The fall was due to slipping and not to any blow which he received. Sammy appeared very unsteady on his feet and slipped on three other occasions without going all the way to the canvas. The round was even.

They went into another clinch at the beginning of the second round and were no sooner out of it than Sammy again slipped and went to the floor. Smith led continually, but Pal blocked beautifully all of Sammy's leads. The boys warmed up a bit to their work in this round and some hard blows were delivered near the close of the round. Smith landed the clean blows in the open fighting and Moore did good work in the clinches. The round was even.

In the third round boxing took the place of fighting for two minutes, and during that time not one clean blow was struck. They took turns at leading, but each blocked cleverly. In the last minute Moore showed his first real burst of speed, and he set the pace, which was fast, until the bell sounded. He landed on Sammy with both right and left swings in the open fighting, and also jarred Sammy's head back several times with hard right uppercuts during the clinches. It was Moore's round.

The fourth was the best of the bout, although for a time it looked gloomy for Smith. The boys went to the centre of the ring and exchanged straight lefts, and from that time until the final bell sounded there was not a dull moment. Pal went down during this round, but it was due to slipping, and he jumped up instantly and tore after Smith. Moore danced around and jabbed Smith at will near the close of the round, and at one time it seemed that he would put Sammy away. He bounded the latter against the ropes with his hard swings and uppercuts, using both hands in triphammer fashion, but Sammy had strength enough to clinch and recover some of his steam. He surprised the crowd by coming back with three hard wallops to Moore's head after warding off Pal's attack. Moore had a clear lead in this round, and it seemed that Sammy was in line to be put away before the ten rounds were finished.

The fifth round was not so fast as the preceding one, and at times Moore seemed to be stalling. At one stage he pulled Smith around the ring, driving seven or eight uppercuts to Sammy's head without a return, but the greater part of the round was very tame. Sammy slipped down again in this round.

The sixth round was another quiet session, with little work done by either boy. Smith continued to do the bulk of the leading, and he jabbed away at Pal's head. But most of his leads were neatly blocked. One swing, however, caught Moore on the jaw and slightly staggered him. Smith earned any honors which this round afforded.

Sammy did all the work in the seventh round, which was his best. He swung at Pal's head repeatedly, and several of the blows landed. Moore did little more than clinch in this round.

In the eighth round Moore began to show a desire to go in and force matters, and had the lead in blows landed. Both connected several times with hard wallops in this session. In the ninth round Pal had a slight advantage, and in the tenth he led all the way, dancing around the ring and pounding Smith with hard rights and lefts. It was easily Pal's round.

The semi-final bout, with Eddie Rector and Jack McAuliffe as principals, was scheduled to go six rounds, but it came to a sudden finish early in the second round when Rector knocked McAuliffe out. The latter was of the tall and lanky type, and towered about six inches above Rector, who is short and stocky. Rector's reach gave him an even break in the first round, and [illegible] the second round until Rector's right caught him on the jaw and put him out. Just previous to the knockout McAuliffe went to his knees as if he had been fouled, and he took the count of nine before resuming work.

The programme was opened with a scheduled four-round bout between Jack O'Brien of New York and Young Preston. In the first round O'Brien was the better, but he had been injured and the bout was stopped. Preston went on later with Kid Fisher and was outpointed in four rounds. Johnny Lewis and Young Borell fought four rounds to a draw, and Joe West, after being outpointed for three rounds by Willie Brennan of Buffalo, came back strong enough in the last round to get an even break.

ICE RETARDS OARSMEN.

Harvard Crews Will Not Train on Charles River for Ten Days at Least.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 10.—The Harvard crews will be later this year in getting upon open water than in any season since James S. Wray, the present 'Varsity crew coach, assumed charge of rowing at Harvard. A year ago the 'Varsity and Freshman eights first put their shells into the waters of the Charles River as early as Washington's Birthday, but this year it will be another week and possibly ten days before the ice leaves the river.

Yesterday afternoon Coach Wray made several soundings of the ice off the 'Varsity boathouse and found he had to drill through several inches before striking the water beneath. Around the float the ice is over a foot thick, but further out in the stream it isn't more than half that thickness. The ice would probably bear up a team of horses to-day, but in spots it is rather soft and rotten, and a warm rain would eat into it in a hurry.

George Sims & Sons, the English rowing shell manufacturers, have notified the Harvard athletic authorities that they expect to have the new shells ordered for the Harvard crews ready for shipment by April 1. The old shells, which were damaged on the way here, will probably be purchased from the insurance company and employed for training practice.

ATHLETICS AT UNION.

New Gymnasium and Fields for Physical Training at Schenectady College.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., March 10.—President Richmond of Union College has become more and more convinced of the necessity of pushing to completion the new gymnasium project. "The tendency in college athletics to concentrate all effort toward the turning out of a winning team is manifestly absurd," he says. "We should make every effort to induce as many men as possible to take part in some form of athletics. In my judgment this should be required of every student, for his moral as well as his physical well-being. This calls for increased facilities, especially for out-of-door sports. There should be three or four baseball diamonds and two football fields. At present it is impossible for any but 'varsity players to have a chance to play on the field.

"We have formulated a general plan which has been approved by all who are interested. We propose to move the athletic field from the centre of the campus and to grade and prepare for use all the open ground at the east end of the college property bounded by Union Avenue and Lenox Road. This could be done at a cost of about $6,000. The new gymnasium would be erected at the upper end of the present running track, facing east and set upon the east and west axis midway between North and South College lanes."

Winners with the Cue.

In last night's game of the annual amateur handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at Keeney's Knickerbocker Billiard Academy, in Brooklyn, Dr. E. Beck made an unsuccessful attempt to make 235 points before W. B. Seale could tally 200. The low man made his necessary 200 points with the high runs of 21 and 19, and an average of 3 35-55, in fifty-five innings. Beck's tally for the same number of innings was 221 points, with high runs of 33 and 32, and an average of 4 1-55. In the game this evening C. Scheidig will endeavor to make 235 points before J. M. Millette can score 220 points.

In the game of the continuation of the amateur handicap championship pool tournament at the Riverside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Seventh Avenue, last night, Douglass Cross defeated Bud Walker by the score of 100 to 73. Cross took the lead at the beginning of the contest and maintained it throughout. In the first inning, with only one ball off the table, Cross shot the remaining fourteen ivories into the pockets and continued on with the second frame, clearing nine more balls off and making the high run of 23. Walker's high run was 19.

Chicago Billiardist Wins in Boston.

BOSTON, March 10.—Chicago, represented by Harris, defeated Boston, Edwards playing, in the National Billiard League series here tonight, the score being 50 to 37.

Miss Sears Tennis Winner Again.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 10.—The second annual Palm Beach tennis tournament closed to-day, when in the finals of the women's doubles Mrs. Henry Bull of New York and Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston won, 6—2 and 11—9, from Miss Beatrice Cluett of Troy and Mrs. Milton C. Work of Philadelphia. The quartet of players showed the effect of hard playing yesterday, and under a hot sun were not particularly up to their usual game, but there was a large gallery that appreciated some strenuous efforts put forth. The match gave Miss Sears her second cup of the tournament, she having won in the mixed doubles yesterday.

Big Prizes for Auto Racers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 10.—Although the $25,000 offered by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway as a prize for the 500-mile international sweepstakes race next Memorial Day is the largest purse ever offered for an automobile contest, the winners will receive many additional prizes. It is expected that at least $10,000 more will be offered by various automobile accessory makers, and the total prize money to be won in this one event will be nearly $50,000.

Shaw to Ride in Austria Again.

Willie Shaw, who rides for Prince Hohenlohe in Austria this season, will leave on the North German Lloyd steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm on March 14.

Prince Hohenlohe's racing string numbers forty-two horses. More than a score of the lot are winners of important stake races. Charles Planner, one of the most successful trainers in Continental Europe, is in charge of the Hohenlohe stable, which was wintered at Budapest.

CROCKER AND MORSE REACH GOLF FINALS

New England Players to Compete for Chief Honors in Pinehurst Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 10.—To-day's match play rounds in the seventh annual Spring golf turnament disposed of all but 40 of the field of 160 which qualified Wednesday, and the survivors in the first division, G. H. Crocker of the Brookline County Club and G. E. Morse of Rutland will fight it out for the President's Cup, and Henry C. Fownes of Oakmont and G. F. Brown of Huntington Valley will engage in the final for the consolation prize.

The best match of the day was between Mr. Crocker and J. D. Foot of Apawamis. It was give and take from the first hole to the nineteenth, where a short putt decided it in favor of the Massachusetts player, the medal scores being seventy-six and seventy-seven, respectively. Mr. Brown won a nineteen-hole match from Col. J. E. Smith of the Wilmington Country Club.

The surprise of the round was the defeat of Allan Lord of Chevy Chase, twice united North and South champion, by Scott Scammel of Trenton. Summary of first division:

Second Round.—J. D. Foot, Apawamis, beat L. D. Pierce, Brae Burn, 8 and 6; G. H. Crocker, Brookline, beat I. S. Robeson, Oak Hill, 4 and 2; Scott Scammel, Trenton, beat Allan Lord, Chevy Chase, 1 up; G. E. Morse, Rutland, beat R. S. Durstine, Ardsley, 5 and 4.

Semi-Final.—Crocker beat Foot, 1 up, (19 holes;) Morse beat Scammel, 3 and 2.

Golf Favorites Win at Palm Beach.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 10.—The first round at match play for the championship of Florida leaves the favorites in the competition. An unexpected defeat was that of H. B. Rust, Wannamoissett, 6 and 5, by George Grant Mason of Tuxedo, who has been playing a considerably better game this Winter than he ever did before. The summary:

First Sixteen.—L. A. Hamilton, Englewood, beat D. C. Murray, Utica, 6 and 5; C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., Montclair, beat Charles S. Brockett, Minnekahda, by default; V. C. Longley, Wannamoissett, beat Alexander H. Revell, Chicago, 3 and 2; J. G. Mason, Tuxedo, beat H. B. Rust, Wannamoissett, 6 and 5; J. R. Hyde, South Shore Field, beat J. D. Cady, Moline, Ill., 3 and 2; J. E. Rumbough, Asheville, beat Richard Hyde, South Shore Field Club, 3 and 2; J. P. Knapp, Garden City, beat N. E. McLaughlin, New York, 4 and 3; H. P. Farrington, Woodland, beat A. M. Miller, Jr., 3 and 2.

Second Sixteen.—L. E. Martin, Boston, beat Sidney Maddox, Brooklyn, 2 and 1; R. F. Phifer, Baltusrol, beat Vincent B. Hubbell, South Shore, 2 and 1; H. B. Ingalls, Swampscott, beat A. F. Southerland, Essex, Mass., 3 and 2; Josiah C. Thaw, Allegheny County, beat C. G. Dixon, Merion Cricket, 2 and 1; John Shepard, Jr., Providence, beat D. O. Wickham, Euclid, 5 and 4; J. B. Byron, New York, beat J. S. Rowe, New York, 4 and 3; Thomas Slidell, Newport, beat Fred Leistikow, Winnipeg, 5 and 3; A. F. Houston, Merion Cricket, beat John Birkholz, Minnekahda, 6 and 5.

Amateur Hockey Title at Stake.

The amateur hockey championship of the world will be decided to-night, when the Crescent Athletic Club team, champions of America and three times winner of the amateur league trophy, plays the Parksdales of Toronto, amateur champions of Canada, at St. Nicholas Rink. This game has been reserved for the last of the international series because of the opportunity it would afford of deciding for the first time a match that has the full international championship significance. By winning victories over such teams as McGill, Queens, Toronto, and St. Michael's, in the 'Varsity League, as well as the Montreal A. A., Shamrocks, Maple Leafs, and Cliffsides, the best amateur teams in Canada, the Parkdales have demonstrated their right to the title of champions of the Dominion, and are recognized as such, with the authority to play an American team for the world's championship.

TRACK AND OTHER SPORTS.

All athletes are invited to take part in the road runs held every Sunday under the auspices of the Union Settlement A. C. from their clubhouse, First Avenue and 104th Street, starting at 3 o'clock.

The Flatbush Athletic Club will put a strong baseball team on the field during the coming season. Prior to the arrangement of the schedule the management would like to hear from all first-class teams which are willing to play on the Flatbush A. C. grounds.

There is every likelihood of some capital foot-racing to-night at the annual games of the Mohawk A. C. in the armory of the Twenty-second Regiment, when such fliers as Oscar Hedlund, the Bostonian who gave Abel Kiviat a hard race in the Baxter mile, toes the scratch against the best men in the metropolitan district in the one-and-a-half-mile invitation race. Among those who will start are Kiviat, Jim Sullivan, Jack Monument, the National champion, and other men of that stamp. George Bonhag will be a contestant in the three-mile race, and all of the best of the long-distance men will be arrayed against the indoor king. All of the local clubs will be interested in the struggle for the point trophy.

It is said that George Goulding, the sensational walker from Toronto, has accepted the invitation of the Twenty-third Regiment A. A., and will be a competitor in a two-mile walk scheduled for Saturday night, March 18, in order to give the lad from over the border an opportunity to take off the books the record of 13:48 3-5 made by "Cinders" Murray in 1884.

POLO PLAYERS INVITED.

Experts Will Take Part in Preliminary Matches at Lakewood.

As the result of a meeting held yesterday by the Polo Association it was decided to send invitations to about fifteen of the highest handicapped players in order to have them take part in the preliminary games which will be played to find the best available four for the test matches with the Hurlingham team for the International Trophy. The invitation reads as follows:

> "Lakewood, March 9.
>
> "Dear Sir—The dates for the international polo matches have been fixed for May 31, June 3 and 7.
>
> "Through the courtesy of George J. Gould, Esq., who has placed his fields at the disposal of the Polo Association, the Special Committee invites you to participate in the trial games at Lakewood, which will begin, weather permitting, on March 18
>
> "The committee feels that all personal interests should be subservient to the welfare of the team. Consequently, the recipients of this invitation are those who, the committee believes have sufficient patriotic interest in the defense of the International Cup to place themselve sand their ponies at the disposal of the committee.
>
> "Practice games will be arranged for those who are not selected to play against the first team.
>
> "Kindly inform the committee promptly if you accept to play at Lakewood at the time named.
>
> Very truly yours,
> "H. P. WHITNEY,
> "GEORGE J. GOULD,
> "J. E. COWDIN,
> "R. J. COLLIER,
> "R. L. AGASSIZ,
> "L. E. STODDARD,
> "W. A. HAZZARD,
> "H. L. HERBERT,
> ALEX. BROWN."

The following committee's were also appointed: Lakewood Committee—H. P. Whitney, George J. Gould, J. E. Cowdin, R. J. Collier, R. L. Agassiz, L. E. Stoddard, W. A. Hazard, H. L. Herbert, and Alexander Brown.

Committee for the international events: H. P. Whitney, R. L. Agassiz, Alexander Brown, August Belmont, W. A. Hazard, and L. E Stoddard.

STALLS FOR POLO PONIES.

Mineola Fair Grounds Stables to be Utilized for Housing Mounts.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., March 10.—Thomas Bacon, Treasurer and General Manager of the Queens-Nassau Agricultural Society, has received word from Joseph B. Thomas, a clubman of New York, that twenty of the stalls on the Agricultural Society's grounds at Mineola will be in demand by him from April 15 until July 15. Ponies that will be put in training for the polo season will be stabled at Mineola and one of the buildings on the grounds will be used for housing the men.

This is the first move which has been made signalizing the most brilliant season in equine sport which Long Island has ever known. All the available fields in this section will be used weeks in advance of the international match. They include one field at the Meadow Brook Club, a polo ground on the estate of H. C. Phipps, Thomas Hitchcock's grounds, and the Barnum farm, occupied by George Munson. Workmen will soon commence to get the field at Meadow Brook in condition for the series of interesting matches to be started May 31.

Scholl Wins Potato Race Title.

The potato race held last night in the Xavier A. A. clubhouse in West Fourteenth Street to decide the amateur championship of the Church Athletic League was won by D. J. Scholl of the Grace Athletic Club. J. A. Krouse, also of the Grace A. C., was second, and Hal Helland of the Xavier Club finished third. The winner's time was 0:32 2-5. The race was of twenty-four yards distance, eight potatoes, and it was a close affair throughout.

The one-and-a-half-mile road run, closed to members of the Xavier Club, was won by J. Boschi. A. Soraci finished second and J. Mersfelder came in third. The winner's time was 6:43. The contestants in this event started from the clubhouse in West Fourteenth Street. They kept in a group to the Washington Arch in Fourth Street and up to within one block of the finish of the race, when Boschi gradually pulled away from the rest of the field and finished first, with Soraci second.

Penn's Relay Team Downs Cornell.

PITTSBURG, March 10.—University of Pennsylvania's crack relay team won over Cornell's runners in an indoor athletic meet here tonight. These teams were the only entrants in the two-mile relay race. Pennsylvania's time was 8:05.

INTERNATIONAL ATHLETICS.

Yale and Harvard to Compete Against Oxford and Cambridge in England.

While the arrangements have been carefully safeguarded, it has just developed that a picked team of Yale and Harvard athletes—track and field men—will visit England this Summer in quest of new honors in a joint series against Oxford and Cambridge.

The contests are carded for July, shortly after the British track championships, and will fit in very nicely, coming as they will probably six weeks after the American intercollegiate championships at Cambridge in the latter part of May.

While no written agreement exists to guarantee the meeting, there is an understanding by which the best of the sons of Old Eli and John Harvard will compete against the Oxonians and Cantabs in a series similar to that of several years ago.

Both Oxford and Cambridge have track teams of exceptional excellence this year, as evidenced by the capital work done recently in the intercollege sports, and they made a favorable reply when "sounded" a short while ago as to what their attitude would be toward a Harvard-Yale challenge for an international 'Varsity event.

In 1899, at the Queens Club grounds, West Kensington, London, Oxford and Cambridge won by five events to four. At Berkeley Oval, New York, in 1901, Yale and Harvard turned the tables, winning by a score of six to three, and duplicating the performance three years later at the Queens Club grounds by a similar score.

Other intervarsity-international matches were decided in London, in 1984, Yale vs. Oxford, with the latter the winner by 5½ to 3½, while in the next year at Manhattan Field Yale defeated Cambridge by eight events to three.

Penn State Wrestlers Win.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 10.—The Pennsylvania State University wrestling team defeated Cornell to-night, winning four out of seven bouts.

STEEL TONNAGE ON BOOKS.

Unfilled Orders Greater Than at Any Time Since Last August.

Unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation at the end of February was 3,400,543. This is the best showing of business on the books since August, when the decrease in activity in steel lines began to be felt. From 3,537,128 tons on the books at the end of that month the total fell off despite curtailment of operations, month by month, until at the end of December it had dropped to 2,674,757. In January orders began to pick up and at the end of that month the unfilled tonnage had crawled up to 3,110,919 tons.

As Judge Gary explained after the publication of the figures yesterday the gain of 299,624 tons since Jan. 31 does not accurately represent the betterment of business. In February the average of orders received daily was 18 per cent. better than in January, but at the same time increased operations at the mills, and a consequent increase in daily output somewhat offset the amount of new business coming in. During February new orders averaged 40,775 tons a day, while in January the average booked was only 35,000 tons.

SANCTIONS CENTRAL ISSUE.

Service Board Authorizes Sale of $30,000,000 Notes.

ALBANY, March 10.—The New York Central Railroad Company was authorized to-day by the Public Service Commission to issue its three-year notes for $30,000,000, to be sold at a price and interest rate which will give the company the equivalent of par on a 5 per cent. interest basis.

The commission has modified previous orders so as to authorize the sale of only $600,000 of the $3,744,000 fifty-year 4 per cent. bonds of the Geneva, Corning & Southern Railroad, and of $18,000,000 of the Central's thirty-year 4 per cent. gold debentures of 1904, part of a proposed issue of $20,000,000.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 230 business failures in the United States during the week, against 256 for the previous week, and 250, 254, 278, and 186 for the corresponding weeks of 1910 to 1907. The Middle States had 54, New England 30, Southern 57, Western 47, Northwestern 21, Far West 21, and Territories 0. Canada had 40, against 33 for the preceding week. About 87 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 7 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

Baltimore Dines Railway Heads.

BALTIMORE, March 10.—With the object of promoting closer relations between the heads of the great railroad systems entering Baltimore and the business interests of the city the Chamber of Commerce gave a dinner at the Belvedere to-night. The guests included Presidents James McCrea of the Pensylvania, Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, B. F. Bush of the Western Maryland, and Judge Charles A. Prouty of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, all of whom spoke.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull and Higher—Call Money Rates, 2¼@2½ Per Cent.

TRADING SMALLEST OF YEAR

Uncertainties in Mexican Affairs and Anti-Trust Suits Restrict Business on Exchange—Banks Lose Cash.

If the nominal advances in prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday reflected the reassurance brought to financial circles by the Administration's explanation of the mobilizing of troops on the Mexican border the further decline in the volume of business on the Exchange pointed perhaps to reservations which the market is making as to future developments in the Mexican situation. The chances are, however, that the Mexican affair is subsidiary to the influence of possible decisions in the anti-trust cases from the Supreme Court on Monday next. Whatever the reason the day's trading was the smallest of the year, and there were long periods of complete stagnation on the floor. Mexican railroad shares were features of strength following the official statement from the Government regarding the purposes of the assembling of our troops in Texas, while rather striking advances were also scored by a group of railroad stocks dominated by the Canadian Pacific, including that property, the "Soo" issues, and Wisconsin Central. These were almost the only exceptions to an otherwise narrow range of quotations.

In the day's news of direct interest to the financial community aside from developments bearing on the Mexican matters were two extremely important items. One of these had to do with the showing of the first loss suffered by local banks on money movements with the interior since the opening of the year, the other comprising the regular monthly report of the United States Steel Corporation on unfilled tonnage. While estimates of the increase in unfilled orders on the books of the corporation reached as high as 400,000 tons, the actual figures as disclosed yesterday are an increase of 200,000 tons over the Feb. 1 return. This in itself denotes improvement about in keeping with the general understanding of the steel situation through the month, but Judge Gary's explanation of the difference between the gain in unfilled orders in February and that of January makes it apparent that the betterment was greater than is disclosed in the orders. This explanation is that owing to enlarged operations the orders received during February were worked off more rapidly than in January, and to that extent affected the showing at the month's close.

Preliminary estimates of the currency movements of the week indicated a loss of about $4,000,000 in cash by the banks, this being the first loss of the present year. It is divided unequally between Sub-Treasury and direct transactions, but the point of interest is that the balance on interior transactions was actually unfavorable. No surprise is occasioned in banking circles by this showing; in fact, it is customary for the tide to turn against the local institutions at least a month earlier than it has this year. Exchange has been against New York at the principal interior cities for a fortnight past, reflecting simply the usual April 1 demand for funds inland. Money is required, of course, for preparations for the year's agricultural operations, and with the passing of this demand, probably by the middle of April, and with other factors unchanged present money market conditions are expected to resume their sway.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Friday.

One of the few periods of activity in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was around midday, when the United States Steel Corporation tonnage monthly statement was issued. Some selling followed the appearance of this statement, but the offerings were well absorbed, with the undertone continuing to present the same show of strength that has been a leading characteristic for several days. Traders were apparently adopting a waiting attitude. There was again talk on the floor about the pending decision by the United States Supreme Court in the important anti-trust cases, as well as discussion of the Mexican situation. Sales totaled 28,880 shares, with thirty-six different stocks represented on the list, a narrower list for a full day's business than in some time.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—Still another stagnant session confronted the local traders to-day, and business on the Stock Exchange was even smaller than yesterday's puny total. On the whole, the tone was firm, with some demand for Cambria Steel, Pennsylvania, Reading, and Steel. Lake Superior was also up a small fraction, and this, too, was true of Union Traction. Asphalt shares, as well as the warrants were quiet, but distinctly firm, while Philadelphia Company improved nearly a point on light transactions.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Stagnant Trading Continues, with Prices Moving Narrowly in the Curb Market.

GIROUX BECOMES ACTIVE

Sells Off ¼, but Closes Even with the Opening Level After Transactions of 5,000—Small Gains and Losses.

Curb trading continued stagnant yesterday and prices moved narrowly, although at the end there were some small gains and losses. On sharply diminished trading Intercontinental Rubber, which opened at 32¼, ⅛ above the previous day's close, sold off ¼, but closed with a net gain of ⅛ at 32. Transactions were 600 shares. Among the coppers, Greene-Cananea and Inspiration made small gains, the former selling 2,500 shares between 5⅝ and 5⅞, closing at 5¾, and the latter rose from 7¾ to 7⅞. Giroux, which was the most active, sold off from 5 15-16 to 5 11-16, closing at 5 15-16, even with the opening, after transactions of 5,000 shares. Ray Consolidated sold off from 17¼ to 17. Trading in the bond list was limited to Southern Bell 5s and Western Pacific 5s, the latter declining from 94¾ to 94⅝.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Heavy trading in Commonwealth Edison was about the only feature of interest on the local Exchange, and resulted in a gain of several points for the electric shares. The opening was on an advance of a fraction at 121, and after touching 124 there was a gradual recession to a shade over 123 by the close. Other issues were only fractionally changed from last night, with small gains for Pneumatic Tool, Illinois Brick, and Diamond Match, and declines for Sears-Roebuck and Booth Fisheries common and preferred. There was smaller trading in elevated bonds, $40,000 changing hands at unaltered prices.

FARMING IMPORTS INCRE

Fruits Lead for the Last De Much Cotton Brought In WASHINGTON, March 10.— markable increases in the imp agricultural products into the States during the decade 1900-10 in a bulletin issued by the Bu Statistics. Notable among these increase in the imports of fruits an which in 1900 were valued at $1 while for the year 1910 their value as $39,500,000.

The imports of fruits alone have creased on an average of $1,000,000 a since 1900. For 1910 they were valued $26,000,000, an increase of $10,000,000 si 1900. Bananas showed the principal crease, having grown from $6,000,000 1900 to $12,000,000 in 1910.

Hides and skins show increases practically all commodities in the cultural products. Shipments of hides skins increased from 397,000,000 pound 1900 to 573,000,000 pounds in 1909. For year 1910, however, there was a decrea when they were imported to the extent 461,000,000 pounds.

Notwithstanding that the United Sta is the producer of practically three-fourth of the world's supply of cotton, this com modity also shows an increase in imports In 1900 60,000,000 pounds of cotton, valued at $8,000,000, were imported into the United States. For the year 1910 85,000, 000 pounds valued at $17,500,000 were imported. Live animals, breadstuffs, sugar, and tobacco also were imported in greater quantities in 1910 than in 1900.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Banks Lose Cash.

A long succession of gains in cash shown in the Friday estimates of the currency movements was followed yesterday by a rather large loss in cash, varyingly estimated at from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 and over. The outward movement of currency which set in on a fairly large scale toward the close of last week was continued this week in sufficient volume to more than offset the receipts of new gold. In their transactions with the Sub-Treasury the banks lost more than $5,000,000, so that the indicated loss on the movement to and from the interior brought the total estimated loss up to a pretty substantial figure. Most of the cash which was shipped to the New York banks this week came from near by points, while the demands upon the banks came from the Middle, Western and Southwestern States. Two or three times in recent weeks the bank statement on Saturday has shown a decrease in cash holdings due to unreported local or other movements of cash, but not until yesterday, since the beginning of the year, has the Friday estimates of the currency movement shown a loss.

Duller Yet.

There seems little prospect that the market will pick up until the Sherman law decisions are handed down. Yesterday's stagnation was even deeper than Thursday's, the total transactions being only 163,370 shares. The general apathy is perhaps best illustrated in the fact that the high and low quotations sent out at the close of the market comprised only 47 out of the 400 listed stocks and took up less than four feet of tape. From 12:45 to 12:52 not a single transaction either in bonds or stocks appeared on the tape, and not even old timers could remember a parallel for such silence of the ticker in recent years.

⁂

Bank Clearings Better.

The dullness of trading in the last week is primarily responsible for the failure of the bank clearings in New York to share in the improvement over the rest of the country. The statistics compiled by Dun's Review from the principal centres show a loss of only 2.6 per cent. for the week outside of New York City, as compared with the fairly active period at this time in 1910. By contrast with the same time in 1909 there was an actual gain of 15.2 per cent. In this city, however, there was a loss compared with 1910 of 14.2 per cent., as contrasted with 1909 of 8.5 per cent. These losses in New York pulled the average for the country as a whole down to 10.4 per cent. less than a year ago, the total bank clearings being $2,640,963,375. Compared with the same week in 1909 the gain was 10.9 per cent.

⁂

The Tonnage Showing.

It was to be expected that with the increased operations at the plants of the Steel Corporation the large increase in orders during February would not show to any great extent on yesterday's figures of unfilled orders. The 3,400,543 tons on the books is an increase of only about 300,000 tons over those on hand at the end of January. The position of the company was better indicated in the information Judge Gary gave out supplementing the tonnage figures, which showed that the business booked in February averaged 18 per cent. more than that of January.

⁂

Crop Prospects.

The crop outlook is beginning to occupy the wiseacres. The snow map, showing that practically all of the country east of the Rockies and north of a line drawn from Cape May to Minneapolis is under snow, is one of the encouraging reports from the weather authorities this week. Meanwhile the growing season is approaching, with acreage planted and field preparations at a better average than ever before.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 10.—Trading in the local market was extremely dull to-day, and the larger part of the transactions were in odd lots. Greene-Cananea was in good demand, and about the only issue in the mining group to show any signs of activity. Fluctuations even in this stock were confined within a small fraction of a point. In the miscellaneous list American Agricultural Chemical was the feature, recording a further decline, to 55. The general market closed quiet.

GOULD AGAIN YIELDS IN MISSOURI PACIFIC

The Necessary Assurances Given on Demand of Banking Interests and Trouble Ends.

AGREEMENT MADE BINDING

No Matter What the Baltimore Proxy Committee Gains the Kuhn-Loeb Group Is to Lose Nothing.

The threatened breach between George J. Gould and the Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-Rockefeller interests over the election of a new Board of Directors was obviated at conferences yesterday at which assurances were given the banking interests that the agreement reached some time ago would be carried out to the letter. This outcome came after a day of uncertainty, during which the renewal of an open contest for control of the Missouri Pacific was in the balance. The understanding in the financial district was that Mr. Gould was asked to let the banking interests know by 3 o'clock where he stood in the matter of giving them the assurances which they felt were necessary to prevent any failure of the plan for the domination of the road by the banking interests and the important American and foreign stockholders identified with them.

At 3 o'clock it was said that Mr. Gould had asked for another half hour in which to answer. When the answer came it was satisfactory. The statement made late in the day that "the agreement would be carried out to the letter" was taken to mean that the banking interests had obtained assurances that the proxies being gathered by the Baltimore Proxy Committee would not be allowed to interfere with the selection of the candidates of the banking interests for places on the Missouri Pacific board.

Frank Gould Explains It.

Frank J. Gould, after a long conference last night at his house, 834 Fifth Avenue, at which R. Lancaster Williams and C. T. Williams of Mittendorf, Williams & Co. were present and in which H. W. Anderson, counsel for the Baltimore banking house, and George H. Taylor, Mr. Gould's counsel, participated, gave out a statement explaining that his part in the Missouri Pacific tangle had nothing to do with his brother George. Mr. Gould's statement said that his object was solely to get representation for the minority interests in the board. The statement was given out at 11 o'clock last night in the presence of the lawyers. Asked if he meant to say that he had given his proxies to the Baltimore committee without his brother's knowledge or consent, he replied: "Quite so."

The statement read:

> In view of many statements published to give the suggestion that George J. Gould is endeavoring to recede from a purported agreement with "Kuhn-Loeb-Rockefeller" interests as to the new control of the Missouri Pacific, his brother, Frank J. Gould, last night, when asked as to these reports, declared that they were unwarranted, but that he might unintentionally have been the cause of them.
>
> Frank J. Gould is one of the largest individual stockholders of the Missouri Pacific Railway, and with other stockholders he believes that independent minority interests should have representation in the new Board of Directors. He also has a one-sixth interest in the Gould estate holdings, represented by his brother. As for his individual holdings, outside of those in the estate, Mr. Frank Gould believes that it will be better that these holdings, along with the stock of other investors in the Missouri Pacific, be represented independently of other interests in the company.
>
> Mr. Gould stated that he merely gave his proxy, along with many other stockholders who desired such representation, and after the movement was successfully under way.
>
> R. Lancaster Williams of the firm of Middendorf-Williams Company of Baltimore, has secured sufficient proxies, independently of Frank Gould's individual holdings, to be elected a Director of the road. For many years Mr. Williams, one of the most capable of the younger financiers and business men of the South, has come in close contact with Frank Gould in the Southern field. Mr. Gould's investments in Virginia are large, as are the investments of the family of Mr. Williams. Mr. Gould said that, along with many other stockholders who gave their proxies, he felt that any vote which Mr. Williams would give on the Board of Directors would militate for the benefit of the property.

Not Acting with George Gould.

Mr. Frank Gould is convinced that a very considerable number of stockholders are desirous for an independent representation in the Directorate of the Missouri Pacific Railway. He believes such an independent movement would prove a healthy thing for the vast property in which the Gould estate is the largest holder.

For this reason he gave his individual proxy to Middendorf, Williams & Co., and has advised other holders of the stock to do the same.

Mr. Gould was emphatic in declaring last night that hints or suggestions that George Gould desired to recede from any stand previously taken by him, or that he was directly or indirectly connected with the movement to secure representation for the independent interests on the board were without the slightest foundation in fact.

R. Lancaster Williams supplemented Mr. Gould's statement with an explanation of the interest of his firm, indicating that the peace would not be broken by the Baltimore committee. He explained that the banking house represented large independent interests that believed in the future of the property. He said of the committee's attitude:

"We have not had, and do not wish to have, any controversy with any interest in the property. Our action is not antagonistic to any interest."

Under the cumulative system of voting the Baltimore committee can elect one Director for each one-thirteenth of the number of shares voted by the committee.

There are in round numbers 830,000 shares outstanding. It was reliably estimated yesterday that about 80 per cent., or say 650,000 shares, will be represented at the meeting on March 14. One-thirteenth of this would be 50,000 shares, and the Baltimore committee will be able to elect one Director for each 50,000 shares which it may represent. Even if every share was represented the Baltimore committee would be able to elect one Director for every 64,000 shares it voted. The committee has made known that it has enough stock to elect one Director, and may have enough to elect two. In the face of this situation it became necessary for the banking interests, if the spirit of the original agreement was to be carried out, to obtain assurances from Mr. Gould, who controls the majority proxies, that he would so handle these proxies that any men dropped from the majority ticket as a result of the cumulative voting by the Baltimore committee with which Frank J. Gould, the brother of George J. Gould, is understood to be allied, would be taken from among the Gould candidates and not from among the candidates of the banking interests.

Assurances Cover the Point.

It was the understanding at the close of the day that the assurances which the banking interests obtained covered this point and definitely disposed of the possibility that when the vote is cast next Tuesday the Kuhn, Loeb & Co.-Rockefeller interests would find themselves in the minority despite the fact that their holdings of the road's stock warranted them three weeks ago in demanding from Mr. Gould the assurance that nine Directors acceptable to them would be chosen out of the thirteen Directors to be elected.

The final conference at which the possibility of a reopening of the contest was disposed of was said to have been held at the offices of Blair & Co. Edgar L. Marston, a member of that firm, is one of the men named by the banking interests as a new Director of the road, and the firm is also regarded in banking circles as closely associated with the Rockefeller interests.

It was said that neither Mr. Gould nor his counsel was likely to attend in person the annual meeting to be held in St. Louis next Tuesday. The majority Proxy Committee is made up of Mr. Gould, Charles S. Clarke, Vice President of the Missouri Pacific, and A. H. Calef, its Secretary and Treasurer. The latter is in Europe, and Mr. Clarke, who is now in St. Louis, will probably be the only member of the Proxy Committee who will be present at the meeting. It was assumed in the financial district that the banking interests would be represented at the meeting, but by whom it was not made known.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, March 10.—Money was scarce and discount rates were steady to-day.

The stock market maintained its strength on moderate support, chiefly in home rails. Consols, copper, and Canadian shares at hardening prices. Mexican shares recovered in better political news, but Kaffirs and rubber stocks were flat.

American securities opened steady and about unchanged. Fair buying orders were executed during the forenoon, and prices advanced from ⅛ to ⅝ over parity. New York supported the market in the afternoon, when Canadian Pacific led in point of strength. The closing was steady.

The settlement on the Stock Exchange was concluded without trouble.

Bar silver quiet at 24 5-16d per ounce.

Money, 2¾@3 per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, for short bills, 2¾@2¾ per cent.; for three months' bills, 2½@2 9-16 per cent.

Bar silver quiet at 24 5-16d per ounce.

Gold premium at Madrid, 8.15; at Lisbon, 8.

Bullion amounting to £135,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

PARIS, March 10.—Prices opened better on the Bourse to-day on President Taft's reassuring statement regarding the Mexican situation. Bank shares recovered partially during the day, but a reaction occurred during the last hour, and the closing was generally heavy.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 52½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 29½c for checks.

BERLIN, March 10.—Trading was dull, but prices were rather firmer on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 46½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 2½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 3¼ per cent.

The total balance in general fund was $82,733,402.

Ordinary receipts yesterday were $2,021,467, with ordinary disbursements of $3,762,235.

The deficit to date this fiscal year is $5,959,391, as against $23,649,307 at this time last year.

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

W. C. Bailey has purchased a membership in the New York Cotton Exchange for $14,700 and C. D. Freeman has purchased a membership for $14,500. The latter sale is $400 below the last officially reported sale on Feb. 28.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list Baldwin Locomotive Works $10,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds, 1941; and Underwood Typewriter Company $5,000,000 preferred stock, and $8,500,000 common stock.

The banking house of Spitzer & Co., established in 1871, and having offices at Toledo, New York and Chicago, announces the change of the firm name to Spitzer, Rorick & Co. All the partners of Spitzer & Co. continue in the new firm except Sidney Spitzer.

The tenth edition of "The Earning Power of Railroads" by Floyd W. Mundy of James H. Oliphant & Co. is off the press. It presents the vital facts regarding the 150 principal railroad systems of the United States, Canada and Mexico, analyzed in such a way as to make them intelligible to the ordinary investor as well as to the man skilled in the study of balance sheets.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—There was a general change for the better in the tone of the grain markets on Friday. Wheat advanced 1c to 1⅜c per bushel, and closed at about the top. The cables were of an encouraging character, and, while foreign statistics were somewhat bearish, they had but little effect. Argentine wheat exports for the week were 3,592,000 bushels, against 2,536,000 bushels the previous week, and Australian exports were 2,480,000 bushels, against 1,100,000 bushels. Cable reports from Argentina were of continued favorable weather, with an increase in wheat stocks and liberal receipts. The Argentine visible gained 664,000 bushels for the week. But little attention was paid to the bearish statistics, the market turning firm, with shorts good buyers on reports of Hessian fly damage in Illinois. These reports have been current for some time. The Modern Miller, in its report, issued in the afternoon, said that the damage was of unimportant amount. In Oklahoma a 50 per cent. crop was anticipated where the wheat had been reported killed, with material improvement in other sections. There were, however, reports of prospects of only 50 per cent. of a crop in California. Receipts were small for the day at the West, and for five days have decreased 2,400,000 bushels. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 2,240,000 bushels, against 2,980,000 bushels the previous week. World's exports pointed to 13,000,000 bushels, against 12,352,000 bushels the previous week, and 11,408,000 bushels last year. Very little attention was paid to the news of favorable crop conditions received in the afternoon. Cash wheat was firmer, but inactive, with no export sales reported. No. 2 red was quoted at 98¾c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.09; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.01; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.02.

CORN.—The corn market showed a strong advance, with the final prices about a cent a bushel up from the previous close. The opening was firm, and buying orders came in in volume, with shorts showing a good deal of anxiety. The change in feeling regarding the market on the Government's showing of record-breaking home consumption has been material. Cash corn was higher at the West, and receipts at the interior this week have been only slightly larger than last week; shipments have also increased. Bradstreet's exports for the week were 2,355,000 bushels, against 2,862,000 bushels the preceding week. The Argentine exports were only 68,000 bushels. Cash corn was higher, with No. 2 quoted at 55c, free on board; No. 3, 53½c; steamer, 52½c; No. 4, 49¾c, all in elevator, export rate.

OATS were active and strong, closing at an advance of nearly a cent a bushel. A break had been anticipated by bears on the record-breaking farm reserves. When the break failed to materialize a large short interest evidently became disturbed. Cash oats were higher, with a better demand reported. Standards were quoted at 35¾c; No. 2 white, 36¼c; No. 3 white, 35¼c.

PROVISIONS.—Hog products also displayed a good deal of strength and closed at best prices of the day. The improvement was on further disappointing live hog movement, with a sharp gain in live hog prices, while the weekly estimate of the stocks showed but slight gain since March 1, notwithstanding the increased packing.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading was in good volume during yesterday's session, but price variations continue small. The apathy prevailing in crude circles accounts for the hesitancy noted, and in the meanwhile professional operations predominate. At the start there was some selling, thought to be for the account of prominent refining interests, but there was a good scattered demand, and the small losses were generally recovered. The passing of some March tenders caused some liquidation in that month, but this was not heavy enough to have much effect on the rest of the list. The crop complaints coming from Texas did not receive much attention. Quotations follow:

COTTON.

The process of eliminating shorts continued unabated during yesterday's session, and while offerings showed a tendency to increase on the advance, there was sufficient support from spot interests and other bulls on the small reactions to maintain a firm tone until the close. News seemed to be more favorable to values than otherwise, and developments appeared to be attracting the attention of some outsiders; although the uncertainty existing in regard to factors immediately concerning trade conditions and the conflicting crop accounts continue to result in extreme conservatism before large commitments are entered into.

Advices from Liverpool were better than looked for, and as the weather map or weather predictions failed to disclose any marked relief relative to conditions complained of in Texas, initial prices were at fair advances. Some reports from Texas were to the effect that the warm weather was absorbing all the moisture in the subsoil, and that good rains were badly needed, but others were less alarming in tenor, stating that planting was interfered with to some extent, but not in a serious manner. Nevertheless the opinion is expressed that there is less disposition to sell the new crop option until precipitation is indicated in the Southwest.

At a meeting of spinners in Lancashire it was resolved upon to curtail, by not operating on Saturdays, for a period of three months. At first the receipt of this cable caused some selling, but when it became known that the period of curtailment would amount to only seventy-one hours, pressure quickly subsided. In fact these cables were followed by others, stating that spinners were showing a better inquiry, and naturally their effect was decidedly stimulating, inasmuch as we have already exported nearly 1,750,000 more bales of cotton than last year. Spot advices as received from private authorities continue of a generally firm tone, but the point was made by some interests that official quotations fail to show any decided change from day to day, dispatches claiming light offerings and a good demand are either exaggerated or else the firm tone is based on prices below those officially quoted.

Another factor toward the strength was the predictions of bullish week-end statistics, and these materialized to a fair extent. Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week were given at 260,000 bales, against 227,000 last year. This would indicate decrease in the visible of American cotton of 155,000 bales, against a decrease of 128,000 bales a year ago, and a decrease of 129,000 bales, as compared with last year. The amount brought into sight for the week as given by the local Exchange was 105,000 bales, against 132,000 bales last week, and 98,000 bales a year ago. So far this season there have been 10,640,000 bales brought into sight, against 9,089,000 a year ago. New York spot cotton was quiet at 10c advance from the previous close. Middling uplands, 14.55c.

COFFEE.

Coffee was moderately active, total sales amounting to 62,750 bags, but after opening unchanged to 3 points lower, the market rallied, and during the late session was firm, closing at a net advance of 9 to 15 points. Both Havre and Hamburg closed unchanged to ¼ point higher. There were liberal offerings of cost and freight coffee from Brazil, with prices ranging from 12⅜ to 12¾ for Santos 4s, according to descriptions, and sales were reported of about 10,000 bags, mostly at 12.55. Rio was unchanged, while Santos was 100 reis lower. Rain was reported in all five districts of Santos.

Spot coffee steady at 12¼@12⅜ for Rio No. 7.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

The moderate improvements in industrial and trade conditions since the beginning of the year continues. This is most noticeable in iron and steel. It is less evident in the dry goods trade, in which curtailment of production is maintained and price reductions are being made. Yet January and February sales in many cases showed gain over preceding months. Some growth in activity in the boot and shoe markets is reported. Two important elements of strength in the situation are the existing low stocks of merchandise and the existing large stock of money. Other favorable factors are the increasing reserves of the great banks; the decline in the Bank of England rate of discount to 3 per cent.; the gratifying change for the better in our foreign trade; the signs of large accumulating credits abroad, and the generally excellent outlook for crops, so far as they can now be forecasted. Current statistics, by which the volume and trend of trade are usually tested, are not altogether satisfactory. Railroad earnings in four weeks of February increased 0.3 per cent. Bank clearings in the last week outside New York declined 2.6 per cent., as compared with 1910, and increased 15.2 per cent., as compared with 1909. In New York there was a decrease of 14.2 per cent. from 1910 and a gain of 8.5 over 1909. The foreign commerce exhibit at New York during the latest week recorded exports of $18,282,480, a remarkable gain of $5,878,163 over 1910 and an excess of $2,603,678 over the imports. As compared with 1909, exports increased $4,578,209 and imports decreased $3,294,999.

Bradstreet's says:

The presence of numerous buyers in the principal markets has tended to produce a moderate degree of improvement in house trade, and early farm work is progressing under favorable conditions, while Fall-sown grain appears to be in good shape. Incidentally the progress of the season has imparted a little more zest to retail trade. Yet conservatism is everywhere visible, buyers, especially of textiles and clothing, are purchasing cautiously, and mill owners are selling goods made up from high-priced materials at little or no profit. In a word, the failure of business in general to expand more freely is disappointing. A policy of small-lot buying appears to be favored by most purchasers, and the efforts of the larger purveyors to force sales meet with little response. The coming session of Congress, at which various tariff schedules may be treated, together with the probability of action on the Canadian reciprocity matter, tends to produce more or less chariness. Flour remains dull, lumber is quiet, and though building should pick up somewhat from now on, the figures of permits and estimated expenditures show that extension work is not so active as at this time last year. On the other hand, farm labor is in good demand, and paints, oils, drugs, fertilizers, and millinery continue to meet with good calls. Commodity prices still weaken, changes which will prove beneficial to the ultimate consumer, but which will hardly satisfy the farmer, who may become less prone to expand acreage. Money remains very easy, and loans on good collateral are easily obtained. Deposits in banks of discount are very heavy, and Chicago reports that they are of record proportions. But the plethora of idle funds simply corroborates current reports of backward or conservative trade. Collections range from about fair to slow.

TO PROMOTE J. S. ALEXANDER.

Vice President Likely to be Made President of Bank of Commerce.

The Directors of the National Bank of Commerce are said to have agreed upon J. S. Alexander, one of the Vice Presidents of the bank, as the successor to V. P. Snyder, who retires from the Presidency on April 1. Mr. Snyder presented his resignation to the Directors last January to take effect April 1.

It is a matter of general understanding in the financial district that the Morgan and other interests in the National Bank of Commerce have offered the post of President to several bank officers in the financial district, all of whom were reluctant to give up the places they now hold.

The Directors had also been considering the present officers of the bank and finally decided to fill the expected vacancy in the Presidency by the promotion of one of the bank's own officers instead of from among outside bankers. Mr. Alexander's ability as a banker was highly commended yesterday by other bankers, to whose ears the report came that he is to be made President of the second largest bank in the United States.

The Directors of the National Bank of Commerce hold their regular monthly meetings on the first Wednesday of each month, and another regular meeting, therefore, will not be held until after the date fixed by Mr. Snyder for his retirement.

It is thought likely that a special meeting of the Directors may be called before the end of the present month to elect Mr. Snyder's successor.

Mr. Snyder's salary as President of the National Bank of Commerce is said to be $75,000 a year. The Directors, it is reported, propose to reduce this salary after he gives up the office. If this action is taken it will be consistent with the policy of other organizations. The salary of the President of the United States Steel Corporation, it will be recalled, was reduced recently from $100,000 a year to $50,000. The tendency has been to put a closer limit on the salaries of executive officers.

COTTON SPINNERS TO BALLOT

Thus to Decide on Saturday Suspension of Manchester Exchange.

MANCHESTER, March 10.—The Federation of Master Cotton Spinners at a meeting to-day decided to take a ballot among cotton men on the proposal of the American section of the trade that operations be suspended on Saturdays for a period of three months.

The American section to-day unanimously approved the proposal.

Negotiated for a Liberian Loan.

Among those who arrived yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic was R. P. Falkner, who has just completed preliminary negotiations for a $10,000,000 Liberian loan. This is considered the first step in the rehabilitation of the Black Republic. The Government has given the American Receiver General of Customs authority to provide for an adequate military force to maintain internal peace.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Apartment House Property Continues to Attract Investors. Purchase in Murray Hill Section to Block Trade Invasion—G. W. Perkins Buys Acreage at Riverdale.

There was plenty of activity in the realty market yesterday. Business was of a decidedly varied nature, involving many favorably situated properties in the lower and upper parts of the city, some of the deals being of large volume. West side apartment houses furnished a fair share of the day's operations. William H. Hall bought the six-story building known as Altamont Hall, on the northwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 124th Street, from Abraham Benedict, the broker being E. Francis Hillenbrand. The apartment house occupies a plot 100.11 on the avenue and 50 feet on the street. The buyer owns the adjoining house, at 508 West 124th Street. There are seven stores in the Altamont facing Amsterdam Avenue. In part payment Mr. Hall gave two six-story tenements at 302 and 304 West Sixty-ninth Street, on plot 50 by 100.5, near West End Avenue, and two five-story double flats at 369 and 371 West 126th Street, on plot 50 by 79.11, near St. Nicholas Avenue.

In the Cathedral Parkway section B. Oppenheimer, as executor of the Herman Oppenheim estate, sold to an investor the six-story building known as Annamere Court, at 609 to 615 West 115th Street, having a frontage of 100 feet by 100.11 deep, between Broadway and Riverside Drive.

Post Office Award.

The award for the new Post Office building on Eighth Avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-third Streets, back of the new Pennsylvania Station, has been given to the George A. Fuller Company. Work has been in progress for nearly a year in excavating for the foundations on one of the corners. The early completion of the new Post Office will add materially to the general activity in that locality, and some of the long awaited improvements in the Pennsylvania Station neighborhood will probably be announced in the near future.

George W. Perkins Buys Acreage.

George W. Perkins has purchased through Nichols & Hobbie the Bend property at Riverdale on the Hudson. The owners of the property, which consists of about ten acres, were represented by John Whalen. It adjoins another parcel held by Mr. Perkins and was held at $150,000, according to the brokers.

Gould Family Sell Realty.

The two parcels of property at 67 and 69 East Fifty-ninth Street, which have been owned by the Gould family for many years, have been sold for the Kingdon Realty Company to the General Investment Company. Leopold Weil was the broker in the transaction. The Kingdon Realty Company is a holding company for Miss Helen Gould and George, Edwin, and Howard Gould. The property was sold in partition proceedings at auction last December and bought in by the Goulds for $85,500. The two parcels are assessed for $106,000. The property is occupied by two four-story buildings on a plot 40 by 100 and is 40 feet west of Park Avenue.

More 38th Street Sales.

Additional sales in Thirty-eighth Street, near Madison Avenue, have lent interest to the belief that the buying is being done by parties anxious to preserve the private residential character of the neighborhood. John N. Golding, who on the previous day sold 13 and 15 East Thirty-eighth Street, has sold 10 East Thirty-eighth Street on plot 25 by 100 for Henry Steers, and it is reported that 11 East Thirty-eighth Street, on plot 23 by 98.9, owned by John W. Cox, has been sold.

Two Sales in Lower Part of City.

The five-story building 96 Park Place has been sold to an investor by Mrs. Rhinelander Waldo. The property, which is 23.7 by 82.8 and irregular, is located on the south side of the street, about midway between Washington and West Streets. It has not changed hands in over half a century.

Another sale in the business section was announced by Joseph F. A. O'Donnell, who sold for William Buchan, Jr., the four-story tenement and store 155 Prince Street, on lot 20.1 by 85, 35 feet west of West Broadway. The property has been in the family since 1861.

Forty-fifth Street Loft Sold.

The Midville Realty Company has sold the six-story store and loft building at 21 West Forty-fifth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5. The sellers take back a long lease on the property from the new owner.

Ames & Co. have sold for Aaron Coleman 125 West Twenty-ninth Street, a four-story building, on lot 19 by 50 and irregular, to a Mr. [illegible]ifer.

Resale in "Penn" Loft Zone.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has resold at a substantial profit to out-of-town clients 133 West Thirty-third Street, a plot of 3,300 square feet, located between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. The property has been withdrawn from the market for sale, and will be held by the buyers for future enhancement. It is nearly opposite the plot at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-third Street, which is owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad and upon which it has been rumored several times within a month a huge hotel would be erected.

Private Dwellings in Demand.

The Douglas Robinson Charles S. Brown Company has sold for W. H. Dougherty 13 East Sixty-fifth Street, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 22 by 100.5.

Frederick Zittel has sold for Grace W. Sheppard to a client, for occupancy, 244 West Seventieth Street, a four-story American basement dwelling, on lot 16 by 100.5.

Daniel H. Renton & Son have sold for Rebecca M. Laidlaw 463 West 147th Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 18.9 by 99.11, to a client, for occupancy.

Porter & Co. have sold for the estate of Martha Dailey to a client, for occupancy, the three-story brownstone dwelling 8 West 122d Street, on plot 22 by 100.11.

Buys Twelfth Street Houses.

The John H. Dye Company has sold for Sarah J. Parker 344 and 346 West Twelfth Street, two three-story buildings, on plot 48 by 80, to Ottinger Brothers. This is the first sale of the property in over thirty years.

Buys Eighth Avenue Block Front.

The block front on the east side of Eighth Avenue, between 156th and 157th Streets, has been sold by the New York and Northern Land Company. The plot fronts 199.11 feet on Eighth Avenue and 100 feet on each street, and is directly opposite old Manhattan Field. The sellers acquired the property from James J. Coogan about twenty years ago. The buyer is an investor.

Bronx.

Kurz & Uren, Incorporated, have sold to a client 1,619 Washington Avenue, a five-story flat, 43 by 87.

The T. J. McGuire Construction Company has sold to the Dayton Realty Company, H. Maran & Son, 738 East 180th Street, a five-story new-law house, on plot 40 by 107. In exchange the buyer gave the plot, 78.1 by 96.9 and irregular, at the southeast corner of Belmont Avenue and 180th Street.

Ernst & Cahn have sold for a client to Minna Steinberg 1,458 Brook Avenue, northeast corner of St. Paul's Place, a four-story triple flat, with stores, on plot 34 by 100.

Henry S. Herman, President of the Union Exchange National Bank, has sold to Louis Bernstein the block of eleven lots, located between 188th and 189th Streets, Southern Boulevard, and Robbins Avenue, including four corners. Arnold Byrne & Baumann negotiated the sale.

Brooklyn.

John E. Sullivan has sold 6,205 Fifth Avenue, a three-story single flat, to Lisette Brauns; 7,129 Fifth Avenue, a four-story double flat, to Helen V. Engel, and 6,209 Fifth Avenue, a three-story single flat, to Fred Schmidt.

A. J. Waldron has sold 857 Clifton Place, a two-story frame house, on plot 25 by 100, for Frank Scrivens to Fred Knebel.

Leggett Estate Sold.

Albert E. Hadlock of New Brighton has purchased through Cornelius G. Kolff of J. D. Leggett, executor of the estate of Annie D. Leggett, the dwelling and stable on the northeast corner of Bement Avenue and Cary Avenue, Livingston, S. I., having a frontage of 100 feet on Bement Avenue and 230 feet on Cary Avenue. The property for many years was the home of the Rev. Dr. Theodore Leggett, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian Church at West New Brighton. Mr. Hadlock intends to use his new purchase for his own occupancy.

Suburban.

George A. Warburton has sold his property at Tarrytown, consisting of a modern dwelling and about one acre of land, to Charles P. Batt. Nichols & Hobbie negotiated the sale.

Henry L. Bogert and Walter L. Bogert, executors of the estate of Mary L. Elliman, deceased, have sold to Frank C. Whittlesey a parcel having a frontage of 119 feet on the east side of Jaggar Avenue and 177 feet on the south side of Maple Street, known as 86 Jagger Avenue, Flushing.

The Marié Realty Corporation has sold through Toel, Brett & Co., one of its houses at Scarsdale, situated on Cambridge Road. The purchaser is Robert Campbell Winmill, and the property, consisting of about one acre, brought $15,000.

Jamaica Estates reports the following sales: Plot, 50 by 165, on Aberdeen Road; plot, 50 by 150, on Tudor Road; plot, 75 by 115, on Charlecote Ridge.

The Martha Realty Company, 1 West Thirty-fourth Street, has taken title to a plot of nineteen lots on Maywood Avenue, Maywood, N. J., and are preparing plans for the erection of twelve high-class dwellings. The buildings are to be built on plots 50 by 125, and are to contain all modern improvements.

Big Fourth Avenue Leases.

M. & L. Hess have leased for the Braender Building and Construction Company the thirteenth, fourteenth, and fifteenth lofts, containing 48,000 square feet, in the Ashland Building, 313 and 321 Fourth Avenue, at the southeast corner of Twenty-fourth Street, to Schaefer, Schramm & Vogel, one of the oldest commission houses in the city, and who have been on Broome Street for the last forty years. The lease is for a term of years at a rental aggregating $275,000. The same brokers have also leased for Klein & Jackson, from the plans, the store and basement in the building to be erected at the southwest corner of Twentieth Street and Fourth Avenue, to Charles Schoolhouse & Son, dealers in silk, for a term of years, at a rental aggregating $200,000.

Horace S. Ely & Co. have leased for a term of years the store, basement, and second floor in 384 Fourth Avenue, on the southwest corner of Twenty-fifth Street, for Joseph Milbank to Greeff & Co., now at 106 Spring Street. Greeff & Co. are one of the largest dry goods commission houses in the country. A large part of the space will be occupied by the Phoenix Silk Manufacturing Company, which has mills at Paterson, N. J.; Allentown and Pottsville, Penn. The space leased has been held at $35,000 per annum.

$400,000 Harlem Apartments.

Plans have been filed for the erection of two six-story fireproof apartment houses on the north side of 141st Street, 275 feet west of Lenox Avenue, for the Kramer Construction Company, at a total cost of $400,000. The buildings will have an entire frontage of 125 feet and a depth of 86.11 feet, equipped with elevators and accommodations for forty-nine families. The façade will be of brick, with limestone and terra cotta trimmings.

Fireproofing Old City College.

Plans have been filed for putting in metal fireproof partitions in the east and west corridors from the ground floor to the third floor of the five-story preparatory department of the College of the City of New York, at the southeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street, at a cost of $3,000.

Notes.

George W. Bard will sell at auction on March 25 on the premises, the residence and plots of the Seiter Estate on Chester Hill, Mount Vernon, N. Y.

The John H. Fife Company has leased the Hotel Normandie, Normandie-by-the-Sea, N. J., for the owners, through their attorney, Louis W. Stotesbury, for the season of 1911, to John A. Riley of Chicago, Ill., with an option to purchase the property during the season.

The United Cigar Stores Company has closed a ten years' lease with C. M. Silverman & Son for the store on the southeast corner of 166th Street and Broadway. The rental is said to represent a new value for commercial property in that neighborhood.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

NO. 14,729.—IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF the United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of EMIL BUHRER and WILLIAM ARNOLD, individually and as members of the firm of BUHRER & ARNOLD and the firm of BUHRER & ARNOLD, Bankrupts.

To the creditors of Emil Buhrer and William Arnold, individually and as members of the firm of Buhrer & Arnold and the firm of Buhrer & Arnold, of the City and County of New York and district aforesaid, bankrupts:

Notice is hereby given that on the 23d day of February, A. D. 1911, the said Emil Buhrer and William Arnold were duly adjudicated bankrupts, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Stanley W. Dexter, referee in bankruptcy, No. 71 Broadway, (Room 1,510,) City and County of New York, on the 21st day of March, A. D. 1911, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a Trustee, examine the bankrupts, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.
Dated March 10th, 1911.
STANLEY W. DEXTER,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Automobile Veils or Mufflers Must Pay 60 Per Cent. Duty.

In overruling a claim filed by Baum, Cohn & Shire the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday fixed the value of automobile veils under the Tariff act of 1909. The veils are described as silk mufflers, measuring about 8 inches wide and 43½ inches in length, trimmed at the ends with silk fringe. Duty was assessed on the merchandise at the rate of 60 per cent. under the provision in the present tariff law for silk wearing apparel.

According to the importers, the articles are entitled to enter at 50 per cent. as "handkerchiefs or mufflers composed wholly or in chief value of silk." Under the paragraph claimed by the importers, the provision specified handkerchiefs or mufflers composed wholly or in chief value of silk. The provision has other specifications of no importance in the case at issue. General Appraiser Howell, who writes the decision for the board, holds that the claim of the importers does not apply to all silk mufflers, but is limited to such articles as are of the character of handkerchiefs.

The decision says that a muffler is a wrapper or scarf for the throat, and from an inspection of the mufflers there is no doubt as to their character as such articles. It was the contention of the importers that as the provision for silk mufflers is an eo nomine provision, it covers all kinds of mufflers made of silk.

"The rule is well established," says the decision finding against the importers, "that an eo nomine provision for an article covers all kinds of silk mufflers which are provided for without words of limitation or qualification, must prevail over words of a general description which might otherwise include the article.

"In our opinion the language used in Paragraph 400 is not broad enough to include all silk mufflers, but is limited in its scope to such as are of the character of handkerchiefs. We think this quite apparent from the specifications set forth in the paragraph fixing the rate of duty to be imposed according to the form and condition of the articles as imported. None of these specifications can be applied to these silk mufflers before us."

The claim for a reduction in the duty from 60 to 50 per cent. is accordingly overruled.

AFTER UNITED WIRELESS.

Missing Books Sought—Director's Brother Ordered to Testify.

The arraignment before Judge Hough in the United States Circuit Court yesterday of William C. Butler, a clerk in the offices of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, on a charge of contempt of court, brought out the fact that the Government is still investigating the affairs of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, whose President, Christopher C. Wilson, and other Directors are under indictment. Butler is a brother of Frank H. Butler, the company's counsel, who was indicted with the other Directors.

The question which William C. Butler refused to answer was one directed at making him state where he went one day last July when he left his home in ... th Street. Butler pleaded his constitutional privilege and Assistant United States Attorney Stephenson, who represented the Government, declared that he believed the defendant's refusal was for the purpose of shielding some one else.

Judge Hough instructed Butler to answer, and he was taken back to the Grand Jury room. The impression in the Federal Building yesterday was that the Government is now seeking to find out how a number of the books of the United Wireless disappeared last Summer when they were wanted by the Grand Jury, and who was responsible.

Know Nothing of Miss Sutterly.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 10.—Annoyed at the many reports that have been circulated since the disappearance more than a week ago of Miss Marianna Sutterly, a teacher in St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, relatives of the missing woman who live in this city positively denied to-day that they know anything of her whereabouts or that her body had secretly been brought here and buried. They say Miss Sutterly underwent an operation last June, and since then she has been very nervous and melancholy. They believe she wandered into the Delaware River and was drowned.

Got Fares, Gave No Seats, Fined $50.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 10.—The Trenton Street Railway Company was convicted three times to-day for violating the "No seat, no fare" law. Justice Harris imposed a fine of $50 in one case and suspended sentence in the others. Counsel for the company announced that an appeal would be taken. The complaints were made by Councilman Everett Townsend, who is responsible for the ordinance, and two patrolmen.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

AT A STATED TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court, held in and for the Southern District of New York at the Post Office Building in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 6th day of March, 1911. Present—Hon. George C. Holt, District Judge.

In the matter of J. B. & J. M. CORNELL COMPANY, Bankrupt.

A petition having been duly made heretofore by A. Gordon Murray and Michael Blake, Receivers herein, for a sale of the assets of this estate, free of all liens of every nature and description, and due, proper and complete notice of said petition and of the order to show cause granted thereon having been given to all creditors of the bankrupt, including both secured and unsecured creditors, and including specifically the United States Mortgage & Trust Company and all known persons holding bonds secured by mortgage to said Trust Company, and likewise all creditors of the receiver, including holders of Certificates A and B, and including all creditors of said receivers or trustee having claims founded in open account and not represented by certificates who have appeared herein, and also upon all other parties in interest; and a petition in bankruptcy having heretofore been duly filed against the above-named bankrupt, and the said A. Gordon Murray and Michael Blake having thereupon been duly appointed and having duly qualified as receivers, and such proceedings having thereafter been had that an adjudication was duly made and entered herein, and A. Gordon Murray having thereafter been duly appointed and having duly qualified as Trustee in Bankruptcy, and a hearing having been duly had in open court upon said petition for such sale, and after hearing A. Gordon Murray, one of the Receivers, and H. W. Alden, of counsel for said receivers, and C. P. Howland, of counsel for the New York Trust Company, holders of Receivers' Certificate A, and W. B. Symmes, Jr., of counsel for holders of Receivers' Certificate B, and L. V. Lockwood, of counsel for the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company and others, and Norman B. Beecher, of counsel for the Phoenix Iron Company, opposing, and William Greenough, of counsel for the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, opposing; and upon all the papers and proceedings had herein, and due deliberation having been had thereon, Now, on motion of the New York Trust Company, intervening petitioner, it is hereby Ordered, That all or any part of the assets of this estate, whether owned at the time of the filing of the bankruptcy petition or subsequently acquired, to wit: all of the assets and property, including real or personal property, leaseholds, contracts, choses in action, money on hand, plant equipment, material, and all other property now or on the date of sale as herein provided in the possession, custody or control of the Receivers or the Trustee, be offered for public sale in whole or in part as a going concern free of all liens, claims, and incumbrances of whatsoever nature, whether such liens be asserted by holders of certificates, creditors of the Receivers or Trustee for material furnished, and who hold claims in open account not evidenced by certificates, the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, the bondholders, the American Surety Company, The American Bonding Company of Baltimore, the State of New York, The United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, also all persons having or claiming to have contracts with the bankrupt company or the receivers or trustee for the furnishing of material or the performance of labor or otherwise, such assets to be offered in all respects free of all liens or claims of lien or incumbrances of any such persons above described and of all other persons, firms and corporations, with the intent that a purchaser, upon confirmation of his bid as hereinafter provided, shall acquire a title to the property awarded to him by this Court, free and clear of all liens, incumbrances and claims whatsoever. And it is further

Ordered, That such property shall so be offered at the office of A. Gordon Murray, 60 Wall Street (Room No. 615) in the Borough of Manhattan, Southern District of New York, City of New York, on the 20th day of March, 1911, at or before two o'clock in the afternoon of that day. And it is further

Ordered, That bidders shall on said day and before said hour file with such trustee any such bid as they may desire to make, such bids to be in writing. Such bids may be in such form as the bidders may provide and may be bids for all or any part of the assets, and for cash or upon credit, and further upon such terms and conditions as such bidders may fix. And it is further

Ordered, That on or before the 23d day of March, 1911, the said receivers and the trustee file in the office of the Clerk of this Court any and all such bids as may be received by them or any of them, pursuant to the terms of this order. And said receivers and trustee are hereby directed on the 27th day of March, 1911, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon of that day or as soon thereafter as they or counsel can be heard to report all of such bids to the undersigned judge of this Court in the Court House in the Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, City and Southern District of New York, in Room 72, for such action and such order upon any or all of such bids as to this court may then or thereafter seem proper. And all parties in interest, including creditors of the bankrupt, whether secured or unsecured, creditors of the receivers, whether secured or unsecured, persons having contracts with the receivers and all other persons whether named in this order or not, including all persons, firms or corporations asserting liens to or upon any of the property of this estate or which is now or shall hereafter be in the possession, custody, or control of the receivers, and including all persons having or asserting any claims against the bankrupt, the receivers or the trustee, are hereby notified that this court will upon said hearing determine whether it will direct said receivers and trustee to accept such bids, if any, in whole or in part with such modifications, if any, as may to this Court thereupon seem acceptable and proper, and in the event of such order being made, whether this Court will thereupon enter an order directing the referee in charge to take testimony and report concerning all questions relating to the distribution of the proceeds of the said sale and the marshalling of such proceeds and all claims as to priority, including expenses of administration, or order of distribution or payment, or as to passing the accounts and the discharge of the Receivers and Trustee and the release of their sureties, or otherwise generally, and as to claims of lien in or upon the proceeds of such sale, and to entertain and adjudicate such verified petitions in respect to such matters as any parties in interest may thereupon present; and generally to pass upon all such questions arising in this proceeding as to this Court may then seem just and proper. And it is further

Ordered, That the property to be offered for sale pursuant to the terms of this order shall be offered in the condition in which it shall exist at the date of the sale and the said receivers and trustee are authorized to continue the business of the bankrupt up to and including March 27, 1911, and thereafter as the Court may then or thereafter determine. And it is further

Ordered, That William Henkle, Jr., Joseph J. Walker and William Lanoki be and they hereby are appointed appraisers to appraise all of the assets of this estate now in the possession or custody of the receivers or the trustee; and it is further Ordered, That said appraisers shall forthwith proceed to make such appraisement and shall file their appraisal in the office of the Clerk of this Court on or before March 16, 1911. And it is further Ordered, That all persons, firms or corporations asserting or having liens either against the bankrupt company or its property or against the receivers or the trustee or the property now or hereafter in the possession or custody of the receivers or trustee are hereby enjoined from bringing any suits to foreclose such liens or taking any proceedings by suits in court to assert the same and their claims of lien and interest in such property are hereby remitted solely and exclusively to the proceeds of the sale herein provided for. But they are not enjoined from filing any notices of lien as they may be advised.

Ordered, That due, proper and complete service of this order and due notice of the matters herein provided for and to be adjudicated and determined pursuant hereto shall be made by mailing a copy hereof to all parties in interest known to the Receivers, including creditors of the bankrupt, whether secured or unsecured, the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, the bondholders, the holders of Certificates of the Receivers, persons having contracts with the bankrupt company or its receivers or trustee, the American Bonding Company of Baltimore, the American Surety Company, the State of New York and the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, such mailing to be on or before March 7, 1911, and further by publishing a copy of this order in the "New York Times" twice a week before March 19, 1911, and once a week in the "Cold Spring Recorder."

It is further ordered that if no bid be accepted, the property to be sold at public auction at a time, place and manner to be determined on the hearing upon March 27, 1911, heretofore provided for.

GEORGE C. HOLT, J.

Pursuant to the above order, the undersigned will receive bids at his office, Room 615, sixth floor, No. 60 Wall Street, New York City, N. Y., on or before 2 o'clock P. M. on the 20th day of March, 1911.

Bids will be received on the property in lots, as follows:

(1.) All contracts or any of them in the condition in which they shall exist at the date of the confirmation of the sale.

(2.) All stock and material owned and possessed by the bankrupts and the Receivers.

(3.) All furniture or fixtures, including horses, trucks, derricks, and field equipment of every nature and description. All lighters and miscellaneous equipment and machinery owned or acquired by the receivers.

(4.) All machinery owned or possessed by said bankrupt and purporting to be covered by a general mortgage to the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of New York dated March 3, 1903.

(5.) All buildings and permanent fixtures in and about the plant at Cold Spring-on-Hudson and all right, title, and interest therein of the receivers or the Trustee in Bankruptcy.

(6.) Scrap on the ground or about the plant.

(7.) Lots and buildings thereon on Parrot Street, Cold Spring, New York, subject to a mortgage of $12,500 and interest to date to the Fishkill Savings Bank of Fishkill-on-Hudson, New York.

(8.) All real estate wheresoever situated belonging to the bankrupt and not covered by any mortgage or other encumbrance, the known amount consisting of land at Cold Spring, N. Y.

(9.) On all the property, both real and personal, goods, chattels, and credits of the said bankrupt of every name, nature, and description wheresoever situated as a whole or as a going concern, including contracts, accounts, and bills receivable, stock on hand, work in progress, good-will, fixtures, tools, and equipment of every kind wheresoever situated, fabricated and partially fabricated material, machinery, buildings, permanent fixtures, lighters, horses, trucks, and field equipment of every kind whatsoever. Said property so offered for sale will be subject to the Receivers' obligations, and any bidder must assume the responsibility of carrying out and abiding such obligations.

An inventory of all of said property will be made by appraisers appointed by the court, and such report will be filed in the office of the Clerk of the United States District Court, Southern District of New York, on or before the 16th day of March, 1911. A copy or copies thereof may be inspected in the office of the undersigned Trustee in Bankruptcy and in the office of the J. B. & J. M. Cornell Company, Cold Spring-on-Hudson, New York, when the same is filed. The appraisers will be requested to make their appraisal conform as near as may be to the form above outlined for the convenience of bidders.

The property may be inspected at any time by applying to the undersigned, their agents or representatives in charge of the property, and such information as may be desired in regard to the same, may be secured from the undersigned.

All the property above mentioned is offered for sale free and clear of any lien of any name, nature, or description, and especially of any statutory lien that may or might exist, or the right to lien the same for labor or material, and it is also offered especially free and clear of the lien of a mortgage to the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of New York dated March 3, 1903, and of any bondholder holding a bond secured by said mortgage.

All bids will be opened in the office of the Trustee aforesaid at 2 P. M. on March 20th by the undersigned Receivers and Trustee in the presence of any and all bidders who may wish to be present, and any persons who shall desire to attend at said time and place.

Dated New York, March 8, 1911.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The barometric depression over the lakes Thursday night was central over the Gulf of St. Lawrence Friday night, with a secondary disturbance off the Middle Atlantic Coast. As a result rain or snow has fallen over Northern New York and New England and the great lakes and rains over the South Atlantic States.

It is warmer in the Atlantic Coast States from New York south, the Gulf States, and the greater portion of the Northwest, while it is colder over the Upper Ohio Valley, the lake region, the Central Mississippi and Missouri Valleys.

The winds along the New England Coast will be brisk and probably high northwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate to brisk northwest, diminishing; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate west, becoming variable.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have brisk and probably high northwest winds, becoming variable, with clearing weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday and Sunday; warmer Sunday afternoon; moderate to brisk northwest winds, diminishing.

New England—Generally fair Saturday, preceded by snow in northeast portion of Maine; Sunday fair; brisk and probably high northwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1910.	1911.		1910.	1911.
3 A. M.	31	37	4 P. M.	37	48
6 A. M.	31	40	6 P. M.	36	46
9 A. M.	32	39	9 P. M.	35	44
12 M.	36	46	12 P. M.	33	43

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 43; for the corresponding date last year it was 34; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 36.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 40; at 8 P. M., it was 44. Maximum temperature, 49 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 37 degrees at 3 A. M. Humidity, 96 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 42 per cent. at 8 P. M.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, IN AND FOR THE FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.—In the Matter of the Application and Petition of GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, HERMAN A. METZ, ALEXANDER E. ORR, CHARLES STUART SMITH, MORRIS K. JESUP, JOHN H. STARIN, WOODBURY LANGDON, and JOHN CLAFLIN, constituting the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners of the City of New York, for and on behalf of said city, for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal, under Chapter 4 of the Laws of 1891, and the various statutes amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, relative to acquiring the perpetual easements necessary for the construction, maintenance and operation of an elevated railroad in Westchester Avenue, from Third Avenue to the Southern Boulevard; thence along the Southern Boulevard to the Boston Road; thence along the Boston Road to One Hundred and Eighty-first Street, in the Borough of the Bronx, wherever said easements have not been already acquired by purchase or otherwise.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the report of John J. Freedman, Frank J. Dupignac, and Moses H. Moses, the Commissioners of Appraisal duly appointed in the above entitled proceeding, which report bears date the 9th day of December, 1910, was filed in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the 9th day of December, 1910.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that said report will be presented for confirmation to the Supreme Court of the State of New York, at a Special Term thereof, Part III., to be held in the First Judicial District, at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 21st day of March, 1911, at the opening of the court on that day, and that then and there, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard thereon, a motion will be made that the said report be confirmed.

Dated New York, March 6th, 1911.

ARCHIBALD R. WATSON, Corporation Counsel, Hall of Records, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

MUSEUM IS ROBBED OF GOLD ANTIQUES

Part of Eckley B. Coxe Nubian Collection Taken from University of Pennsylvania.

NO TRACE OF THE THIEVES

Taken from Case in the Daytime While Visitors and Students Crowded the Building.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., March 10.—Detectives are working to-day on the theft of a case of gold antiques in the Eckley B. Coxe collection, on the second floor of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, at Thirty-fourth and Spruce Streets. The value of the antiques runs into thousands of dollars.

The robbery occurred between the hours of 1 and 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon while the museum was open to the public and while the building was crowded with college students.

The articles taken include:

- One gold necklace three feet long, set with amethysts and a gold lion's head.
- One necklace, set with a hawk's head, one foot long.
- Two necklaces of plain gold, one and one-half feet long.
- Two gold earrings in the form of shells.
- Three small strings of gold beads.
- One small gold cylinder, hung on a chain, set with semi-precious stones.
- One necklace of plain gold.
- Two gold bracelets of fine wire.
- One gold finger ring, bearing a scarab, with the name Amenhat III.

All the articles taken were kept in a glass front case, four feet high and six feet wide. The front of the case was taken out by the thieves, twelve screws being removed. Apparently they worked at leisure, for, although there were several visitors to the museum yesterday, they attracted no notice.

The antiques which have attracted the attention of collectors the world over were collected three years ago in an expedition to Nubia by Eckley B. Coxe, who is now in Palm Beach.

Prof. Herman V. Hilprecht, former Professor of Assyriology, denied that any of the articles taken were his. He said he had no private collection at the museum now.

The robbery was discovered yesterday afternoon, but was not reported to the police until this morning. Captain of Detectives Souder called the detectives into his office and declared there were several good reasons why news of the theft should not reach the public. He made them promise to say nothing about what they found out while working on the case.

A description of the loot was obtained from the museum and notices sent to all dealers in antique shops and curio stores. The detectives feel confident that there will be no attempt made to dispose of the stolen property in this city, but that it may be taken to New York or taken abroad.

While the intrinsic value is great, the detectives reason that the thieves know the value of the stolen articles to a collector, and therefore will make no attempt to smelt the gold. Descriptions of the property will be sent abroad and to all American cities at once.

Suspicion has been directed toward two young men who were loitering in the museum yesterday. Their descriptions have been furnished to the detectives.

ACTOR LOSES ON CEMETERY.

Wm. Norris Says Reynolds Promised Profits, but He Can't Recover.

In spite of the two jury verdicts in his favor, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court ruled yesterday that William Norris, the actor, could not recover from ex-Senator William H. Reynolds $5,000 which he had invested in the Mount Carmel Cemetery. The decision is based on the fact that Norris refused to take advantage of a proposition accepted by his fellow-stockholders when the cemetery association was merged in a new corporation.

Norris set forth in his complaint that Senator Reynolds went over to the Players' Club one morning to escort him to Brooklyn to view the land and told that by an act of the Legislature it would be the last cemetery which could be laid out in Greater New York, and that he would get ten to one for his money. Norris says he was impressed, but told Reynolds he could not afford to invest in anything but a certainty.

$30,000 VERDICT STANDS.

Appellate Court Takes Note of Earnings Musician Might Have Made.

A verdict of $30,000 for the death of Samuel Zucker, a musician, against the receiver of the Third Avenue Railroad Company was upheld yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. Zucker was killed at Third Avenue and Eighteenth Street in December, 1908.

It was shown that his regular salary was $75 a week as a violinist and that he played also at fashionable receptions and was a member of a quartet of musicians which his death broke up.

"The deceased was 46 years old," the decision says, "in perfect health, who had earned a reputation as an artist and whose ability was acknowledged by such witnesses as Victor Herbert and Hugo Sohmer as a pianist and violinist of high standing, and would not have begun to decline in his ability until he arrived at the age of 60 years in the ordinary course of events."

Zucker left a wife and two children. The court denied not only the application to set aside the verdict but also an application to reduce it as excessive.

PROHIBITION LOSES COL. DADY

He Pleads Enrolment by Mistake, and the Court Lets Him Out of It.

Although it does not appear that he has fallen off the "water wagon," Col. Michael J. Dady of Brooklyn, Republican State Committeeman, is no longer a Prohibitionist.

Recently the Prohibitionists of the borough were startled but delighted to learn that the Colonel was one of them. Their astonishment, however, wasn't a circumstance to that of the Colonel himself. Also, he didn't share their joy. As a Republican district leader, high in the councils of his party and all that sort of thing, it irritated him to be at the same time a Prohibitionist. So the Colonel asked Supreme Court Justice Crane to tear him from the Prohibitionists and restore him to the Grand Old Party, which he did by directing the Board of Elections to place his name on the Republican lists.

MEDALLIONS MISSING.

Granville L. Winthrop Found Out at Custom House Box Had Been Opened.

Police Inspector Russell has been asked to assist in finding four antique medallions which disappeared in transit from London to New York. They are valued at $1,000. The loss was reported by Granville L. Winthrop of 38 East Thirty-seventh Street, a son of Robert Winthrop, a broker of 40 Wall Street.

At the Custom House he found, according to the police, that the box had been opened and four of the medallions were missing. He refused to accept the shipment.

Commissioner Cropsey sent out a circular to the pawnshops and dealers in antiques and curiosities in the city, describing the missing medallions.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Appellate Division denied yesterday Henry G. Moore's appeal from a Supreme Court order directing him to pay $35,000 back alimony to his divorced wife, Gertrude L. Moore, and furnish a $60,000 bond for the payment of future alimony.

An agreement between the striking drivers of Francis H. Leggett & Co., wholesale grocers, and the firm was signed yesterday. The strikers are to return to work on Monday at the wages paid before the strike, but they will be organized into a benevolent association, with insurance features, of which the firm will bear the expense.

Nearly seventy-five members, men and women, of the Patria Club attended its twenty-first anniversary dinner at the Hotel Manhattan last night. Speeches pertaining to liberty, freedom, and love of country were made, and patriotic hymns sung. The speakers were ex-Judge W. H. Wadhams, Mrs. C. F. Doane, George R. Bishop, and Warren Higley.

FORGERY AND BIGAMY.

Two Youths Held on Former Charge, Each Face Two Wives in Court.

Charged with forgery, William W. Wahle, known also as James J. Lynch, formerly of Brooklyn, was arrested late Thursday night in his home in Belleville, N. J., where he went to live after his marriage on Feb. 22 last to Miss Ethel V. Harvey.

The police say Wahle may have to answer to a charge of bigamy also, as he is said to have admitted that he has a wife and two children in Brooklyn. The charge upon which he was arrested is forging an indorsement on a check for $28.35 to the order of Carl Wenzel, proprietor of the Brooklyn Carving Works, 134 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn.

After his arrest when Miss Harvey, or Mrs. Wahle No. 2, learned of his wife and children in Brooklyn, she refused to speak to him. He was taken to the First Precinct Police Court, where Judge Hahn held him as a fugitive from justice.

When William T. Grant of 2,132 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, was arraigned for forgery in the Gates Avenue (Brooklyn) Police Court yesterday two young women claimed him as their husband. The forgery charge was made by Daniel J. Deil, an electrician of 1,520 Broadway, Brooklyn, who said Grant used his name on a check for $3 on Feb. 7 last.

Detectives in court produced two marriage certificates. One showed that Grant was married on Feb. 16 to Miss Ethel Teresa Seeley in Jersey City by the Rev. Andrew J. Meyer. The other recorded the marriage in June, 1909, of Grant to Miss Margaret Farley by a Jersey City Justice of the Peace.

Grant pleaded guilty to the forgery charge in court and was held for the Grand Jury.

BUNKOED ON HIS FIRST VISIT.

Young Buyer Lent a Stranger $40 for a Minute to Buy a Bargain Diamond.

Dennis T. Rose came to this city yesterday on his first trip as a buyer for his father, who keeps a department store at Henderson, N. C. He put up at the Hotel Imperial and wandered around the White Light District last night. Within a block of the Imperial a shabbily dressed man walked up to him holding what appeared to be a fair-sized diamond ring in his hand and offered to sell it. Another man who was fairly well dressed "happened" to come along, and he gave Rose a wink.

Rose left the man with the diamond ring and walked up to the second stranger, who asked him what the other fellow had. Rose told him. The agreeable stranger then said he was a jeweler and knew the value of stones. He thought the ring might be worth buying, and the two went back to the shabby man, who told them that he was hard up and as the "hockshops" were not open he would be willing to sell the ring for $50.

The "jeweler" was willing to buy it.

"I've only got $5 in cash, though," he said regretfully. "Perhaps you can lend me the money?" he said to Rose.

Rose said that he had $40 only. The man with the ring then reduced his price to $45.

"I've got a check for $175," the jeweler said then to Rose. "If you'll lend me your $40 I'll get the check changed at your hotel and pay you."

Rose gave the money. The ring was passed over and the "jeweler" and Rose went to the Hotel Imperial. Drinks were ordered and then the "jeweler" said:

"You wait here. I want to telephone to the manager of the hotel. He's a friend of mine, and he will cash the check."

When it dawned on Rose that he had been bunkoed he went to his room and got a big army revolver, intending to hunt for the confidence men. He was told that he would be arrested for carrying a revolver in this city and was persuaded to put the revolver away and complain to the police.

ROSAMOND MILLER A BRIDE.

Actress Was Married in Little Church Around the Corner on Feb. 16.

Rosamond Miller, a member of Richard Carle's company in "Jumping Jupiter," and George Rankin, a wealthy resident of Goshen, N. Y., and owner of a large brewery in Albuquerque, N. M., were married on Feb. 16, at the Little Church Around the Corner. Their friends learned only yesterday of the marriage.

Up to the opening of the Carle play here Miss Miller was a member of the "Madame Sherry" company at the New Amsterdam Theatre, and last season she was in "The Brass Bottle." She is a daughter of Lawrence William Miller of Middletown, N. Y. Mr. Rankin will leave New York to-day for Albequerque, and his bride will follow at the end of her engagement at the New York Theatre.

EXPRESS STRIKE DELAYED.

Companies Expect It Next Week and Say They Are Prepared.

Representatives of the express companies against which a general strike is threatened to force the reinstatement of discharged drivers said yesterday that they expected no trouble until next week.

Meetings of the different locals of drivers and helpers will be held to-morrow in Manhattan and Jersey City, at which it is expected an ultimatum will be issued.

A representative of the principal companies said that, as far as they were concerned, they were prepared for a strike.

The State Board of Arbitration tried yesterday to bring about a peace conference without success.

EXCHANGE MAY TRY COTTON BROKERS

Court Upholds Its Right to Enforce the Rules Governing Its Members.

CAN EXPEL ON CHARGES

Brokers Accused of Violating Customers' Instructions Lose Their Fight for an Injunction.

Edward Moyse and Felix H. Moyse, members of the Cotton Exchange, lost their appeal to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court from an order denying them an injunction against the Exchange by a decision handed down yesterday. The decision was unanimous. In upholding the right of the Exchange to discipline its members for violation of its rules the opinion states:

"The purpose for which the injunction is sought is to restrain the defendant, the Cotton Exchange, from proceeding to try certain charges which have been made in due form against those of the plaintiffs who are members of the Exchange, and if the Exchange be not restrained from trying such charges that its methods of procedure in certain particulars be prescribed and it be restrained from proceeding in any other manner.

"The New York Cotton Exchange has adopted and is governed by an elaborate code of by-laws which, among other things, define the duties and obligations which each member assumes toward his fellow-members and the Exchange. It is too well settled to call for the citation of authorities that one who joins such an association subjects himself to its constitution and by-laws; if he is guilty of conduct the penalty of which is expulsion he cannot complain if he is expelled, providing the proceedings leading up to such expulsion are fair and regular and in accordance with the constitution and by-laws; and this is so even if, as it is said in the present case, the right of membership is of substantial value.

"The plaintiffs contend, however, that the offense with which they were charged was one that the Committee of the Exchange had no jurisdiction to try. The complaint, in brief, is that Mr. Rothschild employed plaintiffs as his brokers to sell for him 5,000 bales of spot cotton, that he instructed them to sell the same to spinners only for actual consumption and under no circumstances to permit the cotton to be used for redelivery as contracts, or, in other words, not to be sold or delivered on contracts for future delivery made upon the Exchange.

"The complaint then states that plaintiffs accepted the employment and subsequently stated to Rothschild that they had sold his cotton in accordance with these instructions; that Rothschild thereafter learned that the cotton had not been sold to spinners for actual consumption only but had been redelivered in part or in whole in performance of contracts for future delivery made upon the Exchange.

"The question of the jurisdiction of the defendant Exchange to try the charges against the plaintiffs is clearly one which must first be determined by the Exchange itself through its appropriate committees. The same rule applied to plaintiffs' demands that the court shall practically take charge of the trial by directing how it must be conducted. Here again we are not called on to interfere to prevent an injury which is purely anticipatory. A person charged, as these plaintiffs are, has certain rights which are well settled and generally recognized and may claim others which are not so clearly determined. It is the duty of the Exchange, in the first instance, to pass upon his claims. If he is given all to which he is entitled he will have no grievance. If he be denied rights which should have been accorded him, and injury follows, it will then be open to him to seek redress in the courts."

JOB FOR YOUNG ADVENTURERS

Dr. Grenfell Wants College Boys to Take a Motor Boat to Hudson Bay.

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, who is known as the Labrador fishermen's doctor, arrived yesterday on the Mauretania. He was accompanied by Mrs. Grenfell.

Dr. Grenfell, who has been lecturing in London, Liverpool, and Edinburgh, will make a lecture tour in the United States before he returns to Labrador in May, when the fishermen start their season.

Dr. Grenfell said that he wanted to get a forty-five-foot yawl-rigged motor boat taken from Meccatina, in the St. Lawrence Gulf, to Welstenholme, on the Hudson Bay Straits, where the Hudson Bay Company has a station. He considers this an ideal Summer outing for a party of college students. The trip, he said, would take all Summer and the adventurers would be able to return on a Hudson Bay Company's boat.

The way is all along shore and the opportunities for fishing and hunting are splendid. Such a trip was made some years ago by a party of Harvard students.

The doctor will stay for several days in New York at the home of Steven Baker, 80 East Seventy-fifth Street. He will lecture at Yale in the course of his tour.

DRESSED IN OLD IRISH STYLE.

Miss Quinn Comes Over with Three Companions to Exhibit Irish Art Work.

"The spirit of Ireland is reviving. Patriotism and prosperity go hand in hand wherever the Gaelic League gets a footing, and the green is worn proudly everywhere," said Miss Marian O'Shea, who, with three companions, arrived here yesterday on the Mauretania. The young women will give an exhibition of Irish art work here under the auspices of the Gaelic League. The others of the party are Miss Eileen Noone, Bridget McLoughlin, and Bridget Quinn.

Miss O'Shea has been organizing schools of art and industry in Ireland. Miss Quinn specializes in lace and crochet work. Miss McLoughlin is a weaver of rugs and carpets. Miss Noone is a painter in oils, carver in wood, and does marquetry work.

Miss Quinn was dressed in the old Irish costume. She wore a suit of green. Over this was thrown a large square of green Irish cloth, decorated with Gaelic designs, draped togawise over her shoulders, and falling to the knees.

They shook their heads when asked if they were suffragettes, and said that the old idea of the woman's place being the home was good enough for them.

WOMAN HELD FOR FORGERY.

Bookkeeper of the John Lane Company Accused of Stealing $19,000.

Susan G. Macomber, a well-dressed woman, 42 years old, stood before Magistrate O'Connor in West Side Court yesterday afternoon charged with forgery in the third degree in misappropriating money which, according to her empolyer, amounts to between $15,000 and $19,000, and which she acknowledged ran from $8,000 to $9,000.

Her home is in East Orange, N. J., and she was employed up to Jan. 12 as a bookkeeper at $19 a week by the John Lane Publishing Company of 114 West Thirty-second Street. Her peculations, according to her own story, told in a letter to the company, extended over the two years in which she was employed. Her gray-haired father listened to the testimony given against her by the Secretary of the company, Benjamin F. Mauprin, and wept as the Magistrate held her in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

Miss Macomber was discharged by the Lane Company on Jan. 12 and an accountant found the books in bad shape. One item in particular was suspicious—a check from Brentano's for $1,002.37—which was in the bank account, but not credited up on the entry book. Further research disclosed other discrepencies and the company which had bonded her—The Employers' Liability Company of 56 Maiden Lane—was notified. They summoned Miss Macomber to their office and, according to her story, told her that if she produced $2,000 in cash she need have no worry. According to her statement she took $1,000 in cash to the company on Wednesday last and was told to produce the balance on the following day. Unable to raise the sum she produced two insurance policies for $500 each on her mother and father and asked that these be accepted. This was refused, and as she left the office she was arrested.

When the case was called there was placed in evidence a long letter in which Miss Macomber gave a list of forty or fifty checks which she had diverted to her own use. This letter made a confession to the Lane Company and asked for mercy as her parents were nearing the end of their lives and she did not want them to know of her disgrace. She said she had used all the money she had taken in keeping a good home for her aged parents. She had been a woman of deep religious feeling and had never speculated. According to her story the parents supposed she was receiving at least $50 a week. Not having a bondsman the prisoner went to the Seventh District Prison awaiting transfer to the Tombs to-day.

FOREIGN YACHT TAX UPHELD.

But Boats Not Used in Our Waters Exempt, Federal Court Decides.

In the foreign-built yacht tax litigation Judge Noyes of the United States Circuit Court has sustained the demurrers interposed by the Government to the answers put in by Cornelius K. G. Billings, H. Clay Peirce, and Roy A. Rainey and has overruled the Government's demurrers to the answers of James Gordon Bennett and Harriet Goelet.

"Whatever may be said of the justness of the statute," says Judge Noyes, "it cannot be said that the discrimination which it makes against citizens owning foreign-built yachts, is without substantial basis. Taxing the use of foreign-built yachts may tend, in some degree, to protect and promote American shipbuilding. Citizens stand in a position different from aliens, whether resident or non-resident. Regarding the statute from any point of view, I cannot say that it is unconstitutional class legislation."

Bennett and Mrs. Goelet alleged that their yachts had not been within the jurisdiction of the United States for several years prior to the passage of the statute, and that each of the vessels had acquired a permanent situs in a foreign country. Mrs. Goelet also alleged that she was and is domiciled in France and is a resident of that country. Sustaining the answers in those two cases, Judge Noyes says:

"The statute uses broad language, but I find nothing in it or in prior legislation clearly evidencing an intention on the part of Congress to tax the use of foreign-built yachts in foreign waters and wholly outside the limits of the United States. The provisions are, in my opinion, consistent with an intention to tax only the use of such yachts in the waters of this country. Possibly the extent of such use may be immaterial, but I think that such use to some extent must be shown to bring a case within the statute."

MANDAMUS FOR HYDE.

New York, Westchester & Boston Road Wants Tax Payments Certified.

A writ of mandamus against City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde was issued yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, directing him to certify to the receiver of taxes the amounts paid in taxes by the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway Company in 1907 and 1908. Robert T. Bird, secretary of the company, in his petition for the writ stated that the refusal of the Chamberlain to furnish the certificates makes the road liable for double taxation for the use of the city streets, and for a special State franchise tax on a valuation of $364,000.

Mr. Bird stated that in 1904 the Board of Aldermen granted the railway permission to cross certain streets and to use certain thoroughfares for its tracks, the main line of which was to run from the Harlem River, between Lincoln and Third Avenues in the Bronx, to a point near the White Plains Road, for which it was to pay the city $8,000 annually for the first ten years and $16,000 annually for the succeeding years.

Failure on the part of the city to open many of the streets for which it purchased a right of way, Mr. Bird complains, has prevented the building of the road. It does not appear, he relates, that many of the streets will ever be opened, and provision will have to be made to occupy other streets. In the meantime the city has received the $8,000 each year. This the Appellate Division holds should be credited to the company.

LABOR TO BOOM SUFFRAGE.

Union Leaders to Speak Up for the Women in Carnegie Hall on March 22.

A labor suffrage mass meeting which is to be held in Carnegie Hall on Wednesday evening, March 22, is considered by the suffragists the greatest advance in the work that has been done for them this year. All the speakers will be prominent labor representatives. John Mitchell and Samuel Gompers will be present if possible. The circular which is being sent out invites the people to come and learn why organized labor demands votes for women.

Peter Brady, Chairman of the meeting, is Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades, Albert Adams is the Financial Secretary of the Central Federated Union, Hugh Frayne is National organizer of the American Federation of Labor, Meyer London attorney for the cloakmakers, Clara Lemlich, who started the shirtwaist makers' strike last year; Mamie Murphy comes from the bookbinders, and Leonora O'Reilly is one of the best known of the woman orators.

Large delegations from the decorative glass workers, the cloth stampers and spongers, the pavers and rammersmen, the hat trimmers, neckwear makers, stenographers, and accountants, and embroidery workers are among those to whom places on the floor of the hall have been assigned.

The Central Federated Union has taken three boxes, over which its banner will float; the carpenters four boxes, Women's Trade Union League two, Women's Henry George League, the College Equal Suffrage League, the Women's Political Union, and the Woman Suffrage Party have taken boxes. Over other boxes will float banners indicating groups of women teachers, lawyers, trained nurses, actresses, and doctors.

There is to be a union band and a union chorus, and suffrage and labor campaign songs will be sung.

Judge Crain to Talk About Emmet.

Judge T. C. T. Crain of General Sessions, who is an authority on the literature and early history of Ireland, will be the chief speaker to-night at the Carnegie Hall celebration of the birthday of Robert Emmet. The exercises will be under the direction of the Clan-na-Gael, which this year has the promise of the support of all the Irish societies of the Greater City. Municipal Justice Peter Shiel of the Bronx will preside.

Cash Dividend 100 Per Cent.

The Engineering Securities Corporation, an offshoot of J. G. White & Co. of 43 Exchange Place, declared yesterday a cash dividend of 100 per cent. The corporation is capitalized at $1,000,000, and the stock is closely held. The disbursement was decided upon at a special meeting on Wednesday. It is payable March 15.
